The law of God as the fulfillment of the law should prepare one to manifest obedience to every moral precept through His grace and by His strength. Certainly it is not to lead anyone to lawlessness or carelessness regarding details of the daily walk. Fellowship with the Saviour should be revealed in consistent living (v. 20).

II. Christ Explains the Law (5:38-45).

Look at verses 21 to 37. The spirit of murder is anger (vv. 21, 22). A lustful look is adultery (vv. 27-30), and it is better to be blind than to be guilty of it. Divorce is not to be permitted (vv. 31, 32). Swearing is forbidden (vv. 33-37). Thus Christ strips outward conformity to the law of its apparent virtue and reveals that with God it is the spirit that gives meaning to the act.

He goes on to make plain that God alone is wise enough to take vengeance, that we ought never to retaliate with evil for evil. Note that verse 39 probably refers to an insult rather than to physical violence; that in verse 40 it is a question of a difference of opinion in which we often find ourselves; that here as in verses 41 and 42, it is not a matter of letting a wicked or scheming person defraud you of your money, but of recognizing that he has a legal right to your coat; and that here, as in verses 41 and 42, it is not a matter of letting a wicked or scheming person defraud you of your money, but of recognizing that he has a legal right to your coat; and that here, as in verses 41 and 42, it is not a matter of letting a wicked or scheming person defraud you of your money, but of recognizing that he has a legal right to your coat.

III. Christ Illustrates the Law (6:1-4).

Possibly it would be more appropriate for us to say that Christ here illustrates the right and the wrong way of fulfilling the law. How very clear He makes it that the one who, while ostensibly doing the will of God, actually is seeking the recognition and glory of men has received his full reward, for men have applauded his act of generosity. The transaction is complete and God has nothing to do with it at all. On the other hand, the one who gives in the spirit of Christ, not wanting men to know of his faithful stewardship (v. 4), and in fact making no reckoning of it himself (v. 3), may be certain that he has a heavenly Father who takes careful account of the loving deeds of His children and who will reward him, both in this world and in the world to come.

Memories of Happy Days
Why is it that the memory of some days in the past, unmarked by any striking event, always comes to us like the breath of spring? It may be that on those days, in reward for some forgotten act, God drew us close to Him, and that we absorbed some of His eternal peace and happiness.

FISH REARING PROJECT COMPLETED IN PIKE CO. Frankfort, Ky.—A project for the rearing of fish for the purpose of adding game fish to the swift running mountain streams of Pike county and adjoining counties has been recently completed by the Pike county Fish and Game Association at a total cost of $12,158 of which the Pike county club put up $10,658 and the Kentucky Division of Game and Fish added the sum of $1,500.

It has taken several years to turn the 13-acre tract of land into a series of seven fish-rearing ponds, the largest of which covers approximately 2½ acres, this undertaking being started in 1934 with the club purchasing land enough upon which to build three ponds and taking option on the adjoining land for more ponds in the future. The first tract of land contained 5 acres and was later increased to 13 acres.

Mr. C. W. Thompson, Advisory Commissioner for the Division of Game and Fish, and a resident of Pike county was president of the club when the land was purchased in 1934. The club, at that time, had put on a drive for increased membership and did just that, bringing the total up to almost three thousand persons interested in saving our wildlife. A drive for funds was started and the club raised enough money to assure the completion of the fish-rearing ponds and that was done this summer. At a meeting of the Game and Fish Commission last month, Dr. Thompson, representing the Pike county club, turned over to the Division the completed project and the property now belongs to the State. Major James Brown, Director of the Division, accepted the gift in behalf of the State.

In providing sufficient water supply for the ponds a dam was constructed across Elkhorn creek, an all-year-round spring-fed stream, 800 feet above the ponds. In order to assure a steady stream of water three 8-inch pipe lines were run to the ponds with 6-inch lines leading off from these to each individual pond.

The club also constructed a 9-foot fence around the 13-acre tract and planted native shrubs and trees on the grounds. A stone building, containing displays of the program of the club and open to the public, was also built along with a residence for the caretaker. The tract also contains one dug and one drilled well.

All of work of completing the fish-rearing ponds has been accomplished through the aid of the WPA and the NYA. All construction work was done by the WPA and all planting by the NYA. The Woman's club and the D. A. R. of Pikeville also aided in the planting.

On the grounds has also been constructed a furnace for frying fish, a grandstand for the annual meetings; benches and picnic tables. The Club also went to the Highway Commission and succeeded in getting them to build a road to the ponds.

Dr. Thompson stated that 39,000 fingerlings of bass were planted in the streams of Eastern Kentucky.

tucky from the rearing ponds last fall. He also stated that the ponds would accommodate comfortably 150,000 to 175,000 bass fry.

This big bit of work towards replenishing the fish supplies in Kentucky was accomplished mainly by the untiring efforts of the Pike county Fish and Game club with the Division of Game and Fish assisting wherever necessary. This kind of work should be an incentive for other clubs and should show them that anything worth having is worth working for.

Dr. O. W. Thompson and the Pike County Game and Fish club are to be highly commended by the sportsmen of Kentucky for their faithful services toward the bringing back of wildlife to the fields and streams of Kentucky and they are a shining example of what can be done with plenty of hard work.

Farm Folk School Urged by Local Boy

The following letter was written by Robert B. Hensley, to Dean Thomas Cooper, of the University of Kentucky, Lexington, concerning the Farm Folk School.

Dear Dean Cooper:

Being a graduate of the University and also having been raised on a farm and spent all my life there before coming to the University, I have a great deal of interest in the subject of which I am writing you.

I have been interested for some time in a plan similar to that which was inaugurated in Wisconsin several years ago—that of the Farm Folk School, a school which could very easily be made a part of the University's agricultural training program.

There would be no possible way of estimating the value which the agricultural experiment station and its agricultural training courses have been to the farmers in the State of Kentucky.

The University of Kentucky has placed one of their graduates in practically every county in the State of Kentucky of any size as farm agents, and through their efforts the farming programs have been revolutionized to the extent that now Kentucky stands among those states formerly recognized as great agricultural states. This has not only helped the farmers, but it has helped practically every other industry in our State, and the continued efforts upon the part of our educators to bring to the farm people of our State new methods of farming will be of inestimable value to our State.

If I understand correctly, the plan now in vogue in the State of Wisconsin is for those interested to attend during the winter months from the first of November and extending through February. This is during a period of the year when there is practically no activity on the farm. The costs are very reasonable. For a hundred dollars they are able to receive maintenance, books, etc. Those attending are housed together in dormitories set aside for this purpose. Of course, this would not be necessary. They might be housed in places where prices could be arranged according to their ability to pay. The regular instructors of the college are used. Three nights each week open forums are held, and bankers, preachers, lawyers and other influential people are invited to speak and are questioned before the group. This gives the farmers many different insights which are absolutely necessary in order to prepare them for the task to which they have assigned themselves. Only the most practical studies are taught. They are taught the need for cooperation between the producer and the consumer.

It is my understanding that you have given a great deal of thought to this matter and that there are interested groups throughout the state who are making great strides toward attempting to have such a school as this established at the University.

The practical and economic value of such a plan cannot be estimated, and I do hope that within the very near future such a plan can be inaugurated and that Kentucky will be among those foremost in establishing for its populace the things which our educational institutions can at this day well afford.

Yours very truly,
Robert B. Hensley.

KENTUCKY SURPLUS POPULATION MOVES TO OTHER STATES

That Kentucky furnishes population for other states, as a result of its high birthrate, is brought out in a new Agricultural Experiment Station bulletin dealing with the natural increase and migration of people in this State.

Migration of population from regions of high birthrate in Kentucky to other states and to cities within the State goes on all the time. If this were not so, the high birthrate would double the population of Kentucky in 77 years, at the present rate of increase.

In Leslie county, the birthrate is the highest in the United States, and if there were no migration its population would double in 24 years. There are eight other Eastern Kentucky counties in which the population would double in less than 30 years, and 18 more counties where it would double in 40 years, at present rate of natural increase, if it were not for migration. In Leslie county, there are nearly three times as many children as needed to maintain the population.

In five Kentucky counties, the birthrate is not sufficient to maintain the present population. They are Jefferson, Fayette, Kenton, Campbell and McCracken, in which are located the cities of Louisville, Lexington, Covington, Newport and Paducah.

TOBACCO KEEPS LEAD IN STATE'S CO-OP MARKETING

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 24.—In dollar value and association membership the marketing of tobacco continues to be Kentucky's leading cooperative activity, according to John E. Brown, president of the Louisville Bank for Cooperatives.

Based on the most recent survey conducted by the Farm Credit Administration, Brown reports that more than 37,000 Kentucky tobacco planters elected to send their tobacco to market by the cooperative route. Their 32,000,000 pounds brought $8,500,000, slightly more than half the total business done by all cooperative associations in Kentucky during the year.

For second place in importance livestock holds a lead over dairying, with fruits and vegetables coming next.

Although marketing farm products constitutes about 99 percent of the cooperative activity in the state, Kentucky farmers have made progress in the cooperative purchasing of supplies used in producing their crops. The co-operative movement among farmers of Kentucky received its first great impetus through the interest and support of the late Judge R. W. Bingham, Brown explained. Adopted by the legislature of Kentucky in 1922, the Bingham Cooperative Marketing Act is the first model practical statute providing for the organization of agricultural cooperatives. It has been the model followed by other states, and from it the movement for the so-called Standard Act started.

A report of the survey of Kentucky cooperatives has been published in a 16-page illustrated booklet, "Farmer Co-ops in Kentucky." Copies of the publication may be obtained free by writing the Louisville Bank for Cooperatives, Louisville, Ky.

The bank serves farmers' cooperative associations exclusively. One of the units of the Farm Credit Administration, it is itself a cooperative with each borrowing association becoming a stockholder. Loans are made to finance or refinance the purchase, construction, or lease of needed physical facilities. Loans are also made to provide funds to aid an association to carry on its every day operations.

NURSERY STOCK BUYERS WARNED

Home owners and others who at this time of year purchase shrubs, trees and other nursery stock will be interested in the following warning, published by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station in its annual report on nursery inspection and certification:

"A valid certificate of inspection or permit issued by the State Entomologist of Kentucky is your best assurance that the nursery stock you contemplate buying is free of insects and diseases, and that you will not only be protecting yourself but your neighbors as well by not bringing into your community some new plant pest. This applies to nurserymen and homeowners alike.

"If purchases of nursery stock from other states are contemplated, it is well to investigate the locality from which the stock is to be shipped to be sure no new pest is involved and that the vicinity in which the nursery is located is free from state or federal quarantine. An inquiry to your State Entomologist or to the proper official in charge of inspection and regulation in the state in question should bring the desired information. This is doubly important if the nursery stock is to be shipped with roots in soil.

"It is strongly urged that peddlers of nursery stock who cannot show a permit issued by the State Entomologist of Kentucky be treated with suspicion because the favorite way of disposing of nursery stock which will not pass inspection or stock from nurseries located in sections under quarantine is to load it on trucks and ship to other states to be peddled to unsuspecting home owners at greatly reduced prices."

The Leitchfield Rotary club again will sponsor the annual 4-H club window show. Fifty-two business men and farmers made an all-day tour of 50 calves being finished in the show for the annual Fat Cattle Show in Louisville.

WORK DEVOTED TO ORGANIZATION

BY RED CROSS LEADERS
PECT THAT KENTUCKY ROLL CALL WILL RESULT IN LARGE MEMBERSHIP FOR STATE.

Workers in the various chapters of the American Red Cross in Kentucky devoted the past week mainly to organization preliminary to the rollcall, which begins November 30. The keenest interest has been shown, leaders say, in making the 1939 rollcall the most successful in the history of the state.

Organization this year is being gone into systematically. For instance, Field Worker G. E. Jones reports that the city of Covington has been divided into twenty districts, each with its leaders and workers, and that the county of Kenton, of which Covington is the county seat, has been similarly divided. If any adult in that big and populous county escapes opportunity to join the red cross during this rollcall it will not be the fault of organization, it is declared.

Newport and Campbell County, too, are being thoroughly prepared for the rollcall. Red Cross posters meet the eye of one entering that city or county everywhere because of Sam Frank's genius for advertising and going to work early. A "Flood Dinner" is to be given there November 10. Newport is one city, and Covington another, which will not soon forget the work of the Red Cross in the Ohio river flood disaster of 1937.

While not neglecting the home field, the American Red Cross has sent shipments of drugs, blankets, and underclothing for Polish refugees in Hungary and Rumania. Arrangements are being made, too, Washington announces, for medical care for those refugees who are sick and for the wounded in camps and hospitals in the recent war area in Poland.

Kentucky workers are expecting their rollcall to result in the largest membership since world war days, pointing out that this state has been hard hit by flood and windstorm on several occasions, on each of which the Red Cross rendered signal service to the victims of such disasters.

Enrollment in the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky is 12 percent higher than a year ago. There are 396 students of agriculture and 340 students of home economics.

Five girls are studying agriculture, but so far no boys have enrolled in home economics. The girls studying farming are Elizabeth McDowell, Cynthia, and Evelyn Berryman, Jane Cramer, Betty Jackson and Nancy Saltonstall, all of Lexington.

Former Boone Countian Ends Colorful Career As Steamboat Pilot

The colorful career of Capt. Howard Fenton, a former Boone countian, as a pilot and master of Mississippi and Ohio River steamboats, ended November 1. He was 70 years old on Oct. 24 and, of course, under the rules of the Government, he will be retired from active service. However, because of the number of days of leave accorded him, he brought his retirement into effect September 16th and from now on he expects to do most of his steamboating on his front veranda at his Memphis, Tenn., residence 2900 Monte St.

He was born and reared in Petersburg, Boone county, and has a sister, Mrs. Ed Berkshire residing here at the present time.

For the past 24 years, Captain Fenton has been a pilot of steamboats in the service of the Memphis District United States Engineers. During eight years of the total, he has been a pilot on the steamer Inspector used by the Engineers as a towboat and inspection steamer.

Way back when Captain Robert Agnew was master of the third Kate Adams, Captain Fenton served as one of her pilots in the Memphis and Arkansas City trade. When C. H. "Doc" Hotlum launched into the packet business several years ago, he ran as master of the St. James. But that was for a short period. He also was a pilot on Lee Line Steamers when that great river line was at its best.

Captain Fenton came from a family of steamboat men. His father, the late Captain Henry B. Fenton was a master and pilot on boats which ran more than 50 years ago between Cincinnati and New Orleans. He served this line for 30 years before he retired.

Seen Business at Height
He has seen the packet business on the Ohio and Mississippi at its heights. When he began "running" the river back in the eighties there was a steamboat in every bend and now, he says, while there are fewer boats, they are carrying 50 times more freight than was handled on the old packets. Then, he added, the old steamers were built on wooden hulls. Now they are all steel constructed, making them nonsinkable and fireproof.

He regrets the passenger business on the rivers is gone forever. He doubts if any boat can be built to revive the one-time glamorous years when all packets were crowded and everybody had the best time of their lives.

Great Days
"Those were great days. But now, we older river pilots can only revive them in our dreams of other years—dreams that melt into a misty past," is the way he put it.

One time a good many years ago, old Captain John Barrett of Cincinnati launched a packet line on the Ohio River in opposition of the regular mail line, owned by the late Commodore F. A. Daidley. He had the B. S. Rhea in the trade between Cincinnati and Madison, Ind. Captain Howard Fenton was one of her pilots. He was a dashing young man then, very handsome and dressed like he had just stepped from a fashionable clothing store. The reason he was selected by Captain Barrett was because he was considered one of the very best packet pilots on the Ohio.

But Captain Fenton knows just as much about the "Man River" and his pranks, as he does the Ohio.

Another old Cincinnati and New Orleans packet is recalled by Captain Fenton. She is the Golden Rule, a famous stern wheeler, built with beautiful lines. He was a pilot on a steam at Cincinnati the day the Golden Rule burned at her wharf and to save his steamer, he had to back her out into the river and land below the ill fated Golden Rule.

A great deal can be written about Captain Howard Fenton, because he has been a Government licensed pilot since he was 21 years old and his career has never been broken by any "setbacks" from United Steamboat Inspectors. That was because he knew the rivers, followed the rules of piloting and layed to them on every trip.

Captain Fenton is married. He has two sons, Howard Jr., residing at Tulsa, Okla., and Allen S., residing in Chicago. Both children had no inclination to follow the river and sought other professions.

In leaving the steamer Inspector, Captain Fenton paid high tribute to her master Capt. Russell Randolph and D. M. Brock in charge of the Engineering fleet of boats. And of course, he had more to say about Major Noce, United States District Engineer in charge of the Memphis District.

"I thought it very fine when I surrendered by post on the Inspector and Major Noce called out to me, 'Captain, don't forget us. When you are tired, come down and make a trip on the Inspector as my guest.'"

"I thought that was the nicest invitation I have ever received. But what more could be expected from such a major than Major Noce. He's the salt of the earth," concluded Captain Fenton.

Posture From The Ground Up

N. TULCH

Foot Comfort Specialist at—
P. T. L. S. FOOT COMFORT
9th and Madison Covington

The shape of the body is maintained by a frame work of bones fastened together at the joints by ligaments. Muscles attached to the bones by tendons help to hold the bones in place and move the movable ones. The strong flexible column of bones known as the spine or backbone is the great supporting center of the body.

From the ground up, body balance depends upon the even distribution of weight about an imaginary center axis. Whenever you move, many different sets of muscles, bones, and joints function as levers in adjusting the weight masses of the body so that you can keep your balance. While standing or sitting, movement may be so slight that it is barely noticeable. In playing strenuous games, such as tennis or football, thousands of adjustments must be made at high speed.

The feet play a very—very—important part in body balance, as they support the entire weight of the body both in standing and in moving and hold it upright against the downward pull of gravity.

Feet—distorted in shoes and weak shanked shoes, that do not hold the bones in posture—make it impossible to maintain body balance. Unbalance can cause many ills and distress in remote parts of the body. Backaches, headaches, and even nervousness or poor digestion may be caused by the shoes you are now wearing.—Adv.

A one-way ticket to the stockyards for low producing cows, is suggested by the dairy section of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. The season of high feed costs is here, and it won't pay to keep low-producing, inefficient, non-profitable cows, the experts declare. Labor and feed expenses are about as much for poor cows as for good cows. It is recommended that the protein content of the grain ration be increased to offset the deficiency of protein in hay and grass as this season.

ARCHITECT'S DESCRIPTION OF NEW BURLINGTON SCHOOL

The following is a description of the new Burlington school, furnished by Abner E. Foster, architect:

Gymnasium
The gymnasium of this building, which is also used as an auditorium, is 54' wide by 70'6" long and accommodates the basketball playing floor, 40' wide by 64' long. From the floor to the bottom of the trusses is a clear height of 18' which is ample for the average long shot, since you consider that between these trusses at the center of the floor the clear ceiling height is 25'.
A spectators balcony is provided for basketball games or any other athletic events, which will seat approximately 150 persons, and bleachers seats can be arranged on the stage which will seat an additional 75 persons. Under the balcony it will be possible to provide seats for at least 100 more spectators, which would make a total of 325 seats.

The total seating capacity of the entire auditorium and balcony would be approximately 850 persons, which I am quite sure would be more than ample to accommodate any affair that might be contemplated in Burlington.

The floor is maple 1 inch thick and is treated with three coats of penetrating seal which gives a durable and beautiful finish. The ceiling of this auditorium and gymnasium is covered with an insulation and sound absorbing material 1 inch thick in large sheets 4 feet wide and 8 feet long.

Ample provision has been made for the safety and convenience of students and spectators with sufficient entrances and exits, either directly outside or connecting to fireproof corridors. Boys' and girls' dressing rooms, with ample toilet and shower facilities, are provided with direct access to gymnasium.

Large windows on both North and South ends of this room will give sufficient day light; and at night and on extremely dark days artificial lighting is taken care of by a sufficient number of drop lights suspended from ball and socket brackets in ceiling. These fixtures will swing in the event they are hit by basketball.

Rigid regulation size basketball rings and back stops make this a complete gymnasium, and the acoustic properties of the ceiling as well as the seating arrangement for vision, in addition to the glazed tile walls gives a complete gymnasium and auditorium with low maintenance cost second to none in Northern Kentucky.

Class Rooms
The class rooms for the elementary grades and high school grades are each 21 feet wide and 23½ feet long, with four large windows to each room, 4 feet wide and 7 feet high. The floors are maple treated with three coats of penetrating seal; the walls, and finish plaster and ceilings covered with rigid insulation board which is slightly sound absorbing with a high degree of light reflection.

Black boards of the proper height for the specific grade for which each class room is intended cover the North and East walls, along with ample space for bulletin boards composed of cork.

The large windows of each class room produce approximately twice as much square footage of glass area as is required by the State law, and each class room will seat comfortably about thirty pupils.

Corridors
Ground floor, first floor, and second floor corridors have concrete floor and steel stairs, with cement fill treads and lands at each end of corridor. The walls of the corridors as well as stairways and landings are glazed tile up to a height of 7 feet 6 inches. The concrete floors are covered with asphalt tile 12 inches square in an alternating pattern of browns and tans, with a brown border.

All lockers in corridors are recessed in walls and are raised 8 inches above the floor. These fireproof corridors and stairways assure at all times the safety of egress to all occupants of this building.

Administration
The principal's office is located above the ground floor vestibule on the first of the building directly in the center. Windows are provided to give the principal complete supervision of the front entrance, stairway, and main part of first floor corridor. Ample closet space has been provided for storage in principal's office.
Directly above principal's office is the library, which is connected to the science room by means of a book window. The science room will also be used as a reading room or study hall.

Electric Work
All of the electric work in the new Burlington School was done by a local Burlington Electric Contractor, Poston Bros., according to the latest approved standards, and we can well be proud of the results. The electrical system operated from the principal's office or the ground floor, first floor or second floor corridor, and all lighting systems for efficiency and convenience have all been worked out very carefully and successfully, with control panel boards at the proper location and all three-way switches for partial and general lighting. Exit doors have been plainly marked and exterior lights has been provided at all entrances and exits.

All electric work has been accepted and approved by the Electrical Inspector who has charge of this district.

Heating
The heating system for this building is a low pressure steam boiler with a sufficient amount of radiation in each room to supply 70 degrees temperature inside with outside temperature zero. All exposed return lines are wrought iron and all return lines under ground are copper pipe with insulated covering incased in clay tile.

In boiler room directly in back of boiler is a vacuum return pump to assure perfect circulation and prevent condensation remaining in return lines. The boiler is fed by a steam pressure controlled stoker which feeds automatically to keep steam pressure for normal heating purposes. This stoker has additional automatic devices for mild weather for the purpose of keeping fire going. A low water automatic cut off, which also controls the stoker, and other safety measures such as pressure gauges, blow off valves, etc., all make up a complete, efficient, low cost operating heating system which will perform dependable service for years to come.

Plumbing
The water and sewerage system for the new Burlington School has been the subject of lots of serious thought and consideration. A large cistern, 15 feet in diameter and 15 feet deep, 19,000 gallon capacity, is located in the rear of the auditorium from which a supply line is run direct to an electric water system with water storage and air pressure tank. Supplies are run from this tank to kitchen sink, six drinking fountains, two on each floor, science instructor's desk in science room, and basement boys' and girls' dressing room showers.

A larger and deeper pond has been provided to furnish water for toilet flush purposes, which will operate on a separate pumping system to be located in boiler room.

The sewerage system consists of running all drainage lines, except roof drains which connect to cistern, to a concrete septic tank 8 feet wide, 22 feet long, and 7 feet deep, which has been approved by the State Board of Health. From this septic tank a 6 inch sewer line drains to a point opposite the dam of the pond and from this point leaching or farm tile is run, which allows the drainage from the tank to seep into the earth and to be absorbed. Any overflow from this leaching bed will be carried under the driveway near the bus garage to additional leaching tile which is under the tennis court.

All plumbing work on this school building was done by Geo. Beutell, Covington and has been accepted and approved by the State Plumbing Inspector.

Architect's Statement
In the early part of September, 1938, I was retained as Architect for the new Burlington School to prepare sketches and furnish all cost data for complete application Public Works Administration officials in Atlanta for approval.

In as much as no new applications could be received after September 30, it meant at that time along with other P. W. A. work quite a lot of concentrated effort including day and night work to prepare this application in time. It was completed, however, on September 27, and was delivered to Atlanta personally September 29, allowing us only a few hours before the gates were closed. Formal approval of all preliminary data was granted about November 15, and then it meant another rush to complete plans and specifications and all contract documents for bids to be received December 30, allowing contractors twenty days in which to figure. At that time no additional P. W. A. work could be started after the first of January, 1939, and it meant therefore that contracts were to be let and work started before the first of January.

George P. Nicholson & Son, of Walton, Ky., the successful low bidders on general contract, actually started construction December 27, 1938, and even though the weather was comparatively mild the General Contractors were delayed by very poor weather conditions, as far as rural building is concerned. Rainy weather, freezing weather, and thawing weather gave them very few productive days in the beginning which accumulated into an approximate delay of sixty calendar days.

These early delays made us realize in the early stages that we would have difficulty in finishing this job in early August as was anticipated. However, the cooperation of General Contractors and Sub-contractors was excellent in partially overcoming this loss, but other delays which were to be encountered later on, and which could not also be anticipated in the way of material deliveries and smaller Sub-contractors' services, caused the loss of some of the time saved during good construction weather.

Mr. Nicholson and his son Kyle, General Contractors of Walton, Ky.; Mr. George Beutell of Covington, Ky., Contractor for Plumbing; and Poston Brothers of Burlington, Ky., Contractors for Electric Work, all combined their efforts in a splendid spirit of cooperation to give to the people of Burlington and Boone County their best as far as workmanship and service is concerned.

We also must not forget the present administration in Washington which made 45% of the cost of this building possible; Washington's efficient corps of engineers in Atlanta, Georgia, and their local Resident Engineer Inspector, Smith Rose, and his able assistants. The fiscal court of Boone County who acted as owners, represented by Judge Riddell, the Boone County Board of Education, and tireless efforts of Mr. D. H. Norris, their Superintendent, also the Burlington Parent Teachers' Association who gave us wonderful assistance in suggestions for equipment of kitchen and cafeteria. All contributed a full measure of their work to the people of Boone County in making this school possible, and following the plans and specifications of the Architect.

CINCINNATI MAN KILLED IN CRASH

NEAR FLORENCE SUNDAY AFTERNOON—DRIVER'S BODY IS CRUSHED BENEATH AUTOMOBILE.

W. E. Thomas, 60, of 505 Armory Ave., Cincinnati, was killed Sunday afternoon when the automobile which he was driving toward Cincinnati on U. S. 25, four miles south of Florence, left the road, overturned, and crashed into a pole. Thomas' 14-year-old son who was riding with him escaped injury.

As the machine overgained Thomas was thrown from it and was crushed under the car as it crumpled against a light pole. A wrecker from Walton and residents of the community lifted the car from Thomas' body. The papers and checks found on the body led to identification at the funeral home of Chambers & Grubbs, where the body was taken. The funeral directors communicated with members of the Thomas family in Cincinnati.

Thomas had been to Lancaster, where he owns property, and was returning to his home in Cincinnati, when the accident occurred. Cause of the accident was not determined.

Thomas apparently suffered a skull fracture and injuries to his face and head.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in Lancaster, Kentucky, with interment in Lancaster cemetery. Chambers & Grubbs, Walton funeral directors were in charge of arrangements.

ALL IS READY FOR ROLLCALL

OF RED CROSS IN STATE CAMPAIGN TO ENROLL EVERY ADULT AS MEMBER BETTER ORGANIZED THAN EVER.

The 1939 Rollcall of the American Red Cross in Kentucky will start on Armistice Day, November 11, with the rollcall workers probably more thoroughly organized and the chapters of the Red Cross themselves doing more to make certain the success of the campaign than ever before in the history of Red Cross rollcalls in the state.

District and county chairmen have seen to it that their territories have been organized down to the precinct and school district. In most of the cities the campaign has been so planned that it is not believed a single person will be overlooked in the effort to enroll every adult in the 1939 rollcall. If any should be overlooked, however, they may enroll by calling at Red Cross headquarters in the county or by communicating with any of the workers.

Committees have been functioning in some of the counties for two and even three weeks. The newspapers, as usual, have given generously of their space to all Red Cross news and news of what the organization is planning to do to help the stricken refugees in Poland and other European countries is read with interest. The American Red Cross now has a delegation in Europe surveying immediate and probable needs as a result of recent happenings there. Items included in the former are 220,000 articles of men's clothing, 83,000 heavy dresses for women and 137,000 sweaters.

There is also a demand for soap to aid the refugees in keeping clean and thus warding off epidemics, besides medicines and foods for those who are ill.

MAJORITY EXPECTED TO REACH 100,000—BOONE COUNTY GIVES JOHNSON MAJORITY OF 1528.

A Democratic landslide that may reach unprecedented proportions for a Kentucky state race has swept Governor Keen Johnson, Richmond publisher, into a full four-year term in the office to which he ascended from the Lieutenant Governorship when Governor Chandler resigned a month ago.

Johnson was receiving a sharply increased proportion of the vote as compared with the result four years ago, but the vote itself, apparently was to be somewhat smaller than the record-shattering figure for a general state election turned out in 1935. If the early trend is maintained throughout the state, Johnson's majority will exceed 100,000. From all indications the entire democratic ticket will be swept into office by a huge majority.

Complete returns from Boone County gave Johnson 2000, Swope 472, with the remainder of the democratic ticket receiving a nice majority.

In the Florence town election, the results are as follows: For Town Marshal, Stephens 161; Hambrick 61 and Eddins 16. Robt. Rouse, J. D. Lucas, Rufus Tanner, Fred Klemmer and A. E. Hue were elected as town trustees.

A MATTER OF OPINION

There are many readers of this paper who disagree about the article printed in a medical journal concerning the hazards of farming. The study was made by a doctor who reports that about 50 percent of the accidents happening on the farm occur in the barnyard or barn. From this report, "Farming is an exceedingly dangerous occupation." This is true to an extent, but statistics show that more accidents occur in the home itself, and this would appear that housekeeping would also be a dangerous occupation. It seems to us that any sort of work of small consequence even, would be dangerous if carelessness is a part of it. Caution is a factor necessary in whatever endeavor one might undertake and certainly farming is no exception. Consider the newsprint to ascertain the number of accidents that occur on the farms and you will not find so many incidents that you will consider farming dangerous. The handling of farm implements, or farm animals, may tend to be of a dangerous nature at times, but these are not frequent enough accidents to appal the reader as he scans his paper. Care and caution will avoid farm mishaps the same as the casualties occurring in homes and on highways, in manufacturing plants and business offices.

PUTTING GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:33-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness.—Matthew 6:33.

Said the Robin to the Sparrow: "Why these anxious human beings Rush about and worry so."

Said the Sparrow to the Robin: "I think that it is not because they have no Heavenly Father Such as cares for them."

—Elizabeth Cheney

Most men are rushing about madly. Worry presses them down. They wonder whether life is worthwhile, whether somewhere there is not relief from this nervous tension that is destroying mind and body.

Well, there is relief and it consists of but one ingredient. Give God His proper place, the first place in your life, and "all these things" (Matt. 6:33) will take their rightful places.

Seeking first the kingdom of God will settle every problem about money, about food and clothing, and about the future.

I. Money (vv. 19-24).
The word in our text is "treasures," and we know that it has a broader meaning than money, but since in our day men seem to translate all values into dollars, we feel free to use that word "money" to express our thoughts.

The treasure is something that one has placed somewhere in order to keep it for himself. It is not a thing gathered for the purpose of using it to serve others or to serve God, but something put away on the shelf to be kept for one's own enjoyment.

There are two places in which a man can lay up treasure, on earth or in heaven; but it is only his hoards treasure on earth that he becomes selfish. That which he sends on to heaven by his devotion of life and in service to Christ, by his giving of the cause of Christ, by his encouragement of those who are witnessing for Christ, all this is done for the glory of God and without hope of reward. How great will be the surprise when they come to heaven and find what they have thus laid up for eternity.

Laying up treasures on this earth, on the one hand, leads to covetousness, to enslavement to one's possessions (be they great or small), and to the evils that follow like a train in the wake of a love of money.

II. Food and Clothing (vv. 25-32).
Some who have no great desire to amass riches are nevertheless in anxiety about food and clothing, and in fact, it is true of some who have great riches that they live in fear lest next month or next year or ten years from now they may be in need.

What is the answer of the Lord Jesus? Consider the birds. They are not able to work nor are they able to pray, but God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers of the fields, for not even a king can dress himself in such beauty. "Are ye not much better than they?" (v. 26).

"As far as known, no bird ever tried to build more nests than its neighbors; no fox ever fretted because it had only one hole in which to hide; no squirrel ever died of anxiety lest he should not lay up enough nuts for two winters instead of one; and no dog ever lost all sleep because the fact that he did not have enough bones laid aside for his declining years" (Public Health Service).

Proper forethought is good and right for we are intelligent beings. But anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God.

III. The Future (vv. 33, 34).
Why will we fret ourselves about the future? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Even tomorrow, with its needs and its blessings, with its joy and its sorrows, is not yet here, and when it does come, there will be God's gracious provision for each passing hour.

Unsaved friend, will you not take the Lord Jesus Christ just now as your personal Saviour and let Him solve the problems of your life as you put the kingdom of God first? Christian friend, if you too have been beset by these things, are not honoring to God, will you not tell Him just now, and put them down at the feet of the Lord Jesus?

"Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (1 Pet. 5:7), which might properly be translated, "Casting all your worries (or distractions) on Him, for He worrieth about you."

Be Still Then and Know
Only in the sacredness of inward silence does the soul truly meet the secret, hiding God. The stranger of resolve, which afterwards shapes life and mixes itself with action, is the fruit of those sacred, solitary moments when we meet God alone.

—F. W. Robertson.

Mrs. Lucy Newman gave us the prefatory statement, foreword and introduction of our book. The book that we studied was taught by Mrs. Kirtley McWethy, which was done in a very beautiful and inspiring way. This book being a study of the great life of Miss Fannie E. S. Heck.

At the noon hour we enjoyed a very bountiful dinner. In the afternoon we continued the study of our book, and were favored by two beautiful songs by our pastor. We were dismissed with prayer by Mrs. N. S. Bristow.

Fall and spices! Add a teaspoon of mace to a pound cake, a bit of cloves and cinnamon to whipped cream on puddings, a taste of nutmeg to buttered spinach, a whole clove in glazed apple, and cinnamon helps to flavor all fruit sauces.

Farmers Should Sign ACP Applications

Boone County farmers have done a splendid job in the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Approximately 925 farmers have qualified for benefit payments and the applications for these payments are now ready to be signed at the county office in Burlington. One hundred twenty-five applications have already been signed.

Sign-up days will be held in the local communities in the near future. Farmers should take advantage of the first community sign-up day or sign at the county office before this time. Those applications signed early will be in the first shipment leaving the county office and these farmers should receive their payments earlier than those who sign later.

Cooperating farmers should receive between $60,000.00 and $75,000.00 in net benefits this year. The exact amount cannot be calculated accurately until all soil-building practices have been reported.

Mr. Martin Aylor, of Hebron spent last Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kelly and wife.

Weak Feet Affect Body

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S FOOT COMFORT
9th and Madison Covington

When feet are permitted to protrude inwardly, the bony structure of the foot goes down, shutting off the nerve and blood supply in the bottom of the foot. When you cramp or choke the blood stream and slow up circulation, there is a lack of bone repair; chemical deposits, or waste matter form at the joints. Next inflammation sets in at these joints causing pain. That inflammation is often mistaken for rheumatism, arthritis and many other ailments. Also when you cramp the blood supply you shut off the food supply to the nerves.

When nerves are impoverished, muscle tone is impaired because sensory nerves indirectly control motor nerves which in turn control the muscles. When muscles in the feet have lost their tonicity due to impoverishment of the nerves, feet are no longer subconsciously held in normal position.

Surgical shoes give support to the vital arches in the feet releasing cramped nerves and blood vessels to promote better circulation. Gradually as circulation improves, muscles grow strong and regain their tonicity.

With foot health improved the person feels better, all over. Research has shown that no less than eighty-seven diseases are indirectly caused by bad feet.

Don't take chances with your health, happiness and peace of mind. With foot comfort you'll live longer and feel better.—Adv.

Gayety Theater News

Fri. & Sat.—"Frontier Marshal"
Sunday & Mon.—Hotel for Women.
Tues. Wed. and Thursday, Nov. 14,
15, 16—"Wizard of Oz."

Elsa Maxwell, wizard of the wisecrack and world's most famous party-giver, gives a world of girls on their own a new slant on life in her first film, Elsa Maxwell's "Hotel For Women," which will be shown at the Gayety Theatre Sunday and Monday.

They're smart, they're beautiful and they're on the make for fame—the gay, glamorous girls in this Cosmopolitan production for 20th Century-Fox—some of them looking for life in a penthouse and some of them longing for love in a cottage.

The cast includes Ann Southern, Liada Darnell (new screen discovery), James Ellison, Jean Rogers, Lynn Bari, June Gale, Joyce Compton, Elsa herself and others.

It was a genius for realistic imagination which prompted L. Frank Baum to write "The Wizard of Oz" and it is genius in all-age perfect entertainment that brings it to the motion picture screen. The "Wizard of Oz" is great in entertainment, in satisfaction, in music, color photography, costuming, performances—in fact, great in every department.

When you see "The Wizard of Oz" you realize it had to be made in Technicolor. The effects are amazing. You know it had to have technical experts because the magic is startling. When you hear the lilting music and clever lyrics you realize it had to have music. And when you see Judy Garland, Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr, Jack Haley, Billie Burke, Margaret Hamilton, Charles Grapewin, Pat Walsh and Clara Blandick in their roles you know they could have been played by no one else.

Judy Garland as Dorothy gives the screen's best child performance. Don't fail to see this picture. It's grand.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas it has pleased our Heavenly Father to call to himself the soul of our friend, Mr. John S. Surface, Vice President and a Director of Florence Deposit Bank, who departed this life on October 27, 1939, therefore, be it resolved by the Board of Directors of this bank that it has lost one of its most highly esteemed and capable of officers; that the family of said deceased official has lost a kind, considerate and devoted member, and the community in which he resided, a true and faithful neighbor and friend, and Boone County one of its most highly respected and worthy citizens;

Be it further resolved; that these resolutions be spread on the minute book of Florence Deposit Bank, and a copy thereof be sent to his family, and that same be published in the Boone County Recorder.

Adopted November 4, 1939.

Signed,
E. O. ROUSE, Secretary,
C. F. BLANKENBEEKER, Pres.
Board of Directors of Florence Deposit Bank

TRUCK WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

FOLLOWING COLLISION AT DEVON FRIDAY—BOTH DRIVERS ESCAPE INJURY—REPORT OF BLAST HEARD FOR MILES.

A truck carrying powder owned by the Delaware Powder Co., Pineville, and driven by Lafayette Wells, Negro, Pineville was completely demolished Friday when it sideswiped another truck driven by Robert Carpenter, Danville, near Devon Friday.

The collision caused blasting powder being hauled by the Pineville truck to explode, completely wrecking the truck. The other truck carrying 13 head of cattle, was slightly damaged.

One of the cattle was killed during the explosion. The remainder were rounded up in fields near the scene of the accident.

Neither of the drivers was injured in the explosion, it was reported.

Houses within a five-mile radius were shaken by the blast, it was reported.

Following the collision the powder truck burst into flames as both drivers fled, followed by a terrific blast that set off a fire that swept nearby fields. Trees, telephone poles and fences within a square mile area were consumed by the flames.

Volunteer fire departments from Florence and Elsmere aided in extinguishing the fire. Sheriff F. M. Walton and deputy were called to the scene.

The cattle truck, owned by Ed Moore, Lexington, was headed north, and the other truck was headed south.

The powder truck contained approximately 18 tanks of oxygen, which exploded in a series of blasts shortly after the truck was in flames.

Windows in nearby homes were said to have been broken by the jar of the heavy explosion.

WEED GROWERS VOTE NOV. 21ST

BOONE COUNTY FARMERS REPORTED TO BE STRONGLY IN FAVOR OF TOBACCO QUOTAS FOR 1940 CROP.

Burley tobacco growers over the entire burley belt will vote this Tuesday, November 21st, on tobacco quotas for the 1940 crop. If two-thirds of growers vote in favor of quotas, farmers who do not exceed their acreage quotas can sell all the tobacco they produce. Those who exceed their acreage quotas will be limited to the amount of tobacco they are allowed to produce. The farm yield per acre set up for the farm. All additional pounds sold by growers exceeding allotments will be subject to a 10c per pound tax.

Boone county growers are reported to be strongly in favor of quotas in that the burley surplus has increased approximately 150 million pounds the past three years. Quotas under the 1940 program appeal to growers more than in any previous year in that those who cooperate can sell all tobacco produced with no poundage limitations. Those who attempt to take advantage of cooperating growers will be subject to the 10c per pound tax on excess tobacco produced.

Growers should familiarize themselves with the 1940 tobacco quotas according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent, by attending one of the educational meetings being held. The schedule of the meetings is as follows:

Petersburg School, Tuesday, November 14th, 7:00 p. m.
Grant School, Tuesday, November 14th, 7:00 p. m.
Verona School, Wednesday, November 15th, 7:00 p. m.
Union New Haven School, Friday, November 17th, 7:00 p. m.
Burlington Courthouse, Saturday, November 18th, 2:00 p. m.
Hamilton School, Saturday, November 18th, 7:00 p. m.
Walton School, Monday, November 20th, 7:00 p. m.

LINE STAKED TO MUDLICK

FOR R. E. A.—SERVICE IN SOUTH SECTION OF COUNTY EXPECTED WITHIN SIXTY DAYS, ACCORDING TO REPORT.

The R. E. A. line has been staked from the Grant county line to Mudlick, according to Will Smith, right-of-way man for Boone county. The line from Grant county to Big Bone will be energized from the Grant county line and service in the south section of the county should be available in approximately sixty days.

The north section of Boone county, Kenton and Campbell counties will be energized from the substation located near Devon. Approximately 175 miles of line will be energized from this point.

A number of committees met with Chester Roland, manager of the R. E. A. Association at Burlington on Monday, November 13th, and made plans for the holding of educational meetings at Walton, Hamilton and Burlington during the early part of December. The costs of wiring, best types of wiring, equipment, and lighting fixtures will be discussed at the meeting. The exact place and time of these meetings will be announced later.

Mr. Roland advised those attending the meeting that a temporary hold-up in staking the line would begin on Tuesday of this week. This delay was due to the small technicality brought by the Washington office and that staking work would be continued in the next few days.

Our vote goes to this organization for furthering an interest in the old art that dates way back beyond the days of our great-grandmothers. We cherish those samplers made by our ancestors not only for their material value, but because we are a very sentimental people. We think of the hands that moved over the linen, the needle that was guided up and down as the colors and figures took form. Each old sampler weaves a personality in its threads.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

WARNINGS AND PROMISES

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 7:1-4.
GOLDEN TEXT—And as ye would that men should do unto you, do ye also to them likewise.—Luke 6:31.

"How to Win Friends and Influence People" may be worth while to study, unless it is done from a selfish desire to be popular so that one may make more money and get on in the world. Everyone has a desire to make more friends and better friends, and the Christian in making friends should make them for his Lord as well as for himself. Actually the best of the rules and suggestions offered in this subject are already an integral part of Christian conduct as revealed in the Word of God.

I. Avoid Judgment (vv. 1-5).

By not judging others censoriously we escape such judgment of ourselves both by God and by our fellow man. The admonition, "Judge not," obviously does not mean that we are not to exercise our God-given ability to discern between good and evil, nor does it mean that we are to stand silent in the presence of wrongdoing. Verse 6 in this very chapter calls for the use of judgment (vv. 2 and 3).

In all such judgment we are to avoid an unkind spirit and the hypocrisy described in verses 3 to 5. We are to be certain that our own lives are above reproach regarding that which we condemn (v. 5). The none too common exercise of correcting our own faults will serve a salutary twofold purpose of improving ourselves and of making us too busy to find fault with others.

II. Be Reverent (v. 6).

While we are not to judge others, we are not to go to the opposite extreme of being so lenient in our attitude that we permit ungodly men to do as they please. The sacred things which we are to reverence are not to be profaned by the sins of others. This does not mean, as some would have us believe, that we are not to present the gospel to a drunkard. Only through the work of an individual be saved. But it does mean that in dealing with holy things we are not only to be reverent ourselves, but we are to be careful that we do not permit wicked men to misuse and to profane the holy things of God.

III. Pray in Faith (v. 7-11).

Here is a straightforward promise from the lips of our Lord Himself, assuring us that prayer will be answered. It seems that He must have foreknown that some would feel that the promise was too good to be true, so He stated it in threefold and repeated it. Why not believe it, act on it, and receive the answer?

Observe that there is to be importunity in prayer, we are to seek if we would find. "Our Lord does not guarantee to us anything at first asking. God does not open His treasury to a passing bugle-call or the tap of a careless hand which just happens to be near the door of prayer. Prayer is not a momentary whim or a transitory whim. It is the utterance of a confirmed and persistent and unwavering longing. If we want a prayer answered, you must go on praying" (J. G. Greenough).

We have included the so-called Golden Rule under this section because the word "therefore" links it with that which goes before. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan aptly says, "If we omit the 'therefore,' we cannot obey the verse. If we retain the 'therefore,' and are driven to ask, to seek, to knock, and to know that the Listener to the asking, to the seeking, to the knocking, is our Father, then the rule is golden with heaven's own light, but in no other way."

The Golden Rule is really the fulfillment of the law and the prophets, but in the light of Christ's glory it is also a great principle of Christian love and consideration.

IV. Walk in the Narrow Way (vv. 13, 14).

The road to heaven is a narrow way because it is built to carry us through the quicksands of this world to a glorious consummation. It is not a dismal road, for it is lighted by God's glory; and it is not a lonesome road (even though few go that way), because Jesus walks with us. The road to destruction is broad. The entrance is easy; there is much company, but one soon finds that the company is distasteful—just fellow sinners. Jesus is not going that way. The best people, God's people, are going the other way. The road leads into all kinds of by-ways where pitfalls abound. The earthly pleasures—one thought to enjoy have, as MacLaren puts it, "a strange knack of losing their charm and at the same time increasing their hold."

Full of Grace

I will neither be content with what measure of grace I have, nor impatient of God's delay; but every day I will endeavor to have one drop added to the rest so my last day shall fill up my vessel to the brim.—Joseph Hall.

9th and Madison Covington

Now friends I am going to ask you to do something which I think will give you the answer to the trouble you are having with your feet.

No, you must do just as I say, so you will understand what I mean when I say . . . Most All friends take off both shoes right now! Please stand up, both feet side by side about six to eight inches apart with the same amount of weight on each foot.

Now, this is important! Relax all muscles in your feet and legs. About 7 out of 10 of you will find that your feet roll inward. In other words, your feet go down on the inside, some of them all the way down to the floor. You probably have one of the four stages of weak feet . . . first degree, about 1-4 of the way down; second degree 1-2 way down; third degree, 3-4 of the way down; and fourth degree, all the way down on what is commonly known as flat foot.

But, here's the important thing for you to remember. Two important things in fact; when your feet roll inward and go down, you are shutting off the nerve and blood supply going into the bottom of your feet. The result is poor blood circulation which often leads to chemical deposits or waste matter from the joints of your feet and lower limbs.

Now, the second important thing is this, weak, inrolling feet also cramp nerves, then through nerve reflexes, some weaker part of the body is usually affected. Remember, when you cramp the nerves in your feet, you cause reflexes to be sent to some other part of the body that is more sensitive and has less resistance. The old saying "nerves comes right back at you" with headaches, heartaches, or anything worse. If you are not sure about the condition of your feet, go where retained foot comfort specialists will make a thorough scientific analysis, of your feet.—Adv.

New Haven to Play First

Conference Game Friday
The New Haven Tigers will open their 1939-40 Conference season Friday night with the Hebron Cardinals at Hebron. Hebron won their opening conference contest against Florence last week, while the Tigers were holding the fast Simon Kenton quint to a 15-18 count.

Both the Tigers and Cardinals have inexperienced teams, but Coach Maurer of the Tigers is very optimistic about his squad which has held Dixie Heights and Simon Kenton to a total of 27 points in two games. The Tigers defeated Dixie in their opening contest of the season 13-11.

Featuring the New Haven's team play has been Townsend and Bob Stephenson, at guards and H. Stephenson, center. Day and Shields, defensive forwards, also have shown well, according to reports.

Rev. A. K. Johnson
Honored On Birthday

A happy occasion it was, when on Sunday last, a crowd of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Johnson to honor him on his birthday anniversary. When the dinner hour arrived, Rev. Johnson blew out the candles which crowned the large, delicious and beautifully decorated Angel Food cake which was baked by Mrs. Nell Hunt. After Rev. Alford invoked God's blessing on the assemblage, all partook of and enjoyed to the fullest the bounteous lunch which had been prepared by many loving hands.

In the afternoon a sad note was struck, when instead of sharing in a period of religious devotion which heretofore was observed on these occasions most of the guests accompanied by the host, felt called to go and pay their last respects to relative and friend, Mrs. Benson, whose funeral was conducted at the Baptist Church.

However, all had expressed their love and friendship to Bro. Johnson and all joined in wishing for him many happy birthday and to him and his faithful wife many more happy years together.

Bro. Johnson received several nice presents.

The present to enjoy the day with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Bud Hamilton, Winchester, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Pinner and son, James, of Norwood, O., Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Griffith, Burlington, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hunt and son Albert, of Verona, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sleet, Mrs. Dousman, Mrs. Fannie Brittenhelm, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Franks, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Jones, Mrs. Susie Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Powers Conrad, Mrs. E. B. Powers, Mrs. Bess Conrad, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Ryle, Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Alford, all of Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kinman, Mr. H. A. English, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Morris, Mr. and Mrs. John Myers and son Vernon, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Renaker, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Powers.

"WHEELS OF HAPPINESS"

Junior members of the Y. W. C. A. are carrying on; and second, we want to raise our contribution for the support of the Kentucky-Tennessee District.

The Young Women's Christian Association, which has been in existence for some ninety years, includes among its members women and girls of all economic classes, races and nationalities, ages and denominations. Its purpose is stated as follows: "To build a fellowship of women and girls devoted to the task of realizing in our common life those ideals of personal and social living to which we are committed by our faith as Christians. In this endeavor we seek to understand Jesus, to share His love for all people and to grow in the knowledge and love of God."

The Burlington Girl Reserve club is affiliated with the Kentucky-Tennessee District Y. W. C. A., a unit of the national organization which operates in smaller towns and communities in Kentucky and Tennessee. This District work emphasizes the development of self-governing clubs which offer opportunity for growth and enrichment of personality and Christian living through a wide variety of activities.

The Girl Reserves sold homemade candy and popcorn and cleared $7.15. This week they are wearing Girl Reserve pins and arm bands.

A program on the purpose and need will be given at the regular meeting.

Many hearts were saddened by the death of Mrs. Lucy Pearson Wednesday at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, after a short illness.

She was a devoted wife and was loved by everyone. She sank peacefully into that dreamless slumber with the calm and sweet repose of eternal rest upon her brow and like the shadow of a passing cloud her spirit winged its homeward flight. Mrs. Pearson had a kindly and likable personality and at all times was affable and her characteristics of friendliness and loyalty remain a blessing like the lingering softness of twilight, after the sun has set. Funeral services were held Friday afternoon from the residence. Burial was in the Florence cemetery. Mrs. Pearson was 70 years old. She was a member of the Florence Methodist Church. She leaves her devoted husband Robert L. Pearson and a number of relatives and friends. Deep sympathy is extended to the husband and family from this community.

Torpedo Styling
has taken America by storm

Illustrating the "Torpedo" Eight-Door Touring Sedan, #1072*

If it isn't a Pontiac it isn't a "Torpedo"

NO, "Torpedo styling" isn't a term like "four-wheel brakes" or "safety glass." It doesn't denote a development that's industry-wide—as yet! It's the colorful phrase that America adopted to describe the boldly different beauty of the biggest, smartest, most luxurious Pontiac ever built. Without that sparkling jewel-like front-end and its cresting Silver Streak—without those flaring fenders fore and that artful taper aft, it could only be "just another car." But NOT A PONTIAC "TORPEDO"—with its rich interior luxury and the thrilling, thrifty eight-performance for which Pontiac is renowned. So when you can't resist the urge to own an eight with "Torpedo" styling, come in and get the only car that has it—the leader of Pontiac's 1940 line of 17 sixes and eights...all supremely smart and brilliantly beautiful!

PONTIAC SIX PRICES BEGIN AT $783
*Delivered at Pontiac, Mich. Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment—white sidewall tires and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

FOOD SALES HERE

IN HIDDEN TAXES

Families in Boone County pay an estimated $12,558 in hidden taxes annually through their purchases of food, a National Consumers Tax Commission survey showed today.

"Nearly eight per cent of the total food bill represents shifted taxes buried in the price of every purchase," the report stated.

"These unseen levies, for example, take 11 per cent of butter costs, 6½ per cent of bread costs, 10½ per cent of sliced bacon and 14½ per cent of the cost of coffee."

The report was made public through Mrs. Paul Wickliffe, of Greenville, national committee members, who with Mrs. J. E. Warren, of Mayfield, state director, leads NCTC study groups in about 144 communities in the educational crusade against "unreasonable consumer-penalizing taxes."

"Chief offenders, and those that fall most heavily on lower income families, are hidden taxes. These are levied originally against the producer, manufacturer, shipper and distributor. Unable to absorb the load, each must pass on a share of its taxes and the consumer ultimately pays them, usually without knowing it," the report added.

The food tax estimate was computed from NCTC averages based on last available U. S. Bureau of the Census figures which placed 1935 food sales in the county at $161,000. Government estimates of total sales for the country last year approximate the total in the 1935 study, the NCTC said.

Gayety Theater News

Fri. & Sat.—"Charlie Chan"
Sunday and Monday—"Blondie"
Tuesday—"Way Down South."
Wed. and Thursday, Nov. 22 & 23
—"In Name Only."

Charlie Chan chases his most baffling set of clues in the city of quick divorce in "Charlie Chan in Reno," the latest 20th Century-Fox thriller, which brings Sidney Toler to the Gayety Theatre on Friday and Saturday.

When a glamor girl's life is cut short with a pair of scissors and one of the loveliest ladies in this playground of beautiful women is accused of murder, the famous Earl Derr Biggers sleuth files half-way round the world to solve the crime.

Friday and Saturday the first chapter of a new serial "Dick Tracy G-Man" will be shown at the Gayety. Don't miss any of this big thriller.

"Blondie Takes a Vacation" third of Columbia's delightful comedies based on the popular Chic Young comic strip will be on the screen at the Gayety Sunday and Monday with Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake and Little Larry Simms heading the cast.

See the funny paper family at a summer resort, with Blondie and Dagwood neck-deep in hilarious vacation woes.

Glorious days of song and sunshine in fabulous Louisiana... A brave lad fighting for the happiness of others... Dangerous nights in storied old New Orleans where adventure walks hand in hand with gayety. This is the background of Bobby Breen's biggest picture "Way Down South." He's a real American boy, fun loving and down to earth, with his thrilling voice in the lush strains of immortal spirituals... Human and heartwarming is this tale of youthful courage and high ideals. A picture you will be proud to see, an entertainment to fulfill your yearning for glamour, mirth and melody.

Three top-notch favorites of Hollywood's star row are united for "In Name Only."
Carole Lombard, Cary Grant and Kay Francis share the stellar honors in this dramatic entertainment interestingly investigating a poignant marital crisis in the lives of a couple and another woman. Miss Lombard, an attractive young widow, falls deeply in love with the married Grant, but does not reveal this. Grant, determined to marry her, asks his mercenary wife, Miss Francis, to release him. With an eye on Grant's wealth, his wife refuses, and the story marches on in a surprise-packed development of the complications.

REDUCTION OF ACREAGE URGED

REGULATE PRODUCTION ACCORDING TO CONSUMPTION BY VOTING FOR TOBACCO QUOTAS NOVEMBER 21.

The American tobacco grower is now faced with the largest amount of tobacco of all types on hand in the history of the nation, 3,795,500,000 pounds and this year's (1939) crop of 1,645,000,000, a new high for a single year's production. These figures have recently been released by the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Every tobacco grower will agree that supply and demand regulate the price he receives for any commodity and especially tobacco, as has been thoroughly demonstrated in the past, and especially when the price of burley tobacco was increased from 10 1/2 cents per pound in 1933 to 35 1/2 cents per pound in 1938 by curtailing production of the 1934 and 1935 crops.

November 21, 1939 gives the tobacco grower an opportunity to use the same business principles that all successful business in the nation has used in the past, an opportunity to regulate production according to consumption—by voting quotas in the burley belt. If we continue to produce tobacco in excess of consumption it necessarily means a price below cost of production which in turn means a continuation of depressed business and financial failures in the tobacco belt.

So, let's all, tobacco growers, come out Tuesday November 21st and vote tobacco quotas for the 1940 crop and cease cut-throat competition, by overproduction which is guaranteed not to exist on account of the penalty of 10c per pound on all tobacco produced in 1940 above the acreage allotted to each grower.

Shoppers Responding To Opening Announcements Of Covington Merchants

Covington shoppers are responding to the Covington merchants' Pre-Christmas Dividend Club's opening announcements with far greater reception and zeal than on previous occasions. Stores co-operating with this plan find Christmas shopping getting heavier day by day, while stocks are complete.

However, the main reason may be due to the fact that shoppers are naturally very anxious to get a share of the $650 that will be distributed publicly on the evening of Dec. 15, at Seventh and Madison, Covington. The first award will be $250—72 cash awards in all.

This issue of The Recorder carries the announcements of various Covington stores, inviting our readers to shop with them and thus have an opportunity to share in the $650 cash dividend awards. Shoppers are requested to mention The Recorder when asking for their Pre-Christmas Dividend Club Coupons.

Tobacco Quotas Carry 85.5 Percent In County

Eight hundred twenty-nine Boone County tobacco growers went to the polls on Tuesday, Nov. 21 and voted 85.5 percent in favor of the tobacco marketing quotas for the 1940 crop to be sold during the 1940 and 1941 marketing season, according to Mark Cook, Chairman of the County Committee.

The rain during the day brought the first tobacco season in weeks and caused many farmers to stay away from the polls. Growers showed a decisive desire for quotas however, voting 709 favoring to 120 opposed.

Petersburg, the banner community in the past three referendums, voted 62 votes favoring, none opposed or again 100 percent favoring quotas. Incomplete reports at the time the paper goes to press gave 80 counties voting 89.2 percent favoring quotas.

750 Applications Signed Under 1939 ACP

Nine hundred eighty Boone county farms are eligible for payment under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program. Seven hundred and fifty of these had signed on Tuesday of this week, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The remaining applications may be signed in the County Office in Burlington at the convenience of the cooperators. Delay in signing applications will cause delay in receiving payments.

This is the earliest date that applications have been signed since the inauguration of the A. C. Program. This means that farmers should receive payments earlier than in previous years.

CONSTANCE MAN NAMED CHM'N.

OF COUNTY CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE—CAMPAIGN WILL OPEN IN BOONE COUNTY NOVEMBER 30TH.

R. V. Lents, Principal of the Constance School has accepted the chairmanship of the 1939 Christmas Seal Sale in Boone County, it was announced by E. K. Smith, Executive Secretary of the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association. This will be the thirty-third year that the nation-wide educational campaign against tuberculosis has been carried on by tuberculosis associations both state and local.

"Protect your home from tuberculosis is the slogan of the campaign," said Mr. Smith. No home is safe from this disease until all homes are safe. Tuberculosis is still the leading cause of death in the age group from 15 to 45. This group includes our young people, and men and women in the most productive years of their lives.

The Christmas Seal campaign will open in Boone County Thanksgiving Day (November 30) and continue through Christmas, Mr. Lents announced. The purchase of these gay stamps makes possible a continuation of those measures which are bringing about the gradual eradication of the disease. The civic-minded people of Boone County may be depended on to make this campaign a successful one.

According to Mr. Lents, all the schools in Boone county are co-operating in the sale of the seals, and each school has received an ample supply. The pupils will offer the seals for sale, and will make a house to house canvass. The chairman announces that some patrons will receive the seals in blocks of 100 and may return the money in the self-addressed envelope enclosed with the seals. He urges those that receive the seals to mail them the dollar or the amount for the seals that you wish to use. Your school will receive full credit for the sale.

Due to the fact that Boone County has no facilities to take care of tuberculosis patients, and has no organization to spend the money to aid directly in the fight, the county's part of the funds will go to aid in the hospitalization of the Boone County Schools. Much was done last year to purchase medical supplies, first aid kits, cots, etc., from the sale of the seals, but still the schools are not adequately supplied with medicine and cots.

Many times pupils become ill at school and may live so far from the school that going home is out of the question. If the school is not supplied with cots where the pupil may lie down he must tough it out until the bus is ready to take him home. By taking proper precautions we may be able to prevent many cases of tuberculosis among our young people. Buy Christmas Seals. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. "We expect to use the county's part in attempting to prevent tuberculosis," Mr. Lents said.

Tobacco Demonstrations Interests Local Growers

Good attendance was recorded at four tobacco stripping and grading demonstrations held in the county on Monday and Tuesday of this week according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Mr. Marion M. Pittman, Federal tobacco grader, was in charge of presenting the demonstrations. He stated that Boone county growers were doing an excellent job in their stripping and grading work but a better understanding as to uses made of the various grades of tobacco would aid many growers to receive a better price for their crops.

Certs giving the prices paid for the various grades of tobacco were presented those attending the meetings. Mr. Pittman pointed out that the relative prices for the different grade had varied considerably during the past nine years. This variation is strictly a result of the law of supply and demand, and if farmers will keep these changes in mind it helps in producing more profitable crops.

Mrs. A. B. Renaker is spending a few days this week visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. M. Townsend at Falmouth. On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Renaker will be guest of honor at a tea given by Mrs. Townsend, to which 150 guests have been invited.

Hunting Season Opens Friday, November 24th

Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, calls to the attention of all hunters the fact that the season on rabbits and Bob White quail opens on November 24th.

The hunter's attention is also called to the proclamation issued by Governor Chandler more than a month ago setting aside November 30 as Thanksgiving Day. As the result of this proclamation the hunter will be able to enjoy that particular holiday in the fields in the pursuit of the rabbit or quail. President Roosevelt proclaimed November 23 as Thanksgiving Day, but due to the confusion raised by this change, Governor Chandler proclaimed the last Thursday in the month as the day on which to give thanks.

The Division of Game and Fish has received numerous requests within the past several weeks asking that the hunting season be moved up one day in order to have the opening holiday in the fields on November 23, but this could only be done by an act of the Kentucky Legislature and as Thanksgiving Day will fall just one week later, on November 30, that will not be necessary.

From reports received from every county in the state this is going to be the best hunting season Kentucky has had in many years. The day of the Boone first game on the large known to the Indians as "Happy Hunting Ground."

RED CROSS DRIVE MEETING SUCCESS

THROUGHOUT STATE IS REPORT OF WORKERS—SOME COUNTIES HAVE SURPASSED HALF-WAY QUOTA MARK.

Red Cross roll call workers throughout Kentucky reported more members enrolled last week than in any previous first week in the history of Kentucky roll calls, according to information from leaders and solicitors themselves.

While the Kentucky Red Cross has adopted the slogan, "Every Adult a Member" in some counties the decision was reached to adopt instead a fixed quota and in most of these the quotas were above the half-way mark when the summaries were made Saturday.

In a few counties, in which the number enrolled already had passed the quota mark of last year, workers continued with the expressed purpose of giving to every adult in their counties opportunity to join the Red Cross.

Workers in the Ohio River counties participated around themselves warmly welcomed wherever they went, for many of the families they visited recalled the appalling conditions of early 1937 and the prompt action of the American Red Cross in coming to their assistance.

The cities of Kentucky last week enrolled a large number of members evidenced their continued interest by joining. Few were the persons approached who refused to join, if not members already, or to continue their membership if enrolled last year.

Persons who may be overlooked by the workers—and they will be—may mail their contributions in to the county chairmen.

HEBRON GIRL IS HONORED

MISS LAURA KATHERINE EVANS TO BE LISTED IN WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN COLLEGES.

Miss Laura Katherine Evans, Hebron, Ky., who will receive her B. S. degree from Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College in June, is among those students who will be listed in the 1939-40 issue of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. The book will be released in January or February.

This publication is published through the cooperation of over 500 American universities and colleges. It is the only means of national recognition for graduates which is devoid of politics, fees and dues. Several students from accredited colleges are selected each year, by an unprejudiced committee, for their biographies to appear in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. These books are placed in the hands of hundreds of companies and others who annually recruit outstanding students for employment.

The purpose of Who's Who is to serve as an incentive for students to get the most out of their college careers; as a means of compensation to students for what they have already done; as a recommendation to the business world; and as a standard of measurement for students comparable to such agencies as Phi Beta Kappa and the Rhodes Scholarship Award.

Miss Evans is a member of Kappa Delta Pi at Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College, is on the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, is a member of the Elementary Council and of the World Affairs Club, and is a student assistant to the Dean of Women.

WEED GROWERS HEAR ADDRESS

BY O. M. FARRINGTON, STATE A. A. ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER AT WALTON MONDAY NIGHT—100 PRESENT.

O. M. Farrington, State A. A. Administrative Officer, addressed approximately 100 tobacco growers in a meeting at Walton on Monday night, November 20th. He outlined the great possibilities that farmers have to improve their economic positions and to secure higher prices for their products through the use of the A. A. programs.

Farrington stated that the new A. A. law giving farmers power to control a market was a strictly democratic form of government in which the farmers themselves decided whether or not and when they wanted to use the production control plan. Farmers may use this plan only in years of overproduction, and then only when two thirds majority or a 2 to 1 vote, favors the use of quotas in a national referendum on the particular crop. Crop insurance, crop loans, parity payments and agricultural conservation are also included under the new farm act.

CARD OF THANKS

Jake Cleek and I want to thank each person that came and fought the fire and worked so hard, risking their lives to help us, when our home burned. We do appreciate the Walton fire company arriving so quickly and working so hard to control the blaze; we appreciate the ones that packed all breakables and put them away. Our friends came to our help when we needed them most—we certainly appreciate everything each person did, and I wish I could thank each individually.

Most sincerely,
Jake and Emily Cleek, Walton.

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

ESTABLISHED 1875

BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1939

VOLUME 64

TOBACCO MART TO OPEN LATE

IN COVINGTON AND LEXINGTON—OTHER MARKETS: EXPECTED TO FOLLOW SUIT, ACCORDING TO REPORTS.

Plans for opening the Kenton Looseleaf Tobacco Warehouse in Covington December 5th will be held up until December 12th, according to an announcement of the manager of this warehouse Monday.

At the Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse, approximately 70,000 pounds of the weed has already arrived. The quality of the tobacco has been good, it was reported. Sales at the Northern Kentucky warehouse will be held five days each week. Following the usual holiday recess, sales will be resumed until the latter part of February.

Herbert Whitley, manager of the Kenton house stated that the 4-H tobacco show will be moved up to Monday, December 18th, due to the opening being extended one week.

The chant of R. G. Kimman, one of the country's outstanding auctioneers, will again be heard at the Kenton Looseleaf Warehouse. He is well known throughout this county, having handled several large real estate sales here during the past few years.

The Lexington Tobacco Board of Trade Monday delayed opening of the Lexington burley market from December 4th to December 11th because of "unforeseen emergency."

What the remainder of the state's markets would do was not immediately ascertained, but two cities announced they would fall in line by opening December 12th. They were Hopkinsville and Maysville. Other markets are expected to fall in line, having their opening on December 12th.

Virtually all of the Kentucky burley markets open after the Lexington auctions get under way.

The following statement was issued from the Lexington board: "Due to an unforeseen emergency and inability of some buyers to get buyers and other help from southern markets the opening date has been postponed to December 11. But this change in the opening is in no way to establish a precedent to affect or change the future opening date as set forth in the by-laws of the Tobacco Board of Trade, namely, the first Monday in December."

Mrs. William Huey Returns Home Wed

Mrs. William Huey, who has been suffering from a severe attack of the streptococcus infection of the throat at Booth Hospital, returned to her home Wednesday of this week.

Her many friends throughout the county will be glad to know that she is much improved.

FORMER BOONE COUNTIAN DIES

ELMO GAINES SUCCUMBS AT HOME OF BROTHER IN ST. HELENS, ORE.—SERVICES HELD TUESDAY.

Elmo Gaines, 67, a native of Boone county and for more than 15 years an accountant in the office of the state auditor, Frankfort, died Tuesday of last week at the home of his brother, St. Helens, Ore.

Mr. Gaines was well known throughout Boone county, and during the time he resided at Erlanger visited the county very frequently.

Since his retirement two years ago, he had made his home with his brother James Gaines of St. Helens, Ore.

The body arrived at the Philip Tallaferro funeral home, Erlanger Monday, and services were held at 2:00 Tuesday at the Bullittsburg cemetery, with Rev. J. W. Campbell officiating.

He is survived by three brothers, James Gaines, of Oregon, West Gaines, of Burlington, and Ab Gaines, of Erlanger, and two sisters Miss Anna Gaines, Cincinnati, and Mrs. Emma Kirkhead, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Philip Tallaferro, Erlanger funeral director was in charge of arrangements.

Jr. O. U. A. M. Baseball Club Sponsor Dance At Zimmer Gardens

The Erlanger Jr., O. U. A. M. baseball club is sponsoring a dance to be given at Zimmer's pavilion, at Florence, Ky., on Saturday evening, Dec. 2nd. Admission will be 35c per person. A floor show will also be offered.

In appreciation of the kindness of the many persons who have attended past dances by the club, a real first class attraction has been secured for Saturday night's affair. At quite an expense, the club has contracted with Jerry Lane to appear in person with his Cotton Club band to provide the music. This band is composed of versatile, capable, performers and musicians, and in demand among the smarter night clubs in all parts of the country. They are currently playing at the Cotton Club, Cincinnati. Admiring the feat accomplished by the Erlanger baseball team the past season, when they won the State and National Jr. O. U. A. M. championships, the band has consented to appear under conditions and terms that would otherwise be out of reach according to the small admission to be charged.

Chester Bonner, manager of the team is also chairman of the dance committee.

Much Interest Shown In Homemaker's Play

County-wide interest is being shown in the play "Those Husband of Ours," which will be given by the Hebron Homemaker's Club at the Hebron school on Thursday, December 7, at 8 p. m.

An outstanding feature of the evening's entertainment will be special music by a quartet composed of Mr. Charles Kaye, Eugene Davenport, Ralph Baker, Russell Hodge and Miss Vivian Law as pianist. An interesting repertoire of songs "Those Husband of Ours" have been arranged.

Mrs. David Pope is directing the play, assisted by her committee composed of Mrs. Sterling Dickey, Mrs. Russell Hodge, Mrs. L. Crutcher, Mrs. Myron Garnett and Mrs. Geo. Casper.

The entire cast is composed of Homemakers, Ruby Hollis having the leading role and Dell Graves as her husband. Don't miss seeing this play, it's full of fun, mirth and humor.

Walton, Hebron and Hamilton emerged the victors in conference games at games at Burlington, Florence and New Haven.

Huey led the attack for the Burlington boys with eight points, while Kottmyer was high point man for Hebron with ten.

New Haven's Reserves won the preliminary game by a score of 11 to 10.

Hamilton trounced the Florence Knights Friday night on the Florence hardwood by a score of 29 to 22. The Reserves of Hamilton were also winners by a score of 33 to 15.

Mr. Morehead leaves his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Hood Morehead; two daughters, Mrs. Essie Goodridge and Mrs. Sadie Humphrey; two sons, Robert and Earl Morehead; and 14 grandchildren, all of Taylorsport; and a sister, Mrs. Ida Hale, Grant, Ky., and a brother, Oden Morehead, Cincinnati.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Matt Riggs; his daughter, Mrs. Katie Riggs; two brothers, Oscar Hodges, of Indiana, Eliza Hodges of Boone county.

LOCAL NIMROD AT STILL CRACK SHOT

R. J. Akin, 82, Burlington, still is a crack shot at the age of 82. On the first day of the hunting season Mr. Akin bagged 8 rabbits and 3 quail out of ten shots. Since that time he has bagged 10 rabbits and five birds out of 17 shots.

This is a splendid average for younger men, and we doubt if there is anyone in the county at the age of Mr. Akin who can boast of such a record.

Mr. Akin operates a farm near Burlington, and although he has passed his 82nd birthday, is still hale and hearty.

KEEN JOHNSON NAMED CHM'N.

OF 1940 INFANTILE PARALYSIS CAMPAIGN—ADVISORY COMMITTEE ALSO NAMED, ACCORDING TO ANNOUNCEMENT

Gov. Keen Johnson, who has accepted the state chairmanship in the 1940 "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign, announced today that seven members of a Kentucky Advisory Committee has been named. Other members may be added.

Those already appointed, all of whom have accepted, are:

Barry Bingham, Louisville, president and publisher of The Courier Journal and Louisville Times.

Judge Richard P. Dietzman, Louisville, attorney and former chief justice of the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

W. Gaston Coke, Auburn, farm leader and president of the Logan County Farm Bureau.

Judge Mac Swinford, Cynthiana, United States district judge.

L. B. Wilson, Covington, business leader and owner of Radio Station WOKY.

Gilmore N. Nunn, Lexington, president of Southern Network Radio Stations, and former publisher of The Lexington Herald.

An intensive effort will be made in every corner of the state to collect funds for combating this dread disease. The drive will conclude with the celebration on Jan. 30, 1940, of the 58th birthday of President Roosevelt, who himself was a victim of the malady and died today its mark.

Half of all funds collected will be retained in the county where raised, for expenditure by a local chapter of the national foundation. The other half will be turned over to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, for research in prevention of the disease, for epidemic first aid, public education, and developing better methods of after treatment.

The campaign will include a "March of Dimes" which proved so successful last year; a "March of Sport," which benefits athletic events; and various parties, dances and special events to end with the celebration of the President's birthday.

State activities will start in the next few weeks, but the greater part of the public participation, especially in the March of Dimes, will take place during January.

Last year Kentucky raised $22,230.98 in this campaign. This year the state's tentative quota has been set at $37,000, as part of a national quota of $3,000,000. County quotas will be set in proportion.

President Roosevelt, in endorsing this year's drive, announced appointment of Keith Morgan of New York to again act as national chairman of the Committee for the celebration of the President's birthday, directing the campaign.

Morgan, in turn, announced that state chairman already have accepted appointment in 46 of the 48 states.

Mrs. Sarah Williamson

Mrs. Sarah Williamson, age 84, passed away at the home of her son, Grant Williamson, Petersburg, Tuesday night, after an illness of about one month.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday morning at 11:00 a. m. at the Bellevue Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Bellevue cemetery.

She leaves Mrs. Tena Gary, of Rising Sun, a half-sister; two sons Grant Williamson, of Petersburg and Ryburn Williamson, of California; three grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Chambers & Grubbs, Walton, will have charge of arrangements.

LARGE NUMBER TAKE TO FIELDS

ON OPENING DAY OF HUNTING SEASON—1000 LICENSES ISSUED IN BOONE COUNTY THIS YEAR.

The sport of kings—hunting—took hundreds of men, women and even children into the fields of Boone County, last Friday, opening day of the hunting season. Quail and rabbit hunting in this county is reported to be fair, even though many sportsmen were worried due to the drought of August, September and October.

C. D. Benson, County Clerk, estimated that approximately 1000 hunting licenses had been issued in the county and said that books had been distributed throughout the county where licenses are being issued that he had not received a report of.

At this writing no one has been injured while hunting in the fields of this county, and is a record for which we should be proud.

The Division of Game and Fish aided by the sportsmen's clubs of the various counties released more than 18,000 Bob White Quail in the fields of Kentucky during late March and early April of last spring, a restocking program, such as this state has not experienced in many years. Completion of this project now shows more birds for the nimrods and that means more game in the bag and more sport for those persons who enjoy bird hunting.

Nothing was done in the way of replenishing our rabbits, but they seem to have already taken care of themselves if reports of their increase over past years can be taken as reliable information.

The daily bag limit on quail is 12 with not more than two days' bag limit in possession at any time. The daily bag limit on rabbits is 8 with not more than two days' bag limit in possession at any time.

It is strictly against the law to sell quail at any time and any one caught either buying or selling this game bird is liable to an arrest.

Rabbits may be bought and sold but as the law reads that no person may have in his possession more than two days' bag limit—16 rabbits—this means that all grocery men or others who might deal in rabbits will have to hold their supply down to a total of 16 at all times.

RED CROSS NURSE IS SUGGESTED

FOR BOONE COUNTY AT MEETING OF RED CROSS WORKERS INTERESTED PARTIES URGED TO SIGN BLANK.

At the initial meeting of the Red Cross Annual Roll Call Workers a unanimous expression was given that Boone County should have a Health Nurse. If you are interested in seeing a program of health, superintended by a Red Cross Nurse, please fill in the blank below and mail it immediately to the Rev. Mr. J. Russell Cross, Chairman, Boone County Chapter of Red Cross.

It is not an accident that the Red Cross nurse is regarded by most people as the symbol of the American Red Cross. From the total Red Cross nurse reserve which numbers 41,500 qualified nurses come the nurses for any armed conflict, which would involve the United States as well as the skilled manpower for peace-time health service. This work includes nursing care for disaster victims, visiting nursing services, public health programs, inoculation campaigns to stamp out epidemic disease, and health education to teach family members how to care for sickness at home.

The point that these American nurses are an adjunct of American preparedness can not be overstressed. They stand ready to participate in war work only in the event America is forced to abandon her neutrality. The constitution America's nursing preparedness for national emergency or crisis.

Red Cross nurses have served in 2,000 major disasters and in two wars since the founding of their parent organization. Their greatest challenge arose in the world war and in the 1937 Ohio Valley flood which forced more than half a million persons from their homes.

FIRE LOSS IS SET AT $75,000

IN WARSAW—FIRE STARTED IN PROJECTION ROOM OF THEATER—200 PEOPLE ATTRACTED BY FIRE.

Two of the largest buildings in Warsaw, county seat of Gallatin county were destroyed by fire Sunday in the worst fire in the history of the community. Loss was estimated from $75,000 to $100,000, and a family of four narrowly escaped and a Covington fireman miraculously escaped serious injury.

Roy Wilson, projection room operator stated that the fire broke out as the film was being shown. He threw a sweater over the machine, hoping to smother the flame. Instead an explosion sent him fleeing from the room.

The thirty-five patrons, quickly sensing what was happening, left the show house. Wilson sped to the apartment above the theater where he and his family lived. Smoke filled the stairway and he was forced to crawl close to the floor. Part way up the steps he met his wife and three children. He led the four to safety, and the flames enveloped the building, a two-story frame structure.

The flames swept through two WPA offices, the theater, the county agent's office and the Wilson apartment.

By this time the adjoining building, a two-story brick, also had caught fire. A lawyer's office, a poolroom, the office of Sheriff Spencer, County Judge Bell and Dr. E. C. Threlkeld, a shoe shop, the telephone exchange, the apartment of Mrs. Whitehead and a ladies dress shop were swept.

The third building, the Brown Hotel, operated by Bruce Meyers, began to smoke and the stores across the street were searching. Within a few minutes help had arrived from a number of towns and Covington and the task of getting the blaze under control began. It was between 1 and 2 a. m. Monday when the fire was definitely halted.

Approximately 2000 sightseers from Boone, Carroll, Kenton and Gallatin counties were attracted by the fire.

County Agent William T. Shaw stated that all of the farm records in his office were destroyed by the blaze.

Christmas Seal Campaign Merits Support Of Everyone

Washington, Nov. 29.—The campaign against tuberculosis, made possible by Christmas Seals, merits the support of all people. President Roosevelt said today in praising the activities of the National Tuberculosis Association.

The 33rd annual Christmas Seal Campaign of the National Association and its nearly two thousand affiliated groups throughout the country starts on December 1.

"As the Christmas season approaches, my mind is drawn to the fact that it is again time for all of us to give our support to the sale of Christmas Seals," President Roosevelt said.

"This is such a well established custom in the United States that it seems hardly necessary again to call the attention of the people to its importance."

"Tuberculosis still menaces the lives of all our citizens and it leads in the cause of death of those between the ages of fifteen and forty-five. The work that has been done by the National Tuberculosis Association in the prevention of this dreaded disease merits the continued support of all the people of our country."

The Constance Homemaker's club will have a bake sale of all home baked goods at the Constance Christian Church, Saturday December 9th at 1 o'clock. Everyone welcome.

TASTY BUSINESS

There is many a reader who would favorably entertain the thought of an appointment as official turkey taster. There are a large number of people who didn't know there was such a thing, and a job that is a serious business, too. Every year, before our Thanksgiving, four tasters gather round a table at the Agriculture Department and proceed to work on a fowl to determine whether government experiments for a model turkey are more successful than the one worked on last year. Turkey lines change and today's fowl has shorter legs, a plumper body and a broader back than ye olden bird. It would be difficult to get the huge twenty-five pounder of grandmother's day into the kitchen of many modern apartments. You will see lots of housewives scurrying around trying to find a roaster large enough to accommodate the fifteen pound one she is cooking. And so these official tasters begin their meal, judging whether we are better off than at this time last year, and they taste with a thought to the future. Considering the fact that this land of boggies consumes about 17½ million a year, it is evident that we must attempt to supply an A 1 model.

A FAIR TRIAL
Let us judge Earl Browder purely on the grounds of his violation of the law. Let us try him for traveling abroad on an American passport under a false name. Let us dismiss from the suit that he serves as general secretary of the Communist Party in the U. S. His trial is dated for the end of this month. We shall see then the penalty for violation of our laws. He is being tried impartially, on legal grounds. To be tried as a Communist would benefit his party, they would contend a man was being persecuted for his beliefs rather than his crime. He stands trial as any citizen, believing any religious or political way he may choose.

WELCOME NEWS
To local readers and the hundred thousand farm families, the latter suffering from droughts and floods of recent months, comes the welcome news that fifty million dollars will be distributed for loans relief grants and food. The farmer who must have help to exist until his harvest of next year, the families whose crops have been damaged by floods, tenant farmers unable to borrow from merchants upon next year's crop, all will be helped through this program of assistance. Those folks who long for "30 Every Thursday" or "30 Every Monday" should think that these needy homes are seeking bread and milk and not "ham and eggs."

THEY'LL TRY IT AGAIN
Now that the two fairs have added and subtracted, they close up shop with the budget far from balancing. The loss on each fair is a let-down from the great expectations of the advance literature when the expositions first came to town. There have been many reasons given for the failure to put it over, but the one most generally agreed upon by those who know, point to the lack of proper advertising. Often we have warned in our paper the need of advertising, and the satisfactory results when the right goods are put over in the right way we have pointed out. They hope to make up this deficit when they reopen the fairs next year. Being wiser due to this experience, they may manage to take some of the red off the books.

AS IT AGAIN
As is our yearly and unpleasant custom, the editor needs must sit himself down and type on the topic of the "game hog." The subject comes with each hunting season and is surely a distasteful one for those who believe in sport as "sporting." If the fishing season hasn't brought the game hog to the fore the hunting season will be sure to do so. There will be the sound of many shots fired here in Boone county, and all over the country where sections are open for game. And everywhere there is the game there is the game hog. The man who slaughters illegally without thought of prosecution, killing game protected by law, is the hunter who is the menace to clean sport. What would be a better term for that fellow who bags his game over and above the appetites of himself, family and friends, and lets the over-supply spoil or fester his dogs the way some hunters kill, hunting will indeed become a lost art and a sad sport. States should tighten up on their prosecutions and though a good sportsman may hesitate to report infringements of the law, he is harming his own chances and killing his own sport if he doesn't.

BETTER GARDENS ARE PIKE'S FIRST NEED
Better gardens are the first requirement for better living in Pike county, says Dorris K. Wheeler, county home demonstration agent, in her report of a land-use survey.

A nine-point program to improve living conditions follows:

Better gardens, with larger variety of vegetables. More fertilizing and spraying and more late gardens and more winter gardens are needed. Vegetables should be grown for current needs and for canning.

Also, more small fruit and better home orchards are needed.

More and better canning of fruits and vegetables, including a larger variety; less pickling needed.

Larger and better poultry flocks to produce eggs and meat for home use and to sell.

Each family needs two cows, or at least one good cow.

Calves should be raised and fed for home meat supply, instead of selling them.

Running water, screens, washing machines and sanitary toilets needed.

Walks, lawns, flowers and shrubs needed about homes.

Better medical services are badly needed.

Any smart girl in Boone County can tell you that a hundred rings on the telephone don't mean all ways one ring on the finger.

SPREADING THE GOOD NEWS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 10:24-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let him that heareth say, Come.—Revelation 22:17.

"Bewilderment." That is the word which the president of a great American university recently said accurately described the present condition of the minds of men. Little wonder that the men of the world are bewildered, for they are like mariners who sail an unknown sea under a heavy sky and without a compass. Without Christ and without God's Word men cannot be anything but bewildered.

That which gives us even greater concern is that many who are Christians, who really know the Guide and who have the Guidebook, are also declaring themselves to be utterly bewildered. What is the reason? Obviously they have not read the Book and have not talked with their Lord.

Our lesson for the coming Lord's Day touches on one of the problems which causes many Christians to question God's love and care. They find that their efforts to testify for Him by word or life meet with a violent reaction from a bitter world, and they discover that such a life involves personal sacrifice and frequently results in even the members of their own families turning against them. Can this be God's way of dealing with His people? The answer is found in His Word. The Christian is to be

I. Fearless in a Hostile World (vv. 24-28, 32, 33).

Note carefully that he is not to be silent (vv. 32, 33). We deny our Lord when we fail to speak for Him when we ought to do so. Christianity is not something to be hidden in one's own bosom, a fire to warm one's own soul. It is good news which is to be proclaimed even from the housetops.

But, someone will say, when I do speak there is opposition; they call me names, they threaten to kill me. Yes, and what of it? "The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his Lord" (v. 24). They called Jesus a devil. They even crucified Him. Should we then expect to be borne to glory on flowers beds of ease? God knows all about this, yes, even about the hidden and whispered plottings of evil men (v. 28). He will deal with them and judge them.

We need not fear men. The most they can do is to kill the body. Let us consider the eternal God, who not only may take the life out of the body, but is also able to cast both soul and body into hell (v. 28). God is not as a theory, a bit of pious imagination. He is real. He is all-powerful. Why then should we be fearful if we serve Him in faithful devotion?

II. Fearless in Personal Life (vv. 29-31).
It is one thing to be bold in the midst of battle. It is quite another thing to be fearless in the quiet of one's own room, or of one's own heart. Satan is expert at that point. He comes to us with his humiliating accusations of our unworthiness, of our sinfulness, of our weakness. Sadly enough our own knowledge of ourselves confirms his dismal judgment.

But wait! If we are Christians we are not our own. We are bought with a price, the precious blood of Christ. We belong to Him. He is our advocate with the Father. Let Him meet our accuser. What does He say? He tells us that He has numbered the very hairs of our head (v. 30), that even a dying sparrow concerns Him, and that we are worth more than many sparrows (v. 31). He is our Father, our Saviour, Friend and Brother. Let us look up and be without fear.

III. Fearless in the Family Circle (vv. 34-39).
Here, after all, is the acid test of discipleship. Christ did not come in order to stir up needless strife between members of the family, but He well knew that divisions would come as the result of true discipleship. Men who are ordinarily kind and cultured in their dealings with their friends and families but who do not know Christ, can become like veritable demons against any one in that circle who hears the call of Christ and follows Him.

No human tie, no matter how intimate or precious, is to be permitted to stand between the individual and his devotion to Christ. If it does, Christ is evidently no longer first. He is no longer Lord of all in the life, and if He is not Lord of all, He is not Lord at all.

While it seems almost paradoxical to say it, Scripture teaches and experience demonstrates that if you keep your life for yourself and your own interests, it will die in your very hands and you will lose it. If you give your life in glad abandonment to God, on the other hand, you will receive it back from Him transformed, enriched, and glorified by His grace and blessing.

MORE INCOME FOR FARMERS IN 1940 Improved income for farmers next year is the forecast in the annual outlook report of the Department of Markets and Rural Finance at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Farmers will not only have more to sell next year, but they will receive higher prices according to the outlook at this time. This will be true especially for livestock, dairy products, poultry, fruit and vegetables. Tobacco, cotton and wheat growers may not fare so well.

Concerning the 1940 burley tobacco crop, the report says: "Prices of burley tobacco from the 1940 crop should be similar to those of the last two seasons if production is held close to the annual consumption of about 315 million pounds."

The use of burley tobacco apparently has settled down to about 315 million pounds a year, with no reason to increase production. The present carry-over of burley is considered not excessive, but might become excessive by the growing of a big crop next year.

Effects of the war are discounted in the College's report. "Export demand on the whole is expected to be somewhat greater in 1940. Hasty conclusions, however, based on experience during the World War, should be avoided. The capacity of the world for the production of basic foodstuffs and raw materials is considerably greater than in 1914 and the supply and demand situation for particular commodities is materially different."

The future of dark tobacco continues uncertain, the report sets forth. The war has disrupted exchange. If foreign exchange is available, tobacco doubtless will be purchased. Stocks of tobacco in foreign countries are said to be sufficient for two years.

The outlook for sheep, it is stated, is more favorable than for any other livestock, due to lack of material increase in sheep numbers. The war may be expected to offset any increase in sheep.

While beef cattle are increasing in numbers, being about two million head more than a year ago, "Kentucky cattleman appear to be in a favorable position, as the fall season, when most Kentucky cattle are marketed, is expected to be a relatively stronger market."

With hogs, as well as with other meat animals, improved demand for meat, resulting from better times generally, may be expected to offset any increase in numbers.

Production of dairy products is expected to continue high, as the number of cows is increasing. However, there should be improved demand for dairy products as a result of improved business.

The outlook for Kentucky poultry raisers is considered rather unfavorable for the rest of this year and for the first half of next year. Heavy marketings of both poultry and eggs are expected, and prices may be lower than last year and lower than the 1928-37 average.

GIVES AGES WHEN FRUIT TREES BEAR Don't be in a hurry to chop down an apple tree because it has not produced; it may not be old enough. The Northern Spy, for instance, does not bear much before it is 15 years old, according to fruit men at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Most varieties common in Kentucky begin to bear apples in commercial quantities when 8 to 12 years old. These include Grimes Golden, Stayman, Winesap, Jonathan, Transparent, York Imperial, Black Ben, Rome Beauty and Red Delicious.

Golden Delicious, on the other hand, begins producing apples in quantity when 4 to 5 years old, sometimes in the third year. Most peaches produce a light crop in their third year, and cherries begin to yield heavily about the sixth year.

PHOSPHORUS IN TOP SOIL An acre of soil to the depth of 6 or 7 inches weighs about 2,000,000 pounds. In this acre, surface layer, many of the soils of the Bluegrass region of Kentucky contain 2,000 to 5,000 pounds of phosphorus, according to Prof. F. E. Kraker of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. The best bottom soil usually contains 1,500 to 2,000 pounds of phosphorus, and the rest of the soils of Kentucky, 500 to 1,000 pounds, in the surface layer.

Wise homemakers know that curtains and shades should not interfere with ventilation. They should be simply made of easily laundered material, well hung and in harmony with the color scheme. Shades should be light in color and should roll easily.

Do not need elaborate methods of protection in most Kentucky winters. They should, however, be kept out of the wind. A cheap and satisfactory form of protection can be made from roofing paper. They should go into winter with plenty of stoves.

Most turkeys that are full-fed are ready for market at from 26 to 28 weeks of age, and in many cases at 24 weeks, depending on sex, breeding, feeding and weather. It is important to sell only turkeys that are fat and free from small pinfeathers.

Apples, potatoes and other vegetables may be stored in barrels sunk in the ground. The site should drain well. The barrel may be covered with a sack of leaves or litter and boards. A bed of cinders or crushed stone beneath the barrel improves drainage.

INFLECTS PENALTY FOR SOIL ROBBERY

In this county there are farmers who plant the same crops on the same land year after year, without giving a thought to rotation, diversification or improved livestock. On these farms each succeeding year one can see decreasing yields, poorer soil, run-down homes and fences; and each year it becomes more difficult for the farmer to meet his expenses. This is the kind of farmer who finally leaves behind as a heritage, a parcel of land covered with gullies and mortgages, a heavy liability to the ones unfortunate enough to inherit it. Such farmers violate the laws of nature by robbing the soil, and nature in return inflicts a severe penalty. They pay because they fail to recognize the fact that land is God's gift to His children. Runyon Story, Negro Agricultural Agent, Christian County, Kentucky.

THE FARM AND HOME

Diced apples, especially with the red skins left on, are excellent in many kinds of fruit salads. The apples give the crisp texture often needed, particularly with canned fruits. They are sometimes used with equal parts of shredded cabbage.

Dry cleaning fluid should not be stored in the house, in the cellar, in the garage or in any place where matches may be struck or fire carried. It may be used to dispose of surplus quantities after the cleaning job is done.

Electrically operated water systems for farms are discussed in Extension Circular No. 319, published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Extension of rural lines in Kentucky has increased interest in using electricity for pumping water.

If the pasture is poor, growing dairy heifers should receive two to four pounds of grain daily, to keep them growing properly. A good feed consists of 200 pounds of corn-and-cob meal and 100 pounds of bran. Legume hay also should be fed.

Potatoes keep best in a temperature of 34 to 38 degrees, with medium humidity. Ventilation should be good, and the storage kept as dark as possible. Sweet potatoes are cured for several weeks before storing.

Rabies is one of the oldest known diseases. It was described by Aristotle in his writings in the fourth century, B. C. In 1831-89, Pasteur and his collaborators solved the problem of vaccination against the disease.

GRAIN "WEEVIL"

DAMAGE REPORTED

Letters received at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington indicate considerable damage this fall from grain "weevil." This pest, which entomologists call Angoumois grain moth, is extra numerous this year, due, probably, to the past mild winter and the large amount of old corn stored on farms. Cold winters reduce their numbers.

The insect lays eggs in grain in the field, and the worms usually do not cause much damage until the following summer. This fall, however, due to warm weather, the worms have caused injury to corn in the field.

As a means of checking the pest, it is recommended that cribs and granaries be thoroughly cleaned and the sweepings burned. After sweeping out well, scrubbing with hot lye water, a pound to the gallon, should follow, working the solution into the cracks and crevices. If there are flying moths, spray with a commercial fly spray.

Little serious damage occurs unless the corn is held over the following summer. If it is held over, it is better to shell and store in tight bins and fumigate the grain. County agents can give details for fumigating grain in the bin.

It is the men who need the brace! If the corset craze grabs hold!

There isn't a fellow in Boone county who would catch cold if he would leave off his bad habits.

Men of the Mountedby Captain
G. Elliott—Nightingale
Copyright, WNUA GREENHORN IN THE ARCTIC

HOW a hot-headed, quick-tempered young white man paved the way for four ruthless and bloody murders in the arctic wastes, and how the eventual capture and conviction of the murderers called for several years of man-hunting through the Arctic, and the expenditure of almost $100,000, makes one of the best police stories of this new century.

The average Eskimo minds his own business pretty well. Of course he is a bit of a savage and a barbarian, and steeped in weird superstitions, but unless he runs across some witless or unscrupulous white, he usually keeps out of serious trouble.

At any rate, in 1913, a young American named Radford, and a Canadian named Street were at Baker lake, near Chesterfield inlet, Hudson bay. They wanted to push northward into the Arctic circle, and had hired certain Eskimos to act as guides. When the time came to start, however, one of the Eskimos, the best guide of the two, flatly refused to go. He announced that he had changed his mind about going, and that was all there was to it. Instantly, young Radford was beside himself with rage and disappointment, and, grabbing a heavy dog-whip he laid into the Eskimo with all his might and main, and he kept it up until the Eskimo cried for mercy. At this, Radford, by now just about as hoarse with anger, grabbed the Eskimo by his park hood and dragged him to the edge of a hole in the ice. Pointing to the hole Radford told the Eskimo that he acted as guide he, Radford, would drown him in that hole. Street, the Canadian, did everything he could to get his partner, Radford, to stop his foolishness. But Radford was in a clear, though, and his anger boiled for hours afterwards. That is, it boiled until that night when, as the two white lads slept in the hastily pitched camp, relatives of the beaten Eskimo crept silently down upon them and murdered them both in cold blood. They slashed and cut and stabbed, and did a very thorough job of it. Almost a year later the news of the double murder drifted down to the lower Hudson bay country, and an inspector and four men of the Mounted were soon heading north on a manhunt among the Eskimos. That was late in 1913.

During the three years that followed the inspection of the murder men crossed and re-crossed and explored almost half a million square miles of the subarctic wastelands looking for the tribe of Eskimos to which the murderers belonged. (And, as they traveled hither and yon, they also made a very comprehensive survey of areas and regions never before visited by white men.) Then came the first bit of news concerning the tribe they sought. It was to the effect that members of that same tribe had murdered two more white men, two Roman Catholic priests, Fathers Leroux and Rouvier, whom they'd met en route to the Coppermine country. The informer, an Eskimo, had seen the priests' guns and vestments and outfits in the possession of the tribe, and they had told him all about the killings of the white shames.

More years passed as the Men of the Mounted combed the vast region between Hudson bay and the lower Mackenzie country, and then, at last they caught up with the murderers of Radford and Street. While these murderers were being tried, the Men of the Mounted set out once more to get the Eskimos who had murdered the priests, Messrs. Sinnisak and Ulukak, who were eventually captured in the Coppermine country. On trial, the Eskimos admitted the killings, but they kept repeating, too, that they killed in self-defense. The Eskimos responsible for the Baker lake murders declared that after Radford had beaten one of their tribesmen in a fight, he had killed him. They were afraid that he would do the same to others of the tribe. They had done no wrong, they asserted (which was true), so why should Radford try to kill the guide? Radford, they declared, was a white man without a mind, he was crazy, and therefore should die, to protect others. The murderers of the priests put up the same argument, asserting that they had fought in self-defense when the priests had attacked them. The charge that the priests had been never proved, and it highly probable that it was pure fabrication. The fact of the matter was that the Eskimos were frightened and scared for their own safety after Radford's despicable attack on an Eskimo who had every right to change his mind regarding who he would work for. At any rate, before the cases were closed, the Men of the Mounted had spent several years on the chase, and the Dominion government had spent almost $100,000, all of this waste of time and money caused by the stupidity of a greenhorn among the Eskimos.

Men may be born free and equal but often a marriage here in Boone County will put a stop to it. You can't believe much a fellow says when he insists he is the boss of his family.

FARMERS FILE FOR CONSERVATION PAY

On October 31, the final date for performing soil-building practices, approximately 5,000 Kentucky farmers had earned their full allowances and filed applications for agricultural conservation and price adjustment payments with the State Office of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

It is estimated that the work on the 1938 applications for payment is two months ahead of the 1938 schedule. This is due, according to O. M. Farrington, state executive officer, to advanced planning by farmers and to earlier completion of field check-ups. Farm supervisors have checked more than 178,000 of the total of 180,007 farms in the program this year.

ALL ABOUT SOILS TOLD IN CIRCULAR

What makes a good soil, how to build and maintain its fertility—in fact, about everything that one needs to know about the soil—is contained in a 64-page circular published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Chapters discuss the make-up of soils, elements they should contain, supplies of nitrogen, phosphorus, and the use of lime, phosphate, commercial fertilizers and manure. Erosion, tillage, soil water and physical properties of soils also are considered. Ask a county agent or write to the College for Circular No. 54, "Soils—an Elementary Treatise."

SCALLOPED APPLES
MAKE GOOD EATING

In the interests of eating more Kentucky apples, the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture offers the following scalloped apple recipe:

Pare, core and slice tart, firm apples. Place a layer of the sliced apples in a baking dish, sprinkle with sugar and dot with butter. Put in another layer of apples and press down, add more seasoning, and keep on until the dish is heaping full. Cover and cook slowly for about an hour in a moderate oven. Then remove the cover spread buttered bread crumbs over the top, and return to the oven to brown the crumbs. The apples will be in whole pieces, almost transparent, and some kinds will be pink in color. Scalloped apples are especially good served hot with the main course of a meal.

There is a binding tie between father and son, and usually son is wearing it.

SHOES SHOULD BE BOUGHT WITH CARE

A "hobby" walk, a pained expression, a mind not wholly on its job, are some of the outward evidences of too small or poorly fitting shoes. Here are suggestions offered by the home economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Have the feet measured by the salesman, since women tend to forget that their feet are as big as they are. A woman who requires a 5B, for instance, may ask for a 3½A.

Be sure the shoes are heavy enough to give adequate support to the feet. Examine them for defects and poor workmanship.

Use good sense in making a selection, and cooperate with the salesman in an effort to get the proper shoes, since you are to wear them. If the shoes are not just what you want, you don't have to buy them.

Once shoes are bought and in use, take good care of them. Clean them weekly, at least. Do not put them away with dust or dirt on them. On the other hand, do not polish them just before storing them for the winter or summer, as the drying polish may damage the leather.

The one thing to keep in mind is to get shoes big enough. Of course, it is possible to get them too big; but the mistake is usually on the other side, these experts say.

LESPEDEZA WORTH MORE THAN WHEAT

A year ago this fall W. K. Landrum, Toller, Wolfe county, Kentucky, seeded wheat in 12 acres of creek bottom land. As the land had been limed, he decided last spring to sow the field to lespedeza, although he hardly expected to get much pasture or hay. The wheat was no more than cut and shocked until the July flood washed it away. The flood, however, did not damage the lespedeza, which, to the amazement of Mr. Landrum, grew into a bountiful crop, producing 25 tons of good hay. This hay, according to County Agent Charles Gabbard, was worth more than the wheat would have brought.

HENS RESPOND

TO GOOD CARE
For the hens, good feeding, comfortable quarters, sufficient water. For the flock owner, eggs in winter, when prices are good. So says, "Poultry Pointers for November," published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

To feed well, keep mash and grain before the flock in self-feeders. One hundred hens will drink four or five gallons of water a day. It is the cheapest part of the egg and should be supplied liberally.

A comfortable house is free from drafts and is dry. A deep litter is desirable. Artificial lighting is being used by some farmers who have electricity. Two 40-watt bulbs are enough for a 20 by 20 laying house. Lights are usually turned on about 4 a. m.

How to Increase Soil Fertility

CHICAGO. — How farmers can avoid hit-or-miss methods of improving soil fertility and take advantage of information to determine the plant food requirements of their land was explained by Walter P. Pollock, agronomist director of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee in a recent address before an agricultural-industrial conference.

"Years ago farmers could profitably buy farmyard manure and use commercial fertilizer only for the purpose of supplementing manure produced on their own farms," said Mr. Pollock. "Today the element of cost, time and labor enters into the practicability of using farmyard manure, so that the wise farmer first puts some questions to his soil."

PRESBYTERIAN LADIES TO GIVE PANCAKE SUPPER

The ladies of the Richmond Presbyterian Church will serve a pancake supper at the Ohio Valley League Club, between Union and Beaver on Route 42, Wednesday evening, Dec. 6th 5:30 to 7:30 (C. S. T.).

ALFALFA PROVES TOP HOG PASTURE

Three years of feeding tests at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station put alfalfa in first place as a spring pasture for hogs, with oats and rape second and bluegrass third. The three pastures ranked the same each year when compared for rapidity and economy of gains. Alfalfa also proved superior to korean lespedeza for summer hog grazing.

Hogs did well on bluegrass that contained considerable hop and white clover. On korean lespedeza pigs made the most rapid and economical gains from the time the lespedeza bloomed until the seed was in the dough stage. After the seed hardened, the pigs refused to eat the lespedeza, mainly, it was thought, because the stems became hard and wiry.

FARMERS EXHIBIT YOUNG WORK STOCK

Kentucky farmers, back in the business of raising market hogs, horses, sheep and showing good young work stock at this year's fairs. At Williamsburg, Whitley county, the judge, Prof. W. S. Anderson of the State College of Agriculture, pronounced the coits sensationally good. The grand champion was by a Belgian stallion and out of a Percheron mare. In Grant county, 24 coits and 12 young mules were exhibited at a show on the farm of Bennie Lawrence. The grand champion ring of six extra-good coits attracted much comment.

Plans already are being made for the Hickman county 4-H club baby beef and swine show to be held in August, 1940. Five boys have calves on feed, and others will be added soon. The Farm Bureau has offered to contribute $100 in cash prizes.

With permanent pastures reduced by drought, Campbell county farmers pastured the third alfalfa crop.

if it is near seeding time he should get a list of recommended fertilizers from his County Agent and determine the formula particularly adapted to his crop and soil needs. And as long as he adheres to recommended grades, he will be able to purchase fertilizer intelligently and utilize it effectively in meeting the plant food needs of his soil.

"Soil Improvement is a sound improvement only when fertility is added to the soil," Mr. Pollock concluded. "Practical-minded farmers everywhere are not satisfied with merely maintaining an existing low level of fertility but recognize that they must add necessary plant food elements to the soil if they are to maintain the value of their farm holdings and insure high crop productivity per acre."

No Gift Is Necessary
at Dinner for Bride

DEAR Mrs. Post: My husband and I are invited to a Sunday night supper in honor of a visiting bride and groom. We know the groom's family but were not invited to the wedding in the East and did not send them a wedding present. Do you think that after this party we should send them something or would you perhaps suggest that we take something to the party?

Answer: Unless a local custom is involved about which I have not heard, it certainly will not be expected that you take or send anything to the bride and groom.

Father Comes First.

DEAR Mrs. Post: I'm in a predicament and am finding it very hard to decide the best way out of it. I have a father, stepfather, grandfather and a brother, all of whom have been very good to me always and of whom I am equally fond. Whom shall I choose to walk with me up the aisle at my wedding?

Answer: Your father, of course. If you choose anyone but him you would announce to everyone that you care very little for him.

New Daughter-in-Law

DEAR Mrs. Post: I have a new daughter-in-law and even though she and my son are living out of town, I have never had occasion to write her. She has never called me any name directly and naturally signs her letters to me, "Mary." To my son I have heard her say "your mother" and to others she refers to me as "Dick's mother." I don't want her to call me "Mrs. Brown" but I also dare not force her into anything she may not like.

Answer: Sign your letter "Dick's Mother" and then, since this would be very hard to settle by letter, why not wait until you see her to tell her that you don't care what she chooses to call you as long as it is not "Mrs. Brown."

WNU Service.

H. T. Bugg, Carlisle county, harvested 700 pounds of Italian rye grass seed to the acre last summer, and enough seed was left to resseed a good stand. There is now several inches high, and has formed a turf almost equal to bluegrass.

FRUIT, VEGETABLE INSPECTION GROWS

The Federal-State shipping-point inspection of fruits and vegetables in Kentucky this year increased in the number of shipping points using the service and in the volume of business. There were 78,540 crates of strawberries, 27,356 bushels of peaches, 1,423,900 pounds of potatoes and 373,000 pounds of onions inspected this year. All points in the state from which peaches were shipped and all but two points shipping strawberries used the service. There also were requests for inspectors at points receiving carlot quantities of fruits and vegetables.

The Federal-State inspection service has operated the past two years in Kentucky under a cooperative agreement between the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics and the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. It is made available to all fruit and vegetable dealers and cooperative marketing associations through the Department of Markets and Rural Finance at the Experiment Station.

In addition to actual inspection and grading of fruits and vegetables, the service educates producers in the value of quality and uniformity of product. Through the service, they learn what the market demands and what brings the best prices. The inspection service also makes it easier to determine losses or degree of damage.

Only experienced and unbiased inspectors are used in the service, which fact gives buyers confidence in the grades that are placed on products.

COW FEED BIGGEST CALF RAISING COST

The cost of raising beef calves to weaning age is determined largely by the cost of feeding the cows supporting the calves. A study made by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station found that the cost of feeding the cow was 76 percent of the gross cost of raising the calf to weaning age, in the Bluegrass region of the state, and 71 percent in Union county.

Successful beef producers kept the feed cost low by more fully utilizing pastures and low-grade roughage. The most successful producers raised more and heavier calves. More calves were a result of lower death loss. Heavier calves were largely due to the calves being older and to feeding the suckling calves more grain.

UPWARD TREND IN PRICES OF FEEDS

Higher prices may be expected for feeds, according to an outlook report issued by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. The reason given is that livestock numbers have increased, that a portion of the grain supply has been sealed in the government farm program, and that there is an improved demand for feeds.

Kentucky corn production this year is estimated at 67,580,000 bushels, approximately seven million bushels less than last year, but nearly five million bushels above the 10-year average, 1928-1927. Production of tame hay in Kentucky is placed at 1,586,000 tons, only 139,000 tons below last year, and well above the 10-year average.

HOMEMAKERS GROW MORE VEGETABLES

One hundred and eleven homemakers in Henderson county reported to Leone Gillett, county home demonstration agent, that they planted at least 15 vegetables, in addition to potatoes, this year. Twenty-five families reported the production of such herbs as horse radish, sage, mint, parsley and thyme. Thirty-four families reported growing at least one "new" vegetable, and 27 families canned or stored at least one new vegetable for winter use. Sixty-six families have year-round gardens.

ABOUT MILK

All children do not like milk and many children cannot digest it. Children should not be forced to drink it if the milk causes an upset condition. Consult a doctor. Perhaps a bit of chocolate syrup added to the drink will please the taste of the youngster who doesn't like the original flavor. Goat's milk is substituted with satisfactory results in many cases.

362,000 Pounds In Your Shoes

Foot Comfort Specialist at—PEOPLE'S FOOT COURT 9th and Madison Covington

You actually pound 181 tons of weight into your shoes every mile you walk. (Figures based on 150 pound person).

Do you realize why feet let down, hurt, develop corns, bunions, callouses and more serious ills?

Science has made an amazing advance in orthopedics of the feet—as great an advance as in other modes of transportation.

Science has discovered many new things about feet, and how vitally your hurting feet affect your entire system. It's hard to believe that 50 percent of maladies traceable to feet are above the hips, but it's true. Do you wonder that when your feet hurt you are utterly fatigued, depressed, nervous, discouraged? Poor feet cause much misery, BACKACHE, HEADACHE, and many body ills may be traced to feet.

Even symptoms like those of rheumatism and arthritis now are being banished with proper surgical and prescription shoes.

Stop crippling your feet today and let's get everything back to normal. Normally there should pass through the feet 15 gallons of blood every 24 hours, then the feet are properly nourished—waste matter properly carried away—and bones repaired, as should be, when all this comes to pass, (normally) our feet are healthy and we'll walk briskly, we breathe 85,000 gallons of air, that will help to purify the blood that will make us feel better all over.—Adv.

Gayety Theater News

Fri. and Sat.—"Bad Lands"
Sun. & Mon.—"Blackmail"
Tues., Wed., and Thursday, Dec.
5, 6, 7—"Stanley and Livingston"

A phase of frontier life on which the screen has seldom touched is vividly presented in "Bad Lands," which will be shown at the Gayety Friday and Saturday.
The film is a grim and absorbing study of what happens to a hastily-organized posse in the Arizona of sixty-odd years ago when it is trapped in a lonely mountain ravine by a band of Apaches. Don't miss this big western feature starring Robert Barr, Douglas Walton and Noah Berry, Jr.

Stark drama at a fast pace thru Edward G. Robinson's first great sympathetic role, as vivid and as tense as anything he has ever done, makes a noteworthy contribution to film entertainment at the Gayety Theatre, where "Blackmail" will be shown Sunday and Monday.

It is an entirely different Robinson that comes to the screen in this picture. There is a distinctive new quality to his performance as he plays the sympathetic role of a honest citizen who is uprooted from his family, thrown into a prison camp for a crime he did not commit, and who gradually changes from a man whose strongest emotion is love for his wife to one whose bloodlust and only motivating desire is to wreak some terrible vengeance on the betrayer whose duplicity placed him behind prison bars.

The background is entirely new, too, for this is not a prison picture. The few months spent in a prison camp are those in which Robinson changes to a man intent only on revenge, but they form merely a chapter in the unfolding of a tensely dramatic theme whose backgrounds are found in the love of a man for his wife, the open-courted villainy of an ally as heavy as the screen has known, and the roaring inferno of oil well fires.

This picture will surpass your expectations. See it.

The most thrilling adventure known to man comes to the screen of the Gayety Theatre Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 5, 6, 7th in Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Stanley and Livingston." With Spencer Tracy, twice winner of the Academy Award, starred as the heroic Stanley; Nancy Kelly and Richard Greene starred in the romantic roles, the 20th Century-Fox film features one of the greatest acting casts ever assembled. Included are Walter Brennan, also a two-time Award winner; Charles Coburn, Sir Cedric Hardwicke (as Livingston), Henry Hull and Henry Travers. Henry King also worked on "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "In Old Chicago" and "Jesse James," directed "Stanley and Livingston."

SHEEPERS DISCUSS BETTER FEEDING TO IMPROVE LAMB CROP

Several hundred sheepraisers, meeting at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington, discussed the need of better feeding this year, when grazing is short, in order to make the Kentucky reputation for the production of price early lambs.

Experienced sheep men said that ewes should be fed roughage all fall, also grain several weeks before lambing, and both ewes and lambs should have grain and hay until there is spring pasture.

Where alfalfa, clover or lespedeza hay is fed, corn is the most economical grain to use. If corn-fodder or other inferior roughage is used, cottonseed meal or soybean oil meal should be fed to balance the ration.

Richard C. Miller of the College of Agriculture said that 100 pounds of grain and 300 pounds of roughage, costing $2 to $3, would carry a ewe and lamb through the winter. He considered this a moderate cost, when a ewe may bring $12 to $15 in lamb and wool. It also was pointed out that well-fed ewes produce more wool. One sheep man reported an increase of two pounds per ewe.

Sheepraisers spoke of their feeding plans this season, and commission men from Lexington and Louisville urged better care of sheep. Grains and other feeds and feeding equipment were on display.

CHICKENS PAY FOR GOOD MANAGEMENT

Mason county farmers who cooperated with the county agricultural agent and the Kentucky College of Agriculture in demonstrating good poultry raising methods made an average of $1.93 per hen in the year which ended Sept. 30, according to W. Howard Hardin, assistant county agent. Taking an average of the seven flocks, results were: hens per flock at beginning of year, 152; hens per flock at end of year, 69; hens culled, 87; hens died, 26; eggs per hen, 176; income per hen, $3.16; expense per hen, $1.23; profit per hen, $1.93; highest profit flock per hen, $2.77; lowest profit flock per hen, $1.29.

There isn't any foreign situation that a piece of mince or pumpkin pie won't help.

Whenever we cheer the flag, let's throw in a couple of extra hurrahs for the two oceans.

It never takes as long to find something unpleasant to say as it does something complimentary.

BEEF CATTLE PAY IN TRIGG COUNTY

In reporting increased interest in the production of beef cattle, Thomas W. Morgan, Trigg county agent, tells how Mack Hopson made a profit of more than $10,000 in feeding 312 cattle and a herd of hogs which followed the cattle. Adding in the profit on the hogs, $33 each, after making allowance for their original cost and for all feed grown on the farm or purchased, as well as interest on the investment.

Mr. Hopson utilized alfalfa in his cattle feeding, both in pasture and hay production. The herd consumed almost 200 tons of hay, all produced on the farm.

AN EXTRAVAGANCE

Americans are criticized by some of their European cousins for their extravagance in spending. And when they reproach us with the true data, four million dollars a day at the soda fountains, we do feel a bit guilty for our pleasure-loving appetites. We consider our wastefulness for these quoted sundaes, "cakes" and malted milks and we contemplate going on the wagon. Of course we would miss the visiting and chatting as we tilt in our chairs and sip through straws. But as we think further we give a moment to what those European cousins are doing with their soda-pop and gingerale money. Although our four million dollars a day sounds mighty impressive, and this for a luxury, we can't help but wonder what is spent each day over there to kill each other in their fight for right? We might well be doing something more worthwhile with our millions but we aren't buying munitions when we are buying sodas. We do not excuse our extravagance here in Boone county, but we think they would be far better over there with a sundae topped with a cherry than with their nickels and dimes going for shells.

DAPPER AND DANGEROUS

With the many new autos flashing by in fashionable, almost more to come, we think of them as grandeur on a large scale and hope to have something as shining in our own garage by and by. Seldom do we look at each car as it rolls along and think in terms of how many accidents will be caused, how many people will that driver hit, how often will children graze that fender, where will a wrecking crew pick up that chassis. Doleful and pessimistic the thought, but such magnificence one sees and such destruction one refuses to see. The emergencies that arise in our land, of floods and winds, droughts and fire, hunger and strikes, we heed and try to overcome. We are successful in most cases, by perseverance and cooperation. Why can't we do as much for our traffic toll than these same means? How gleams the paint, how pleasing the upholstery, how powerful the motor, and how sorrowful the loss of lives and in injuries. With the change in gear shifts, in lighting, in dashboards, there is no change in the human nature of the hands on the steering wheel. A delightful paint job, makes no home happier when it has hit a beloved member. Because insurance rides along doesn't mean that a child will return to his teacher each day. A new metal needs renewed morals for traffic driving.

TOO EERIE

There are few of us never to experience a drive through fog, the sort of fog that is thick enough to cut, dense enough to be dangerous and heavy enough to be a problem. If you have had to meet the fog alone, you have probably suffered the same eerie sensation along your spine, the same timidity and wonderment. Science tells us that fog is the meeting of moist air and cold air, only in terms scientific. The words concern tropical and polar fronts meeting. However, after experiencing a heavy fog, walking or driving, we wonder how a Londoner can manage so easily. How to figure streets, lights, traffic and residences would be a problem. We can fly over the clouds, radio through the heavens, climb a mountain above the clouds, but when fog enfolds us we are lost.

NEW BUSINESS

France is reputed to have ordered over 3000 new trucks from America, England rumored to be placing orders of such fantastic numbers that automobile manufacturers are planning to start mass production of airplanes. With mysterious orders from Sweden and South American countries for American tinplate, steel production hopes to continue to keep its new high. And Russia reprimands us for trying to make money from the war of Europe nations! We are scolded for refusing to fight but willing to sell. There are many opinions in Boone county regarding this issue, but to Russia we will continue to be a good listener and practice the art of keeping quiet.

SAD BUT TRUE

And who should know better than J. Edgar Hoover who tells us that from far in 1929 more youngsters of 19 years of age have been arrested than those in any other age bracket. Arrests of 18-year-olds come next. Our youthful crime problem is far from being solved from this recent report. It reminds us that there is a steady increase in this age criminal and the solution of the problem is not in sight. The same story of unsatisfactory background, improper associations, lack of education, all help to keep our youthful crime problem on the incline. We pay heed to the words of Mr. Hoover, here in Boone county, for he knows!

THE YULE TREE

We see the evergreen trees stacked along the sidewalks, lined in rows of stores or carried by us on trucks for the markets, and we wonder yearly if such destruction can go on and one without our forests suffering. Few of us who do not feel pity for the cutting of these evergreens and those of us who have seen them in their native woods wonder if our Christmas demands. We are glad to be assured by foresters who point out that much timberland need an annual weeding out and that the large-size trees which we usually prefer are not the essential growths for the forests. Of course too many trees should be cut from the same area, but thinning is the same for trees as it is for gardens. Stealing trees, cutting along highways or removing tops of them to secure a shape for the ground. The exchange of gifts comes to us from the early Romans and the idea of hanging them on a tree originated in Germany. The choice of the evergreen is due to its being the only tree ready to serve such a purpose at this time of the year that could be more satisfying as a symbol of peace, calm and beauty?

A NEW ORDER

Not so very long ago we read a comment of an American minister who had returned from Germany, regarding the term "the revival of religion" in that country. His report indicated that, due to persecution and repression Germans have realized how much their religion means to them. We have since received word that deals with the same subject but not so encouraging. The German Minister of Propaganda has forbidden book stores to stock the Bible, for "the Bible is a Jew book," and "teaches peace." There is a stipulation though, for if a customer should order a copy he may obtain one, but in Germany they may hesitate to place their order! We ask, here in Boone county, can a nation so endure who repudiates the Book, who believes that "God is on our side" but who won't listen to God's side?

THE OLD REFRAIN

What kind of a newspaper would we be if we didn't give the yearly message of "Do Your Christmas Shopping Early?" The wise shopper has had his list made out for some time. She has worked over Aunt Jennie's and Uncle Fred's needs weeks ago. Perhaps there is a dresser drawer in which reposes some handwork accomplished for this occasion during the summer. This is a wise lady. The holiday rush finds her ready and tired feet. The crowded stores and delay is avoided by the shopper who purchases before the last minute. Consider not only your own comfort but give a thought to the workers who remain courteous in the face of, inconsideration and rudeness.

The family who is "trying to keep up with the Jones" may be giving the Jones' a race for their money.

REACTIIONS TO THE GOOD NEWS
LESSON TEXT—Matthew 11:16-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will take your yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls: for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.—Matthew 11:28-30.

The response which men and women make to the preaching of the gospel today determines their destiny for time and eternity, just as it did when Jesus was first sending out His disciples to preach.

How do you react to the gospel message? Indifference will keep a man from Christ just as effectively as unbelief. A childlike faith, on the other hand, will bring a man into delightful fellowship with Him in both life and service. The Lord gives rest for the soul and companionship in the yoke of fellowship of Christian service.

I. Childish Dissatisfaction (vv. 16-19).
Jesus, who was skilled in the art of teaching, took a familiar scene from the daily life of the people to show how utterly childish was the criticism of His enemies. Children at play, trying to interest their companions, present a wedding scene of great joy with no response. They then try the opposite with no better result.

The enemies of Christ were just like such children, and His enemies are the same today. Opposition to the gospel likes to clothe itself in learned philosophy and to gain itself in the terms of dignified logic, but in fact it is but an expression of personal feelings encouraged by the devil and altogether like those of a spoiled child. Not only does it show its true nature in a forthright expression of unbelief and infidelity, for it prefers to hide behind some self-righteous criticism which it can level against the Christian people or against their faith.

Why not be honest, unbeliever who reads these lines, and tell the truth about your reasons for failing to accept Christ. When you do that you will find that they are not reasons at all but only excuses, and there will then be hope for your repentance and conversion.

II. Deadly Indifference (vv. 20-24).
Rejection of Christ may be and all too often is simply indifference. Indifference is a deadly sin. Jesus pronounced an awful judgment on the cities which had been honored by His presence and His great works, and which should have been moved by His message and His power but which had passed Him by in bored indifference.

These again are typical of countless thousands who today comfort themselves by saying, "I do not oppose the Church; I'm not against Christianity. I just don't take any position either for or against." By so doing they have declared themselves to be against Christ. Jesus said, "He who is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad" (Matt. 12:30). Let not such think for a moment that their judgment shall be less severe than that of the cities of Chorazin and Bethsaida!

III. Childlike Faith (vv. 25, 26).
God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ have a great and loving interest in the touching beauty of the faith of a child. The unquestioning dependence, the absolute assurance of the child heart, these are the things that receive an answer from the Almighty.

This is not intended to reflect in any way on those who may have learning, wisdom and power but who with all have maintained a childlike humility. God knows them and honors and uses them. The point we do want to make is that all too often learning and standing in this world are a barrier between men and God simply because men put their trust in these things and not in Him. It is always a serious matter when a man permits his God-given ability to think, to come between him and God. What folly it is to expect the infinite and eternal God who made all things, including the brain of man, to in turn pass through the narrow compass of finite thinking.

IV. Restful Companionship (vv. 27-30).

A study of the theories and philosophies of this world leads only to unrest. Bewildered and unhappy is the man who puts his trust in them. But in Christ the weary and belabored human soul will find perfect and eternal rest. Why then does the mass of men reject Him to go on to wander in despair?

The rest which we find in Christ is not a useless and inactive repose. Far from it. It is a blessed yoke-fellowship with Christ in carrying forward His work. Here man finds his real usefulness, for only here is he liberated from the limitations of sin and self and joined in a yoke with the One in whom dwells all wisdom and power.

ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS FOR TOBACCO IN 1940

The outstanding change in the burley tobacco program for next year is the use of acreage allotments, instead of pounds, with growers selling without penalty all the tobacco they produce on their allotted acreages.

With the approval of the marketing quota for 1940, in the vote in the November 21 referendum, total production of burley tobacco next year will be reduced about 10 percent from this year's estimated production of 354,000,000 pounds.

OUTLOOK FAVORABLE FOR SPRING LAMBS

With sheep numbers increasing in the native lamb states, Kentucky sheepmen should endeavor to maintain a high standard of quality and have their lambs ready for market early in the season. So suggests the annual outlook report of the Department of Markets and Rural Finance of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Expansion of sheepraising east of the Mississippi River may be expected to bring further competition to Kentucky lambs, especially late in the season after the states to the north are ready to market.

Kentucky lambs, therefore, should go to market early.

The outlook for the sheep industry is considered more favorable than the outlook for other livestock. Prices of fed lambs are expected to be higher next year than they were this year. Improved consumer demand for meat and higher prices for wool both favor sheepmen.

Wool prices have gone up, and the war is expected to be more of a price strengthening factor for wool than for any other farm product, according to the college's outlook report.

GAME MORE PLENTIFUL

With the opening day of the quail and rabbit hunting season past, reports from every section of the state indicate that more hunters purchased their licenses, more birds were seen in the fields, there was, by far, less game law violations, and more game was taken than in past years.

In such counties as Pike, Letcher, and Harlan, the hunting was only fair due to the fact that these particular counties are not suited to rabbit and quail, but moving west, through the rest of the state and swinging off to the northern and southern sections, reports coming in to the Division of Game and Fish plainly indicate a much better opening day than was experienced last year or on any other opening day for the past twenty years.

Due to the increased membership of the League of Kentucky Sportsmen, composed of more than 90 fish and game clubs throughout the state during the past four years; the added interest shown by sportsmen in every county; addition to the Conservation Officer force and to the voluntary warden force; education of practically every school child in the state to the value of "protecting our wildlife"; a more complete understanding between the sportsmen and the landowners; a united program of conserving the wildlife in Kentucky; and increased propagation by the sportsmen and the Division of Game and Fish of both fish and quail, has made for this fall an unusually good hunting season.

The following are some indications of just how good Kentucky's present quail and rabbit season really is: The Division released 18,000 Bob White quail in pairs past spring in 108 counties of the 120 in the state; last year 102,000 persons purchased licenses and this year it is expected to reach almost 120,000; large numbers of hunters have already reported plenty of game killed on the opening day; county clerks are writing, wiring and calling in for more licenses, claiming they are selling them out as fast as they are received; the sporting goods stores and hardware stores say that they have sold out practically all their guns, hunting clothes and ammunition.

Combination of all such information can only lead to the simple fact that Kentucky is on the march toward better hunting and that the sportsmen have awakened to the fact that they must protect game in order to have game and that obedience to the game and fish laws is also a very necessary part in conserving the wildlife resources.

GROSS CARELESSNESS IS CHIEF HUNTING ACCIDENT CAUSE

Frankfort, Dec. 6—Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, calls to the attention of the thousands of persons, who go hunting in the state during the present open season on rabbits and quail, the large number of accidents that occur each year at this time through carelessness and lack of caution.

One of the most inexcusable modes of the hunting accident is that of firing at moving objects, or not clearly discernable targets. This, he says, is more often than not, caused by a nervous condition brought about by a long wait for the game to appear. The hunter is over anxious, alert and ready to fire quickly at the first movement of brush or weeds and as the result of this, serious accidents occur.

Self-inflicted accidents are numerous and these are caused by failing, pulling guns through fences or brush, dropping guns, leaving guns against slick or flat surfaces, improper transportation, being knocked over by dogs, resting muzzle on hand or foot, etc. All accidents of this nature could be avoided by using common sense and taking a little more time.

"For your own protection and the protection of all the other hunters that will be in the fields at the same time you are," Major Brown stated, "it is to be careful—use common sense—respect the muzzle of a gun, and don't fire until you see your target plainly."

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

With steam boilers wearing out, and an increasing scarcity of wood, tobacco growers in Boyle county are experimenting with chemical sterilization of tobacco plant beds. Few consider replacing steaming equipment.

Thirty-eight Calloway county farmers seeded all their cultivated land in alfalfa and thereby earned a place on the county's "cover crop honor roll." Italian rye grass is being tried on many farms in the county.

Fifteen Daviess county farm men and women inspected peach orchards in Indiana, with a view to setting nut trees for ornamental and shade purposes, as well as for the production of nuts.

Drainage is the first problem to be solved in improving farm conditions in Hopkins county, believes County Agent W. W. Thompson. It is a case of providing drainage or gradually retiring to a large portion of the farm land, he declares.

Everett Riley, Washington county, cut nine tons of alfalfa hay from one and three-fourths acres. The alfalfa was sowed in 1935. The land had received 10 tons of limestone in 1934, and in 1936 manure and superphosphate were applied.

Grant county planning committee recommends farm no smaller than 100 acres, although a few families in the county have been making a living on 60 acres. No increase in tobacco growing, but raising more livestock, also were suggested.

SELF-FEEDING HOGS SAVES MUCH LABOR

It requires only about a third as much work to self-feed hogs as it does to hand-feed them. So declares a statement from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Altho, self-fed hogs gain more in weight, usually require less feed per pound of gain than do hand-fed hogs.

Self-feeding consists of keeping constantly before hogs an ample supply of feed. Separate compartments in standard-type feeders permit a variety of feeds, which allow hogs to select the feeds needed to balance the ration. Hogs exercise remarkable skill in balancing their rations, and once on full-feed rarely do they overeat. Shelled corn, in one compartment, and salt in still another compartment, are a satisfactory combination of feeds for hogs, either in dry lot or on pasture. If pasture is not available, a good grade of legume hay should be fed all hogs.

POULTRY BEST BET FOR SMALL FARMER

On small farms, where tobacco has been the only source of cash income, a flock of 100 or more hens should add to the income and help to diversify the farming system. So believes Stuart Brown, county agent in Todd county, Kentucky. Most farm operators in Todd county, he continues, are realizing that some type of livestock should be kept, and in the southern part of the county there already have been increases in the numbers of beef cattle, sheep and hogs. On small farms, where fencing is inadequate, he would make poultry the beginning of a general improvement program.

Folks here who have been on diets may say the best part about them is when you can get back to a square meal.

Chewing tobacco may be a dirty habit, according to some wives, but it never started a forest fire!

REVENUE RECIPITS FOR KENTUCKY 1938-39 SLIGHTLY LESS THAN FOR YEAR 1937-38

"State General Fund receipts under existing statutes are tending to level off at around $24,000,000 annually, according to the twenty-first annual report of the Kentucky Department of Revenue submitted today by H. Clyde Reeves, Commissioner of Revenue, to Governor Keen Johnson. Revenue receipts for the fiscal year 1938-39 were approximately five per cent less than those of 1937-38 and seven per cent below those of 1936-37.

The report declared that taxes aggregating $13,000,000 in annual revenue have been repealed since 1935 and further repeal was inconsistent with the "pay as you go" policy of the State. The report continued that the revenue program was reasonably equitable and adequate and for the greater part bore close relation either to the benefit derived from the government or to the ability to pay taxes and therefore "no" fundamental changes in the revenue laws of the State appear necessary or desirable. Road Fund receipts, $16,500,000 in 1938-39, showed a slight fiscal year increase and "may be expected to follow closely the apparent trend of increasing gasoline consumption."

The report pointed out that the cost of collecting one dollar of revenue receipts was but 12 cents. Costs for collecting each of the various taxes were enumerated in the report which pointed out that the "application of governmental cost accounting techniques to tax collection activities had not, to our knowledge, been seriously attempted anywhere in the integrated administration of a diversified state tax system."

The report discussed the problem of inadequate local revenues and pointed out that such revenues could be increased by the improvement of property tax assessment practices, by the raising of tax rate limitations, by certain state financial assistance to local units of government and by the redistribution of expenditures between the state and local governments. The report did not come to any conclusions but pointed out that "the whole problem of the inadequacy of local revenues calls for constructive legislation based on thorough study."

In considering recent legislative changes the report pointed out that the "1938 General Assembly aided greatly in the clarification of the tax administrative policy of the Commonwealth" and indicated that the assessment of the franchise (intangible) value of utility companies has long been a function of the Department of Revenue but that the assessment of the tangible property of franchisees by the Department has facilitated the elimination of certain injustices to the schools and various counties resulting from an underassessment or an overassessment of the tangible property previously assessed by the county tax commission.

The report pointed out in considering the application of the penalty (ten per cent of the tax found to be due or a minimum of ten dollars) enacted by the 1938 General Assembly for the late filing of returns on which tax is due "has undoubtedly improved the administration of particular taxes." It commented, however, that "penalties to be effective must be acceptable by taxpayers as a just charge and must be readily collectible" and that "study of whether the continued application of the minimum penalty now provided is desirable and the methods by which it is collected may be improved seems necessary."

Referring to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Law which the Department has administered for one year, the report observed that the extent and complexity of the administrative task was enlarged. It was said that because many of the provisions of the law can be enforced effectively only by local officials, "the control features of the law require close cooperation between the Department of Revenue and local officials."

HELP URGED IN FIGHT AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

Need of an "annual awakening" to recognition of the fight against tuberculosis in the United States was voiced today by Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service in an endorsement to the campaign which is now underway and which will continue through Christmas. Nearly 2,000 affiliated tuberculosis organizations and committees in all parts of the country are participating.

"When the matter of funds for fighting tuberculosis is considered," said Dr. Parran, "the Christmas Seal, small in itself, but large in its potentialities, enters the picture."

"While the amount obtained through this source is relatively small in the aggregate, it serves a doubly useful purpose. This is true especially in the localities in which the Seal is purchased and where 95 per cent of the money is expended in anti-tuberculosis work. Then, too, the annual stimulus provided by Seals is an important factor in keeping alive interest and promoting renewed activity against an unrelenting foe."

"We need the annual awakening provided by this harbinger of better health and should be glad to make the trivial purchases required for keeping the work active and effective."

Dr. Sleyter said "It is a pleasure indeed, to give my hearty endorsement to the Christmas Seal Campaign of the National Tuberculosis Association. I have been actively interested in this promotion for the last quarter of a century."

COOPERATION ASKED IN PLANS FOR INAUGURATION

A call for cooperation from the entire state of Kentucky has been issued by committees in charge of arrangements for the inaugural ceremonies which will mark the induction of Governor Keen Johnson into the office of Chief Executive of Kentucky. The inauguration will be held at the State Capitol on Tuesday, December 12.

Letters are being sent out to campaign chairmen in every county in the state by H. A. Greter, chairman of the Inaugural Parade Committee, asking participation in the gigantic parade that precedes the actual inaugural ceremonies. All who expect to participate in the parade are being asked to communicate with the committee as soon as possible so that positions in the parade may be assigned.

It is the aim of the Parade Committee this year to have representatives from every county marching in the parade, with as many decorated floats as can be secured. Every county is being urged to send a representative float or decorated car, if such is at all possible. Organizations in each county boasting musical organizations are being asked to send them along to add to the list of marching music that will resound in Frankfort on Inauguration Day.

Already the committee in charge is assured that the famous University of Kentucky Band will be present, that representative sections of the Kentucky National Guard will march, that the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars will send along Drum and Bugle Corps, that marching clubs and "democratic" organizations will march and cheer. In short, it will be a real tribute to the man who will, in impressive ceremonies, take over the reins of Kentucky's government for the next four years.

DRY YOUR CELERY

After cleaning celery leaves, dry them on a baking sheet in a low oven. Crumble and place in glass jars. If kept dry they will be a splendid seasoning for a long time.

STEAM TOBACCO TO BRING IT IN ORDER

Kalsay Bros., Adair county, Kentucky, were able to strip their tobacco this fall through the use of a steam chamber. Sticks of tobacco were hung in a tight chamber made of ordinary lumber, and steam from the small up-right boiler turned in. The tobacco was examined frequently, and as fast as it reached proper stripping order it was removed to the stripping room and more dry tobacco placed in the steam chamber.

County Agent R. B. Rankin, in reporting on the experiment, said that the steaming brought the tobacco into excellent order for stripping and apparently did no damage to the leaf.

When things look bluest, think of all the younger generations that Methuselah had to worry about.

Census Takers Are Taught How

Bureau Prepares Students to Handle Big Job of Making 1940 Count.

WASHINGTON.—The census bureau is teaching a class of 175 men and women in the proper method of asking a question and getting the right answer. Of these 103 will be given jobs as area managers for the big census of 1940.

The school was started because the census bureau, whose business is gathering statistics, decided a statistic is hardly a statistic at all if it lacks precision.

In past censuses, enumerators have asked questions in many ways, in classifying borderline answers.

For instance, the president of a small manufacturing company spends 45 per cent of his time on administrative duties, 55 per cent in sales work. Is he an administrator or a sales official? The right answer, they decided, is "sales official," because that job takes up the major part of his time.

Next time the answer the bureau received in prior years.

Almost every one of the 172 schedules of questions to be asked in the 1940 census has some of these borderline queries in it. The statisticians feared erroneous reports of 143,000 enumerators asking these questions of more than 120,000,000 people. They decided to get method into the census.

Jobs to Last Nine Months.
So for 60 days 175 persons have been going to school in what was once a department store warehouse. The class looked like a meeting of moderately prosperous proprietors of small businesses. Their jobs in most cases, will last about nine months and they will be paid about $300 a month.

The job of area manager is a new one with the 1940 census. Heretofore directors of the 560 census districts have sent their reports directly to Washington. Only from someone in the census bureau or a field representative, who might or might not be present when he was needed, could they get advice on handling the many problems that arose.

Next year all this will be handled by the area managers.

Thus, while it was the borderline question that suggested the job, the person who gets it will be responsible for a great deal more than just coaching the enumerators.

The area, in most instances, will be approximately half a state, containing from five to eight census districts. The districts are divided into the 143,000 enumeration districts, which contain an average of about 1,500 persons.

Drilled in Details.
The candidates for area managers have been drilled, not only in census methods, but on details from public relations to geography.

Their instructors have been census bureau officials plus an occasional lecturer from outside. The 11 schedules for the business (distribution) census have been explained in detail, as well as the 143 schedules for manufacturers, the nine regionalized schedules on farms plus the supplement on plantations, and the single schedules on population, housing, mines and quarries, and on irrigation and drainage.

The students sat at semi-circular rows of desks in a lecture hall, equipped with a loudspeaker system. After each lecture, the students were given written and oral tests, in which they solved hypothetical puzzles.

Although the census-takers will have legal authority to demand accurate replies to all questions, personal or otherwise, the group was warned that the bureau's impulse to fire any enumerator who wasn't equal to getting the information without recourse to that authority.

Get the answers, says the bureau, and get the right ones, but don't hold your foot in the door or make threats—be courteous, be clever, be persuasive.

Frenchmen Fly Plane to Brazil in Stratosphere
PARIS.—France's distance flight champion, Lieut. Paul Codos, and Capt. Henri Guillaumet have made a successful non-stop stratosphere hop from Paris to Rio de Janeiro, it was announced. The flight was kept secret and the announcement gave no indication of the date of the exploit. Photographs published in the Paris press showed the plane on its arrival and Lieutenant Codos with a Brazilian military official.

The plane used was a specially constructed airtight, bi-motored ship for high altitude work, named after the French astronomer, Camille Flammarion. Paul Comet, navigator, and Jacques Neri, radio officer, completed the crew on the Brazilian flight.

The 24-ton Camille Flammarion and two more similar planes now being built, are said to be intended for use in regular stratosphere service, beginning in 1940, between Paris and New York.

War Sacrifice
PARIS.—A new make-up which allows Parisiennes to look their best under the strongest of blue A. R. P. lights is becoming fashionable here. Rouge and lipstick are purchased and flatter the face under a blue light.

THE FARM AND HOME

Two new Kentucky College of Agriculture circulars of interest to homemakers are "Wall Treatment in the Livable Home" and "Floor Covering in the Livable Home." Both may be had free of cost by applying to county home demonstration agents.

Bees need no extra protection in most Kentucky winters, if the hives are behind windbreaks. Some beekeepers provide hives with shields made of roofing paper. It is difficult to over-winter old bees. The bees should be young and have ample stores.

Nutmeg, cinnamon, caramel, chocolate, raisins, dates or cocoa-nut may be added to baked custard. Marshmallows may be placed on top of the custard. Plain custard may be served with any kind of fruit, or with jelly or jam.

To waterproof shoes, melt together 12 ounces of tallow and 4 ounces of cod liver oil. Stir thoroughly and apply to the leather when warm but not hotter than 100 degrees. The shoe should be completely saturated.

It is not necessary to wait for freezing weather to butcher. A temperature of 38 to 39 degrees is sufficiently cool. Killing can be done on warmer days if there is some way to chill the carcass, but most any time after December 1 will do.

Apple Dumplings: Roll out pastry dough in rounds about the size of fruit plates. In the center of each place a pared and cored apple. Sprinkle the apple with a mixture of sugar, cinnamon, and a few grains of salt, and dot with butter. Lift the edges of the dough and press together. Bake in greased muffin tins in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

LIGHTS SHIFT EGG LAYING TO WINTER
Fooling hens by turning on electric lights at 4 o'clock in the morning shifts egg production for the year. So discovered the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station in three years of testing artificial lights in laying houses. However, since eggs are usually higher in price in winter, early morning lighting of the laying house often pays.

Lights do not take the place of good feed. It is pointed out that lengthening the hen's working day did little good unless her ration was balanced. In other words, to lay many eggs a hen must receive egg-making feeds, and housing and other conditions must be favorable.

A circular published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture, called "Feeding and Management of Laying Hens," tells how to use artificial lights to get hens up early, and prescribes the proper rations of grains and mash.

WITH THE HOMEMAKER
Blankets too short to cover both shoulders and feet are a nuisance, say home economists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture. A 76-inch blanket may do for a child's bed, but most grown-ups will pull it off their feet. The 84 inch blanket is long enough for ordinary use, perhaps, but if the mattress is thick and the sleeper long, it probably would be better to buy a 90-inch cover.

The trick in washing velvet garments is to hold them on the wrong side and wash by dipping and lifting in thick mild lukewarm suds. Rinse the same way in clear lukewarm water. Do not wring or squeeze. After rinsing shake off the excess moisture or lay the garment between turkish towels for a few minutes. Hang on a smooth wooden hanger to finish drying. When almost dry, brush the velvet to lift the pile. Brush in the direction of the natural "lie" of the velvet. Velvet materials need no ironing.

POTATOES GROWN IN

ONE FIELD 61 YEARS

Will potatoes "run out" when planted year after year on the same land. County Agent R. V. Trosper of Bell county wasn't sure, and so he asked Mrs. J. W. Lee, 80-year-old farm woman. Said she: "My husband and I bought a lushel each of Burbank and White Rose potatoes in the spring of 1878, from that planting we have sold more than 3,000 bushels of potatoes. Each spring we have planted seed potatoes from this original stock in the identical place where we planted them in 1878."

Where are those nations that some of our readers said were too poor to fight?

MOTORISTS AND TAXPAYERS!

YOU, as users of Kentucky highways, know the danger you meet, the inconvenience you endure, because of big trucks, even though the present Kentucky law limits their length to 30 feet, and their weight to 9 tons.

Certain commercial trucking companies and their allied interests from other States will renew their attack on this law at the January, 1940, session of the Kentucky Legislature. Because of the great financial power which is now massed behind this attack, it will undoubtedly be successful unless the people of Kentucky—motorists, operators of trucks of reasonable size and taxpayers—unite to protect their own safety and their highways, which are their property.

We believe we are rendering a public service in bringing these facts to your attention, and in suggesting that all who are opposed to having larger and heavier trucks express their views to their Senators and Representatives before they go to Frankfort.

Larger and heavier trucks would:

1. Make use of the highways more hazardous.
2. Cause added inconvenience.
3. Destroy the roads and bridges.
4. Increase taxes to build and maintain a few highways for big trucks.
5. Leave little or nothing to maintain secondary and farm-to-market roads.

It has been officially estimated that it would cost $88,000,000 to put Kentucky's main highways in condition to support big trucks.

Why Railroads Are Interested

Railroads build, maintain and pay taxes on their roadways. It is grossly unfair for the government to permit great public utility transportation companies to operate trucks as big as freight cars upon our highways built and maintained at public expense.

As the largest taxpayers in Kentucky railroads have the same interest as other taxpayers in avoiding payment of additional taxes to build and maintain super-highways needed only for super-size trucks which constitute less than one per cent of all highway users.

Like farmers and merchants, railroads are interested in the maintenance of adequate secondary and farm-to-market roads.

Here is What Secretary of the Interior, HAROLD L. ICKES, Had to Say:

"The people started to build good roads so that they might have pleasure and recreation that is made possible by traveling in their own cars. . . . At least this has been what we thought we were paying our road taxes for. . . . But now that we have been digging into our pockets to build boulevards for the truck driver. . . . The money seems to be growing longer and wider and higher. . . . I have promised some day to give myself the pleasure of driving down a truck-infested road to find the biggest tank that I can find and dump these pests from the road."

Speaking before the 37th Annual Convention of the American Automobile Association, Washington, D. C., November 16, 1933.

William B. Bankhead Speaks Over NBC Network On "Moral Re-Armament"

William B. Bankhead, Speaker of the House of Representatives delivered the following address over the NBC Blue Network:

I am glad tonight to inaugurate in the Americas the program for this first week-end of December when one hundred million people throughout the world will hear the challenge of moral rearmament.

There is a matter of even greater importance to America and to the World than the historic special session of Congress just concluded. For as Nations cannot live without law, so law itself, whether National or International, depends for its force on the spirit in which it is enacted and obeyed. It is concerning the rise throughout the world—among the peoples of Nations—of a new spirit that I wish to speak to you tonight.

For the past decade statements in many countries have been working for a harmonizing force within their borders in order that political, racial and industrial conflicts might be eased. A new search is being made for methods to insure honesty and confidence in business, a new fidelity and comradeship and home life and a new hope in International relations. Some enemies have become friends. Some rivals have begun to work together. Out of the materialism of the post-war years, there has appeared the beginnings of a new cultural renaissance. Most encouraging of all—a new type of citizen has emerged who puts country before self, who is making the task of government easier and giving fresh dignity to the word "Patriot."

Here in America, one effect of this rising tide of Moral Rearmament has been a renewed hope for industrial peace in those communities where it has formed a common meeting-ground between capital and labor and between opposing factions within the ranks of labor.

As for party politics, I myself have observed its effect in the Nation's capital, where in these troublous times we are only too apt to think of ourselves as Democrats or Republicans rather than as first of all Americans. Never in my long experience in Washington, have I found anything on which all parties in both Senate and House has so thoroughly agreed as our America's need and our own need for this new spirit. It is making many of us realize that if we sincerely want National unity, it is no use expecting the other party to make all the first moves; that our own party has certain faults which need correction in the National interest and that it is a patriotic duty to have a spirit of National cooperation here at home.

Benjamin Franklin once warned the Continental Congress that they must hang together or they would hang separately. The alternatives today may not seem to be so sharply drawn but considering the chaos of our times, and looking forward in the perspective of history, they are not as wholly fantastic as they might appear. Certainly if any Nation needs to learn how to work together, it is our Nation. No special social or political insight is required to point out that in National unity alone lies National strength.

Turning to the World situation an old and loyal colleague of Woodrow Wilson, like myself, may be forgiven for admitting that where we have failed in our dreams for the original League of Nations was it not allowing for the fact that no International system however nobly conceived can endure without a new spirit in the Nations which compose it. "Peace," Dr. Frank Buchman stated in a recent broadcast, "is not just an idea. It is people becoming different." Those words are worthy of serious consideration. They both point out the folly of the past and chart a course for the peace-makers of the future. The essential condition of peace is a new spirit between Nations. Without this new spirit no general settlement will be possible. A well known columnist wrote recently that every nation is guilty in that every Nation has sinned. A frank recognition that all are responsible for the present situation would go far towards bringing peace to Europe. Peace based on such a spirit could make both sides winners in this war. Otherwise, the only winners are likely to be those forces of destruction relentlessly at work in every land for which a world conflict is the historic hour of opportunity.

We stand today at a decisive moment in history. Forces of unmeasured strength are on the march. Is there a force which can rally the recuperative powers of mankind and win the race with chaos?

There is a force which can outmatch all others and which, if we will, can shape the future. It is the mighty onslaught of a new spirit challenging men and Nations to a change of heart. It is the cumulative effect of millions of people who listen to God and obey. Where we have been true to this spirit, man has prospered. Where we have neglected it, Nations have declined. Now is our chance to re-create for ourselves and for our children the way of true patriotism—the way off Moral and Spiritual force.

The call of the house is a call to strength. Our country must look to her defenses but no material defenses can serve us long unless behind them there stands a united people, strong in spirit and conscious of a common mission prepared for any sacrifice. Seventy-five years ago Abraham Lincoln wrote a warning, which now we shall do well to heed. "At what point is the approach of danger to be expected? I know not, if it ever reaches us, it must spring up among us; it cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a Nation of free men, we must live through all time or die by suicide." A Nation's first line of defense is the character of her citizens and the inspiration of her leaders. A country rich in land, in trade, in tradition, but poor in faith declines. A country rich in faith is rich in everything. Restore character to a Nation and you restore strength. Restore faith and you restore greatness—for character is wealth and faith is power.

The forces which cause war are not confined to the old world. Working here in America are the same materialism, the same clash of interests, the same mindlessness of the masses, the same lust to acquire or hold power. The "haves" want to keep and the "have-nots" want to get. The way of sanity both in domestic and foreign policy is not to point the finger at the "other party" or the "other Nation." It is to start to remedy the world's ills where they most closely concern us—here in America.

The Pilgrim Fathers, whose first Thanksgiving Day we are celebrating as a Nation, dedicated themselves and their future "To the Glory of God and the advancement of the Christian faith." This is America's spiritual opportunity. To pursue it with every energy is America's first duty. If Western civilization is to be preserved in the Americas Moral Rearmament must become the mind of our Nation and the touchstone of policy both at home and abroad.

All of us whatever our race or creed can apply this new spirit beginning with ourselves, our family, our business, our community. There must be an end to selfishness and ease. Every citizen must

Gayety Theater News

Friday and Saturday—"Jones Family in Hollywood"
Sun. & Mon.—"Dancing Co-Ed"
Tues., Wed., and Thursday, Dec. 12, 13, 14—"The Rains Came"

We don't know why the Joneses can't take a quiet trip like other people. Take their Hollywood visit Monday, brings Artie Shaw, idol of for example—"The Jones Family in Hollywood," which will be shown at Gayety Friday and Saturday—no other family in the world could get into as many predicaments and funny situations as they do in four shorts days in Movieland. Maybe that's why they love them so—maybe that's why everyone likes this picture so much. Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Ken Howell, George Ernest, June Carlson, Florence Roberts and Billy Mahan are featured in the 20th Century-Fox film.

"Dancing Co-Ed" which will be shown at the Gayety Sunday and Monday, brings Artie Shaw, idol of the jitterbug world, to the screen for the first time in his sensational swing career. Featured with Lana Turner and Richard Carlson, Shaw and his famous band contribute to a madcap story that sweeps from Hollywood to college and back in what is said to be one riotous round of swing rhythm and dance.

Lana Turner plays the hooper. Richard Carlson is the college editor. Ann Rutherford plays the secretary. Others in an excellent comedy cast are Roscoe Karns as the press agent, Lee Bowman, Thurston Hall, Leon Errol, Mary Field, Walter Kingsford, Mary Beth Hughes, June Preisler and Monty Woolley.

Two hundred jitterbugs, personally selected by Artie Shaw, appear in the dance sequences.

Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "The Rains Came," the great novel by Louis Bromfield, starring Myrna Loy, Tyrone Power and George Brent will be on screen of the Gayety on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, Dec. 12, 13, 14, 15, and 16. All the strangely-assorted humans of the novel, cut off from the world, with a life fading hope and love a desperate longing—while the angry forces of nature swirl the earth from beneath them—live again in this 20th Century-Fox film.

Featured in the imposing supporting cast are Brenda Joyce, the sensational new Zanuck discovery; Nigel Bruce, Maria Ouspenskaya, Joseph Schildkraut, Mary Nash, Jane Darwell, Marjorie Rambeau, Henry Travers and H. B. Warner.

Fifty-Seventh Wedding Anniversary Observed By Former Boone Countian

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel N. Cayton were married at Holden, Missouri, October 26, 1882 and celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary at their home in west Tenthoma, October 26, 1939.

Mrs. Cayton was born at Thornville, Ohio, and with her parents moved to Holden, Missouri at an early age. Mr. Cayton was born in Boone county, Kentucky, and he also came west to Johnson county, Missouri, locating near Holden. It was there that this young couple met, forming an acquaintance which ripened into love and took them to the altar together.

They made their first home on a farm near Holden and it was there that their eight children were born: Norborn W. Cayton, Hereford, Texas; Clarence Cayton, deceased; Thomas C. Cayton, Griggs, Oklahoma; Mrs. J. L. Taggart, Boise city, Oklahoma; Mrs. G. G. Smith, Plainview, Texas; Samuel G. Cayton, deceased; Mrs. A. H. Dawson and Mrs. C. R. Hawkins, Tenthoma, Oklahoma.

February 23, 1906, Mr. Cayton brought his family to Oklahoma, locating on a homestead in Cimarron county, 37 miles northwest of Tenthoma near old Samsel store and postoffice. Here they pioneered in true western fashion. At that time there was a dug out or one-room shanty on nearly every piece of land in that territory, however many of these settlers became discouraged and returned to their former homes, but Mr. and Mrs. Cayton had faith in the country and remained on their land in Cimarron county.

They made their travels at that time by team and wagon and a day was required to make the trip to their trading point, Tenthoma. Their ranch being located about half way between Boise City and Tenthoma, the Cayton home was a popular stopping place for many travelers. Hospitality being the keynote of those days everyone knew the latch string at the Cayton homestead was always out and that visitors were welcome for meals or to spend the night. By and by thru constant perseverance and untiring effort, their holdings grew into a large and productive ranch well stocked with purebred Hereford cattle.

Mr. Cayton owned and operated the first telephone exchange in Boise City, and supplied the first connection between that place and Tenthoma. He gave to Boise city their first presidential election news via telephone system in 1912.

Before combines were known, they owned and operated threshing outfits and crews working over Cimarron and Texas counties and as far east as Pratt, Kansas.

For better school advantages, Mrs. Cayton and the young children spent the winters from 1914 on, in Tenthoma, while Mr. Cayton and the older children remained after their farming interests. In the year 1921, they moved to Tenthoma, making their permanent home.

Mr. and Mrs. Cayton have 22 grandchildren and one great grandchild. They are both devout Methodists, and attend church services regularly as their health permits. They have both led active lives and have done much in the upbuilding of this community, both materially and spiritually.

Their anniversary was observed quietly with a 12 o'clock dinner, and during the day they were regaled of numerous bouquets of flowers, cards and messages of good wishes.

We congratulate this fine couple on their many years of happy married life and extend to them our best wishes for continued health and happiness.

Wooster Club Of Cincinnati To Meet Sunday, December 10

Wooster, O., Dec. 6—John D. McKee, business manager of the College of Wooster, will be the faculty guest speaker when the Wooster Club of Cincinnati meets Sunday, December 10 at 3:30 p. m. at the "Norwood Presbyterian church to observe the nineteenth annual "Wooster Day."

Wooster now has 12 graduates and former students living in or near Cincinnati in 96 communities and all are included in the Wooster Club of Cincinnati. Burlington and Boone county towns are included in the area of the Cincinnati Club.

Officers of the club are: William B. Mainland, 1831 Courtland Ave., Norwood, president; Mrs. Richard C. Atkinson, 4915 Stewart Ave., Cincinnati, vice president; Miss E. Jane Graff, 229 West Hill Lane, Wyoming, secretary and Dwight N. Lamele, 1105 Elm St., Cincinnati, treasurer.

The first "Wooster Day" was held in 1921. The idea was originated by John D. McKee, college business manager who was alumni secretary at that time.

The date, "December 11," was selected for the annual meeting of Wooster Club because it is significant in Wooster's history. On December 11, 1900, the library was dedicated. On December 11, 1901, fire destroyed "Old Main," six-story brick building which housed most of the college classrooms and laboratories. On December 11, 1902, dedication exercises were held for four buildings, Severance, Scovel, Kauke and Taylor halls and for the powerplant which was dismantled this fall to be replaced by the new $225,000 Herman Westinghouse power plant.

Wooster clubs are now organized in forty communities. Each year these clubs meet on or near December 11 to renew college friendships. Faculty members go out from the campus to meet with many of the clubs.

Dr. Charles F. Wishart, president of Wooster since 1919, is read as a part of the evening's program.

GOOD NEWS FOR APPLE MUNCHERS

Good news for apple munchers this year is that there is a big crop, 25 percent larger than a year ago, and well above average. Kentucky produced big yields of Jonathan, Grimes Golden, Staygreen, Rome Beauty and Golden Delicious, all of which are good varieties for cooking and eating raw.

There is no better reason for eating apples than their pleasing flavor and the large number of ways in which they may be enjoyed, point out home-making experts at the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Also, apples are worthwhile nourishment. Eaten with skin on, they are considered good for the digestive tract. They contribute vitamins C, B and G, all needed for health.

ROADSIDE PASTURES MAKE SHOW WINDOWS

How a roadside pasture makes a show window for Dr. H. L. Donovan in Madison county, Kentucky, is related by County Agent J. Lester Miller. Dr. Donovan, in addition to being president of Eastern State Teachers College at Richmond, is a farmer and stock raiser and owns a herd of Hereford cattle. Recently he received a telephone call from Ohio. Would he put a price on two young bulls that had been seen from the highway? Dr. Donovan named the figure, and in a flash the answer came back, "I'll take them!"

THE BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1939

VOLUME 64

NUMBER 29

AVERAGE OF $19.08 PAID ON OPENING DAY OF COVINGTON MARKET—LEXINGTON AVERAGE $17.95, CARROLLTON 18.32

A new high in the number of pounds of burley tobacco sold and total money collected for opening day sales at the Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse, Covington was registered Tuesday.

Tuesday's sales at the warehouse totaled 197,320 pounds. This exceeded previous records, including opening sales for 1938, which totaled 115,010 pounds.

The record number of pounds sold Tuesday brought $37,666.58, thus establishing a record for total money, Herbert Whitley, general manager said. Last year's opening day crop sold for $22,674.41, it was pointed out.

Another feature recorded at the Covington market Tuesday was an average of $19.08 a hundred pounds. This price bettered the opening figure Monday at Lexington, the nation's No. 1 market, which reached but $17.95 a hundred pounds.

Although the Covington price Tuesday exceeded the downstate price for 100 pounds, it fell below last year's average of $19.29 at the Covington warehouse.

When sales opened, with R. G. Kinman, Florence, auctioneer, hundreds of persons followed the familiar chant throw row after row of the weed.

By the time the sales were ended for the day, at approximately 3:35, the floor had been cleared of all tobacco which had been placed on sale.

The top basket brought $27.50 a hundredweight Tuesday for 282 pounds grown by V. P. Kearns, of Walton. The second highest price also was paid to Kearns for approximately 420 pounds, which brought $27 a hundredweight. This tobacco was chipped, officials said.

Good casing weather of the last three weeks more than doubled the offerings for Carrollton's opening burley tobacco sale. About 178,016 pounds were sold for $14,181.33, bringing the average price per hundred to $18.32. The top price paid Tuesday was 28 cents a pound for a basket in the Brit-Lite Warehouse.

LICENSE EXAMINER TO BE IN BURLINGTON MONDAY & THURSDAYS

Dividend Tickets
Proudly Displayed

The subject for discussion of many Boone countians this week was what they will do with the cash they hope to receive in the Pre-Christmas Dividend drawing in Covington. The writer has made it a point in the past few weeks to inquire of the local Christmas Shoppers and get their viewpoint on the Dividend drawing. We have contacted many persons holding Dividend tickets and all seem to take a great interest in the drawing and are looking forward to the 15th.

Of all the persons we have contacted, Wallace "Hop" Clore, of Burlington is the holder of the largest number of tickets. Mr. Clore is displaying Dividend tickets to the amount of seventy-six dollars that he received in Covington Saturday. Hop, of course, has high hopes of being among the lucky persons at the drawing on December 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graves and daughter, called on friends here Friday evening.

INAUGURATION DRAWS CROWD

FROM ALL SECTIONS OF STATE—REPRESENTATIVES FROM BOONE COUNTY JOIN IN PARADE.

Keen Johnson, 43-year-old newspaper publisher and first of his clan to become governor of Kentucky, Tuesday began a four-year term as Chief Executive of Kentucky following elaborate ceremonies traditional to all inaugurations.

Simultaneously Rodas K. Myers, 39, lawyer, orator and legislator for six years, became lieutenant governor.

Inaugural ceremonies in front of the new capitol were preceded by a fashionable parade in which public officials, political organizations, American Legion posts, National Guard units, college bands and others participated.

The parade, cut into eight divisions, had representatives from all sections of the state in attendance. It began promptly at 10:30 a. m. (CST) with Grand Marshal Carl D. Norman in charge in North Frankfort and marched to the new capitol. Altogether it was a glamorous affair.

At the new capitol there were a number of speeches made before the constitutional oath against dueling and for faithful discharge of the duties of the governorship and lieutenant governorship was administered by Chief Justice Alex L. Raitiff of the Court of Appeals.

The state's two senators, Alben W. Barkley and A. B. Chandler, each spoke. So, too, did Franklin County Judge L. Boone Hamilton and Mayor D. D. Smith before the governor's inaugural was delivered.

This is not the first time Keen Johnson has assumed the duties of the governorship. He first became governor two months ago when A. B. Chandler resigned to go to the U. S. Senate, upon the death of M. M. Logan. Then he was a candidate also for the governorship.

His assumption of the governorship Tuesday was based upon a commission from the people themselves, who gave him an emphatic 106,000-vote lead in the recent election administer the affairs of government.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

A new Governor was sworn in Tuesday at Frankfort, to take up his duties for the next four years. He is faced with existing situations that will test his mettle, but we know that he is fitted to meet each crisis and will work them out in a way that is best for the State and its citizens.

The huge building program of the last administration must be paid for during this one. The teachers' retirement fund brings its new burden of three quarters of a million dollars yearly to be met. The old age pensions are increasing and the road fund must have new revenue for the repairs that are much needed and will have to be done.

On top of all of this increased expense, the State revenue has been rapidly declining and the expenditures for the last five months of this fiscal year were thousands of dollars more than the revenue. Whiskey taxes have declined rapidly, and with the war in Europe, Kentucky's large distilleries will do less exporting, which will materially hurt the State revenue.

The new Governor has stated that he is going to do everything in his power to make the State live within its income without increasing taxes. The only possible solution is one that we believe is going to happen—a sharp increase in business with the resulting revenue to the State.

Whatever new things may come up, the Governor is going into his administration burdened with the State debt of more than $9,000,000 and of budget requests for the coming year that exceed the revenue by more than $1,000,000.

It's a tough job, Keen, but we believe you can do it.

A new bill that is being planned by a group of county judges and legislators to be brought up at the General Assembly in January will, it is claimed, be the perfect solution to pay off county debts. The representative who is working on the bill claims that the 95 Kentucky counties that are in debt can receive revenue from a 3 percent tax on paramental betting that will bring the State close to $1,000,000 a year, but this tax will be no burden to the taxpayers and will eventually pay off all county debts.

He cites the case of the State of Florida who have been extremely successful with a similar plan, and he has the backing of a number of county judges who are interested in getting their counties out of debt.

It sounds like a swell idea to us and we believe that no one with the interest of the State at heart will oppose it. It is a sure thing that the winners at a race track

Salvation Lassies Retain Yule Spirit Of Founder Booth

Christmas will be happier for thousands of homeless people this year because Catherine and William Booth carried the torch of evangelism from their New Connexion church in England in 1861 and started the Salvation Army. Today that torch is being carried by the second Booth to succeed the founder, Gen. Evangeline Booth, who in turn succeeded Bramwell Booth in 1934.

Evangeline Booth

So familiar at Christmas time, the Salvation Army's group singing on street corners and "boilingkettles" for which contributions are solicited, had their beginning in the youthful reformer of 19 who was almost stoned to death preaching in slums and denouncing "rum." Penniless and with four children, the Booths worked tirelessly in London amid taunts of critics, yet old General Booth lived to banter with jovial King Edward and be consulted by heads of European governments.

He also lived to see the Salvation Army become better established in the United States than in England, to see it acquire banks, insurance companies, factories, public houses, farms, hospitals and cadet schools, all the outgrowth of the "expeditionary" force of seven lassies sent here in 1890 under George Scott Railton.

Kiss the Maiden Under Mistletoe— But Follow Rules!

It's still a nice custom this Christmas to kiss the young lady under the mistletoe, but your efforts are in vain unless it's done properly.

Every time someone kisses under the mistletoe a berry should be plucked from the branch, for only so many blessings are bestowed as there are berries. And don't let the mistletoe fall to the ground. Otherwise its properties of good luck and healing will be destroyed.

Many a romantic story surrounds this plant. The berries represent tears from this legend:

A Scandinavian god, Balder, dreamed he would die. When he told his mother, the goddess Friga, she made earth fire, air, water and all animals and plants promise they wouldn't harm her son.

But she overlooked the mistletoe, for its roots were nailed in the earth nor air. So one of Balder's enemies fashioned an arrow from the plant and that was the end of Balder. The tears of the heartbroken goddess fell thick and fast, and froze into the berries.

Having such a heathen origin, mistletoe is seldom included in church schemes of decoration. But despite this ban few maids care to risk making the legend come true that "she who is not kissed under the mistletoe at Christmas will not be married in the year which follows."

If you want to be lucky, remember the rules.

would not object and it wouldn't make any difference to the losers.

The tobacco market opening this week is causing a land office rush on all the warehouses. As many of the farmers are selling their tobacco to get Christmas money, we believe prices will be above last year, as the quality of the tobacco is much better.

NOTED SPEAKERS TO ADDRESS WOMEN AT FARM, HOME MEETING

Noted speakers at the meeting of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers during the annual Farm and Home Convention at the University of Kentucky January 30 to February 2, include Dr. Louise Stanley, head of the Bureau of Home Economics in the United States Department of Agriculture. She will make two addresses.

Other speakers to the women are Mrs. Grace Sloan Overton, home economist, and Miss Ella Gardner, recreational specialist, both of Washington, D. C., and A. Drummond Jones, economist of the Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

General sessions will be held the first and last days of the Farm and Home Convention, with special meetings Wednesday and Thursday devoted to dairying, stock raising, soils and crops, agricultural engineering, beekeeping, fruit growing, the rural community and rural church, agricultural adjustment, and control of stock diseases.

James Poole, Chicago livestock authority, will return to Lexington February 2 to address beef cattle producers attending the Farm and Home Convention.

Kentucky Master Farmers will be presented the first day of the convention, with recognition ceremonies conducted by Dean Thos. F. Cooper of the College of Agriculture and W. C. Lassiter, editor of The Progressive Farmer.

Only Insured House Undamaged by Cyclone

SPRINGVILLE, N. Y. — The only farmhouse which escaped damage when a windstorm swept picturesque Fox valley was the only one with cyclone insurance. "The insurance salesman came to the farm, which F. F. Halloway, owner of the house, said, 'He told me my cyclone insurance had expired and asked if I wanted to take out some more. I said all right, and the next day the wind came.'"

John Nance Garner of Texas Lauded in New Campaign Song

DALLAS—A swinging melody and catchy words—in a new song about John Nance Garner, Vice President, has just been published under the title: "Cactus Jack," by the song-writing combination of Rex Lampman and Jack Foy.

Amateur song-writers have deluged the Dallas headquarters of the Garner-for-President campaign with new verses, of their own writing. The song has eight verses, but only four are printed herewith, as follows:

I
In Texas down by the Rio Grande
There's plenty of work for a good cowhand,
And the milk and honey and hot tamales
And the sweetest bunch of 'em you'll find.
And you say to strangers "how do you do,"
There's a blue bonnet girl and there's Cactus Jack.

Chorus:
Cactus Jack, he's a-riding straight,
Riding straight for the White House gate.
Don't look away, don't look away,
You can't look away from Texas.

II
We'll tell you this about Cactus Jack:
He's quick on the trigger of a wisecrack,
Just as wise as an old horned toad—
There ain't very much he's never knowned
He can bottle a yearling quicker as you wash.

III
If the river ain't dry he'll catch you a fish;
He'll look right into that White House cat.
He's got no time for a feud nor a quarrel
And when you see his spurs and hat,
You know there goes a Democrat!
He can uncork a speech, let freedom ring,
Skip the back of a Brit, and Cactus Jack with his leg.

IV
We'll tell you this about Cactus Jack:
He's hit the trail and he won't turn back;
He's riding high and he's riding straight,
And he's headed for the White House gate.
From Amarillo to San Antonio,
They'll tell you Jack has never been thrown;
No, he's ridden Cactus Jack,
He'll hand his hat to the White House rack.

Christmas Hymns Ring From Depths Of Michigan Mine

ISHPEMING, MICH. — "Silent Night, Holy Night" drifts mysteriously up the pitch-black Morris mine shafts here. Down below, 1,500 feet underground, 200 grimy-faced workmen pause for the world's most unique Christmas party, an annual event held at the Inland Steel company's iron mine here.

Finns and Austrians, Swedes and Englishmen, Italian and Irishmen, these helmeted giants of the earth join lustily in Christmas hymns as elevators carry them to the 1,500-foot level where their party is held. "Genial Jim" Fowler, 225-pound timber boss, strides forth in a Santa Claus costume and takes his place at the brightly lighted tree. Like children around a tree at home, the miners stand eager and expectant. Gifts are rib-tickling reminders of errors during the year. Last year, for example, the mine carpenter was given a rule—inspired by a six-inch error made a few months earlier.

GOVERNMENT TO HELP PRODUCERS OF DARK TOBACCO

A plan is announced from Washington whereby the Commodity Credit Corporation will make loans through farmer cooperative associations for the purchase of a portion of the dark tobacco crop normally taken by British manufacturers.

Cooperative associations will be advanced $5.72 to $7.98 a hundred pounds, depending on the type of tobacco, or an amount equal to the cost of the tobacco on warehouse floors plus $1.75 to $3 a hundred pounds. It is planned to lend enough to cover not more than 30 million pounds at a cost not exceeding $4,000,000.

The purpose of the loan plan is to stabilize the market for dark tobacco, and it is expected that prices will average near the prices paid by the foreign companies for similar grades of tobacco in 1938.

At the same time the loan plan was announced, it was stated that the total supply of fire-cured and dark air-cured tobacco is less than the reserve supply level defined in the Farm act, and that no marketing quota will be proclaimed for the 1940 dark tobacco crop.

The total supply of dark tobacco as of October 1, 1939, was 310,000,000 pounds. The reserve supply, or quota level, is 341,000,000 pounds. Consumption and exports of this tobacco in 1938 totaled about 143,000,000 pounds, as com-use, may obtain a supply by calling at the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for their districts. These forms are for returns covering the calendar year 1939 or fiscal year beginning in 1939 and ending in 1940.

Commissioner Helvering explained that making these returns available at this time was in response to urgent requests from persons required to prepare large numbers of returns on Form 1041, who represented that such action would materially facilitate the timely filing of such returns. He also stated that the individual corporation and partnership income tax return forms will be available for release or distribution on January 3, 1940.

DECEMBER IS LAST DAY TO FILE FOR TAX REFUND

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering today called attention to the fact that December 31, 1939, is the last day for filing with Collectors of Internal Revenue claims for refund of taxes paid under the Agricultural Adjustment Act and claims for payment with respect to inventories held on January 6, 1936, of articles made from commodities which were subject to the processing tax under the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

The time limits for filing claims of this character originally expired several years ago. However, during the last session of the Congress legislation was passed which extended the filing periods up to and including December 31, 1939. As a result of the extension of the periods for filing these claims many new claims are being filed. Claims which were previously rejected solely on the ground that they were filed too late under the old time limitations are being reopened by the Bureau for further consideration.

Commissioner Helvering expressed the belief that persons who have already filed claims should make sure that their claims adequately protect their rights. Any claimant, the Commissioner said, who doubts that his claim as filed is adequate to protect his rights should file a new or amended claim on or before December 31, 1939.

Live Stock Outlook For 1940 As Seen By Norris Brock Co.

With business activities being sustained at present high levels, employment on the increase, more commodities being consumed than any time since 1929, the banks loaded with the peoples' money, forecasters predicting Christmas trade boom that will rival pre-depression years, we are looking into the future with much optimism as far as the prospects for 1940 are concerned.

With almost the balance of the whole world at war, it looks like it is, or will presently be up to us to feed them. Just now we are selling and they are buying principally airplanes and ammunition, neither of which nor all of which will feed a single citizen of any warring nation, but will rather cut down the producing power of those countries, a great many of which already are on a ration basis. How many of us are willing to go hungry to buy non-essential engines of destruction? Think!

We say to you that a hungry people must and will be fed. Right at the present time our live stock feeders are being persecuted by an unprecedented overproduction of poultry products of all kinds. This is of a seasonal nature, and we are of the opinion that by the middle of January, 1940 our consuming public will have become surfeited with this kind of food, and turn again to the old standbys, pork, beef, veal, etc. We look for better prices for hogs especially in 1940, commencing by the middle or latter part of January. Our importations of pork amounting to over one million pounds weekly has been cut off almost entirely, and while our importations of canned beef is rapidly increasing, we look for better prices for our cattle also, as our production is less than actual and potential consumption, and if we can (and we must) preserve our own market against cheap South American beef, our producers will be well repaid for their corn and other feeds.

Our hogs have run out their five year price cycle, and we do not think they will go as low as Secretary of Agriculture Wallace predicts, namely 5c per pound on tops.

Grains of all kinds look higher for 1940, in fact, war or no European war, the out-look for price advancement in all farm products were never better.

Respectfully,

Norris Brock Company.

RID THE HOME OF ACCIDENT RISKS

Why not a New Year's resolution to rid the home of those accident-producing hazards?

The suggestion is offered by the National Conservation Bureau, accident prevention division of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives, which reminds us that last year the home came within an eyelash of equaling traffic as a producer of fatal accidents. "We are accustomed to seasonal house cleaning, and even painting and renovating campaigns," the National Conservation Bureau points out in a safety bulletin. "Then why not an equally vigorous cleaning up of those conditions which cause falls, burns, cuts and other injuries, which always result in pain and sometimes in death."

"A better New Year's resolution, and one that is easy to keep, could not be made.

"Fires can be prevented by keeping candles away from the Christmas tree, placing the tree away from the fire-place or other source of flame, and by having the electrical wires and bulbs used to decorate the tree or the room are of approved type and in safe condition.

"Are floors slippery, the stair treads worn or cracked? Are there piles of rubbish in the backyard or basement? Are fireplaces protected, sharp tools safely stored away?

Are poisons kept locked, beyond the reach of small children? Are there any loose sockets, frayed electrical wires or leaky gas appliances? Are cleaning fluids and matches used with due caution?

"These are a few of the items a safety-conscious householder will check if she wants to enter the new year on a safer foundation in the home. Most home hazards can be removed at little or no expense; usually the only thing needed is a reasonable degree of resolution. "Every family head should include in his or her list of New Year's resolutions one to let home accidents take a permanent holiday."

THE FARM AND HOME

To sharpen hog-butcher knives, use a fine-grained grindstone, with plenty of water to keep the blade cool, or the knives may be filed. Finish with a whetstone or oil stone, keeping the surface of the oil stone covered with oil.

A warm moist mash fed about noon tends to encourage egg production. About three pounds of moistened mash is sufficient for 100 hens. This is not a substitute for dry mash. Liberal feeding of grain keeps the pullets in good condition.

In selecting a beef cattle sire, keep in mind a blocky, compact body, broad well-sprung ribs and deep chest. The loin should be broad, with good width throughout the length of the body, with a straight top and bottom line, and short straight legs.

If ice-cream mix is made 3 to 24 hours before freezing and kept cold during this period, the ice cream may be smoother and the yield greater than if the mix is frozen immediately. Sherbets in which fresh-fruit juice is used should not be allowed to stand before freezing because flavors and vitamin C are lost.

It is inadvisable to can meat in jars that have held such commercial products as salad dressing, peanut butter or pickles, since they usually are not adapted for tight sealing, and sometimes are not strong enough to withstand proper pressure.

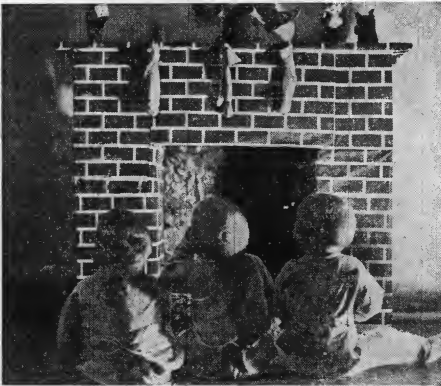

Tests indicate that light-weight electric irons of 1000-watt rating are more convenient, easier to use and give as good results as heavier irons. Good pressing results from heat, moisture and back-and-forth movement, as well as from weight.

Had Varied Career
In Many CountriesHermit Now Lives Peaceful Life in Rural England.

LONDON.—Charlie Turpin, who was once a cowboy in Canada and Texas, and soldier in the World war, now is a hermit.

Eight years ago he established himself in his present home, an earthen cage, near the banks of the River Stour at Harlow, Essex.

It took him an hour and a half to dig his home. He furnished it with a bunk and a stove. For ornaments he has scores of curios collected in all parts of the world.

He is known locally as Charlie the Hermit.

Nell, his dog, helps him by catching wild fowl. A small pension from a war wound is his income.

This 63-year-old ex-public school boy began his travels as a sailor in the royal navy. Then he went to America and became a cowboy.

Once in Alberta he was rounding up a herd of stampeding cattle when his mustang reared and threw him. His neck was smashed. But there were no doctors and so the knee did not heal perfectly.

Turpin was one of the first recruits of the Canadian expeditionary forces in 1914. He was severely wounded, gassed and shell-shocked.

After the war he went to Australia, where he worked in the mines for two years.

Then he stowed away on a ship and came to England—to be a hermit.

North Pacific Charted
For Commerce or War

SEATTLE.—The floor of the North Pacific ocean, with its deep valleys and 10,000 crags, is the site of unprecedented activity by the United States coast and geodetic survey. Rear Adm. L. O. Colbert, survey director, explained here that charts of the Alaskan coast held significance both in war and peace.

"Few persons realize the strategic importance of the Aleutian islands," Admiral Colbert declared. "They extend almost a thousand miles to the westward of Alaska, ending only six hundred miles from Japan."

Since the navy has increased its operations in Alaska, the survey has sent five vessels to Seattle. A sixth vessel, the $1,250,000 survey ship Explorer, will be added to the fleet next spring upon completion here.

It will be seven more years, the admiral said, before the Aleutian islands are charted. An undersea mountain more than 10,000 feet high was discovered in the area within recent weeks. The same survey showed a valley 24 miles long extending parallel to the islands.

"In the Bering sea there are 750,000 miles of uncharted sea," the survey director stated. "South of the Aleutian islands an ocean domain the size of the State of Washington waits to be charted."

The main task of the survey, he said, was to protect waterborne commerce from undersea hazards—in war or peace.

War Toughens Man's Job
Of Protecting Horses

LONDON.—Wars and crises have greatly increased the work of a Briton who has devoted 42 years to protection of animals in Italy. Since 1937 he has directed his work from a London nursing home. Commendatore Leonard Hawkley receives a large subsidy from the Italian government. Italy is short of horses due to the wars in Ethiopia and Spain. Wherever possible they are used instead of motor trucks, because gasoline is 90 cents a gallon. Horses are being worked to death, he says, and others are being starved through lack of fodder.

Germany Need Permits
To Buy Textile Articles

BERLIN.—Permits must be obtained in Germany to purchase any textile goods, down to handkerchiefs and dusters. One person is entitled to own two dresses or suits, two pairs of shoes and six handkerchiefs. One piece or tube of shaving soap may be bought every 24 months. All toilet soap has been requisitioned for use in hospitals, and a special "war soap" is to be sold.

Fruit of Their Labor
DROMA. AUSTRALIA.—Men who fought a grass fire that was sweeping an orchard here were rewarded when they found that the flames had baked all the apples on one tree just right for eating.

Millions of Children
Have Vision Defects

PHILADELPHIA.—Ten million American school children have faulty vision that needs corrective treatment, according to Harry L. List, secretary of the public health bureau of the American Optometric association.

"Hundreds of tests and examinations—especially to those from the lower income brackets—have disclosed a great number of vision ailments which will develop into serious problems unless they are immediately corrected," he said.

Rumors of hog cholera outbreaks caused Carroll county farmers to resort to vaccination.

Twenty-three Fleming county farmer sowed vetch as a green manure crop. Others seeded Italian rye grass as a cover crop.

If the sun shines through the apple tree on Christmas day, there will be a good crop the following year.

If ice will bear a man before Christmas, it will not bear a mouse afterward.

Thunder and lightning Christmas week means much snow the rest of the winter.

Wet causes more damage than frost before than after Christmas. If it snows Christmas night, the hop crop will be good next year.

At Christmas meadows green, at Easter covered with frost. If windy Christmas day, trees will bear much fruit.

by L. L. STEVENSON

Brains: A woman, loaded down with two grips, endeavored to leave the Forty-second street station of the city-owned and operated subway by means of one of those turnstiles which revolve in only one direction and this kept out those who would ride free. When the thing made a part turn, she found that while she could get through all right she would have to leave her baggage behind. So she called for assistance. Two young men responded. One thought that by hanging the bags on the crossarms the exit could be made. But again the thing clogged. Then the other had a bright idea. He pulled the two grips back inside. Next he ground the lady out. Then, placing one bag on the floor, he slid that out to her with the revolution of the turnstile and did the same thing with the remaining luggage. And the woman went on her way with much gratitude.

New York Surprises: Four clocks in one block and all keeping the same time. . . . A skyscraper apartment house with a sign "100 per cent rented" and a chalk mark notation beneath "Thank Goodness" . . . A taxicab driver apologizing to a pedestrian for all but giving him a fender brushing . . . A chicken trotting dignifiedly across Forty-third street . . . A busy traffic cop sucking on a penny lollypop . . . A "timid soul" type of man standing under a "No Smoking" sign in the subway puffing away on a big black cigar in a way refusing a tip because he had spilled coffee on the tablecloth . . . An old auto painted with wisecracks and filled with young boys and girls proceeding through the street slowly and quietly. (All noted by Johnny Green.)

Difficulty: Among the hundreds who collect match-book covers is a Broadway press agent. He is not a general collector, however, but a specialist. Only match-books issued by now-defunct night clubs interest him. Included in his warren or whatever collectors of match-book covers keep them in, are some specimens which go clear back to the days of prohibition. However, lately he has been thinking about making a switch. His collection has grown to such an extent that he just about believes it would be better to save only souvenirs from clubs which remain in business.

Musical: Phil Baker's mansion up at Marmaroneck has 14 rooms, six baths, a four-car garage and 36 (count the telephone). He has a telephone in every room, including the bathrooms and the garage. Not satisfied with that, he had an inter-house system installed whereby, by every except the bathrooms and the garage, can be dialed from any other room. The telephone company also services the house system. The hardest job was to satisfy a whimsey of Mr. Baker. She insisted on having each one of the phone bells tuned to a different pitch.

Information: In a conversation with a stalwart young man who makes his living by working under water and who at present toils in the Queens-Midtown tunnel under the East river, I learned that sand hogs, as workmen such as he are known, are always glad when they come to solid rock. The reason is that when the roof of the tunnel is muck, air pressure has to be used to keep the water from seeping in and drowning everybody. It's hot and hard labor when there is air pressure, also the risk of that painful and often deadly disease known as "the bends." When rock is reached, there is no longer need from air pressure. Hence the relief.

End Piece: Whenever I pass those public lockers in subway stations, I wonder what's in them. One day last summer, public lockers out at the World's fair were found to be full of live geese, the birds having been prizes in some kind of contest and the lucky ones not wishing to carry them around, had deposited them. Recently, in a locker in a midtown subway station, the police found 32 sticks of dynamite which had been placed there by a safe blower. They collared that yegg but there's no telling when another may follow his example. (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Deacon Reads Bible Yearly LONDON.—Every year since 1902, William Olney, 90 years old, London, has read his Bible from beginning to end. He is Spurgeon's Tabernacle's oldest deacon.

The tables were all beautifully decorated with Xmas trimmings and candles. There was special music and a talk by Rev. O. M. Huey who has retired from the Louisville Orphan's Home and now resides in Florence was enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bell and family entertained with a hog killing last Wednesday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wernz and sons Harry and Adam, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gross, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Eggleston, Miss Fannie Utz, Mrs. Dolch and brother and Brice Darby.

Dr. Love, of Petersburg was called to the home of Mrs. Belle Tanner, who is on the sick list.

Glad to report that Miss Virginia Tanner, who has had scarlet fever, able to be up and around. She will soon be out.

Mr. James Utz and brother Russell, of near Limaburg, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Eggleston and sons.

Miss Fannie Utz called on her aunt, Mrs. Robt. Brown Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Wernz were Christmas shopping in Covington last Wednesday.

HERE AND THERE

Mrs. Cam White was shopping in Covington one day last week. Quite a few men are through stripping tobacco here.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Aylor spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rogers.

Mary Buckler spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Alton Buckler.

Mrs. Helen Buckler spent Friday with her mother, who is ill.

Mrs. Virginia Buckler and daughter Gloria Dean called on Mrs. Elmer Jarrell Friday evening. Rev. T. A. Conley spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hightower.

That fellow who was so long in taking off his winter underwear is getting ready to put it back on again.

You don't have to ring the door-bell on Sunday to find if folks are home in Boone County. Look in the garage.

Gayety Theater News

Fri. and Sat.—"Colorado Sunset"
Sun. & Mon.—"Winter Carnival"
Tuesday—Judge Hardy's Children
Wed. and Thursday, Dec. 20 & 21
"The Women."

Smiley Burnette continues his blundering ways as Gene Autry's pal in "Colorado Sunset," Republic musical western coming to the Gayety Theatre, Friday and Saturday. Gene and the Texas Rangers, famed hillbilly variety act, send Smiley to buy a cattle ranch, but Smiley purchases a cow farm instead, and the boys' adventures follow in a milk war, as a result of the error.

Marie Dressler's fondness for young people was responsible for Jimmy Butler starting a screen career six years ago that evolved through a series of juvenile roles in a very substantial assignment in Walter Wanger's "Winter Carnival," which will be shown at the Gayety Sunday and Monday. Butler is cast as a lovesick freshman in this collegiate drama starring Ann Sheridan and Richard Carlson.

The rural folk in California's San Fernando Valley have their music nowadays since "Lewis Stone's Zazophists" organized. Stone, currently appearing in "Judge Hardy's Children," coming to the Gayety Tuesday, has for years been an expert trap drummer. Among neighbors he found other musicians and organized a little orchestra. They meet at each other's homes and play at parties.

Stone plays the drums, Dr. Chas. Futch the banjo, Freddie Fralick the accordion and Dr. Hiram Weaver the cornet. Fralick is "manager" of the orchestra. He plans to book it for several benefits in the Valley.

With the most brilliant feminine cast ever assembled in Hollywood, "The Women," based upon Clare Boothe's stage success and starring Norma Shearer, Jean Crawford and Rosalind Russell, will be shown at the Gayety Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 20 and 21st.

A cast of 135 actresses, drafted from the stage as well as the screen, appear in the distinguished new comedy-drama which follows the lives of women through beauty salons, gown shops, boudoir and bath, as well as the drama of their everyday lives.

Junior Woodmen Give Christmas Party At Burlington Hall

A Christmas party for Junior members of the Modern Woodmen of America will be held at the Woodman Hall, Burlington, Friday December 15th at 7:30 p. m.

The party is sponsored by all Boone county camps, and will be a treat for all Junior members.

A wrist watch and a fine doll will be given to the lucky ticket holder at the party, it was announced.

Why is it that on one hand they insist their country is over populated, and the next thing they offer rewards for bearing children?

Truck Damaged By Fire Monday

Fire caused slight damage to a truck owned by Willard "Punk" Stephens of Burlington-Florence Monday. The estimated damage was set at $25.00.

The truck was being used in Latonia when the motor back-fired, igniting gasoline in the carburetor. The cab, one tire and the entire wiring system was destroyed.

EARLY OR LATE—DO CHRISTMAS SHOPPING SAFELY

Hurrying crowds engaged in Christmas shopping, with congested streets and sidewalks unusually hazardous because winter weather, make timely the suggestions to pedestrians by Harold F. Hammond, director of the traffic division of the National Conservation Bureau, accident prevention division of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives.

Mr. Hammond says:

1. Be sure of your footing when crossing streets in shopping centers, as motorists may not always see the traffic lights or be able to stop in time.

2. The same factor of large throngs, hurry, slippery pavement, noises that confuse pedestrians in shopping districts, also confuse the motorist. Therefore, don't expect him to do more for your safety than you can do yourself.

3. Avoid carrying large packages, as they may tend to reduce your range of vision and also render you likely to lose your balance and fall.

4. Be doubly careful when crossing streets with children, and avoid large groups where they may get crushed.

5. On crowded sidewalks be careful not to stand too close to the curb, as an unintentional push from behind may throw you onto the roadway.

6. Because jay-walking is one of the greatest causes of pedestrian accidents remember to cross the street at the intersections.

7. Night shoppers should use double precaution for two-thirds of pedestrian accidents occur then.

A FINE GIFT IF YOU GIVE IT THE RIGHT WAY

If you are planning to give your son or daughter an automobile for Christmas, says John J. Hall, safety division director of the National Conservation Bureau, make certain you add something will assure it means the cause of pleasure rather than of accident and death—the inculcation of a safe driving attitude.

"Parents contemplating such a gift," said Mr. Hall, "should do three things. First; have the boy or girl who is reaching maturity demonstrate ability to manipulate an automobile efficiently, which includes a knowledge of the traffic laws of the state and of the city where most of the driving is to be done.

"Second: reach an agreement that the car will be used only until such time as the driver violates a law or is involved in an accident. A summons for an infraction of a traffic law should be sufficient for parents to suspend or revoke use of the car.

"Third the parent should supply a list of safe-driving suggestions, which the young driver should be pledged to follow. Parents who are experienced drivers can make out their own lists, which should include reasons for moderation in speed, driving only when in possession of all faculties, having consideration for pedestrians, particularly children, and maintaining brakes and other essential safety equipment in good condition at all times."

WHITE TAIL DEER SEEN IN SHELBY CO.

Frankfort, Ky.—According to reports received by Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, white tail deer have been seen in Shelby county, this state.

R. C. Haley, a farmer of the northeastern section of Shelby county, reported having seen a large Virginia white-tailed deer near his herd of cattle. He said the animal leaped fences with ease when approached and was last noticed on the farm of Mrs. John J. Cotter, near Vigo, across the Christiansburg road from the Haley place.

Ohio county farmers are watching an attempt to make ensilage from lespedeza hay and molasses.

MUSKIES STRIKING IN BARREN RIVER

Although most of the fishermen have put up their tackle for the rest of the year, a Mr. Hollingsworth of Bowling Green is now having his best luck of the season, fishing in Barren river for the "fighting muskie."

According to information received from Claude Meredith, Advisory Commissioner for the Division of Game and Fish from Bowling Green, Hollingsworth has caught four of the fighting muskies within the past three weeks in Barren river in Warren county. The largest weighed 22 pounds; the next weighed 14; the next 13, and the smallest tipped the scales at nine pounds. Artificial bait was used to lure these fish from the cool depth of Barren river.

Hollingsworth is employed at the Dixie Garage in Bowling Green.

You can't say that the girls of today, don't put all their stock in the show window when they are out to get a man.

"Aside from its purley business and emergency uses, the telephone is something that every member of the farm family can use and enjoy. Its keeps Mother in touch with her friends and neighbors and the social activities of church and school. The children plan their dates and parties, and visit one another by telephone. USE THE HEAD

It approaches us again, as night follows the day, the season for colds in the head when paper tissues appear in folds and pockets. The men of medicine have given us much but they admit they are stumped by the common cold which is too common indeed. There didn't seem to be much use, in early years, of guarding against this unpopular complaint. If you had it you snuffed and sneezed, coughed and blew, and continued to carry on your numerous duties without much thought for yourself and your neighbor. Today, after research has shown the light, the child who carries a common cold to school, carries it into many of the homes of his town. The husband and father who uses no care in spreading his sneeze, hands it around to all members of the family who show little appreciation for the donation. The mother who fondles her young transmits this small head cold to another who can't fight it quite so well. We are much wiser in matters of prevention and sanitation due to our physicians, scientists and their investigations, but of what avail their research if we do not practice their advice. We might use our heads for something besides an arena for a snuffle and a snuff by using precaution and consideration. Keep the child home from school for a few days and protect the schoolmates. Stay home yourself from the office and give your fellow workers a break. No one loves a good provider when he is providing a common cold.

A RECOLLECTION

A regional director of the Farm Security Administration, has suggested that ruralites with small farms and small incomes, dust off the old family churn of their yesterdays and go back to making butter as of yore minus electrical gadgets and mechanical devices. This request comes in the interest of economy but to many a local reader it deals with a far more picturesque way of life.

There is the recollection of careful hands bringing the crock of cream from a cool cellar or pantry when the churning was in order. There is the remembrance of a lad sitting in a spotless farm kitchen, munching an apple or dipping into a pan of popcorn with a book propped up in front of him as with swishing and plunging he helps to form the thick cream into golden butter. A churn was evident in every farm picture and the vaguely familiar to many of us in Boone County, to whom it recalls days gone by. The family churn has since become an antique in many cities. It used to stay in the nearby woodshed until need while today the machine is probably lined up with an electric washer or sweeper. The way may be more progressive and the result more satisfactory but it does mean that sentiment has become practical through the power of current.

TO BE SURE

You can't help but notice how well-oiled is the machinery. The old family differences don't seem to arise as frequently these weeks. Duties are accomplished without much fuss. Short answers and pouting is very infrequent. Studies are undertaken with vigor and clothes hung up without a great to do. The general air is one of unusual accord and harmony. In fact, it is almost too good to last and it won't after the 25th in most homes. As we recall, we used to brush our teeth extra hard, give a thorough cleaning, hands and elbows a harder scrubbing, when Christmas was in the offing. And after all nothing essential to the real spirit of Christmas has changed with the years. We are the same and so are the children.

Many a parent in Boone County would like to have his child say "please" other times besides December.

WATCH FOR IT
We repeat, watch out for propaganda. The press is trying to label it for the readers, but the means to an end goes on all about us and often hard to distinguish from facts. German propaganda dropped in America states that England sold poisoned gas to Poland and Poland used it in fighting. In Switzerland colored balloons bore part of a Hitler speech printed in French, on the sides. These were meant for French soldiers but a strong wind carried them into Switzerland. Each time we read of such means we wonder if this is a war of the pen rather than of the gun.

A GOOD SLOGAN

The ink never seems to dry on those many cases of graft and wild speculation where investors lose small and large sums of money daily on wild schemes concocted by easy consciences. The man who has made his money out, should inquire carefully, thoroughly and painstakingly into the ground-work of the organization that is to handle his money. The "other fellow" learned too late and you are able to profit by his carelessness. Be prudent rather than unguarded and consider wisely the slogan of the nation's Better Business Bureau, "Before you invest—investigate."

PLAIN TIRED

Overheard a chap say the other day, when asked how he was, "I'm fatigued." It sounded too effeminate to us for the word seems purely a ladies way of letting you know she is "all in." Another thing, the word fatigue doesn't sound quite as weary as "tired out." It does not have the impression of complete physical exhaustion but more of the idea that the body might be in shape to go again without too much effort. But to this editor's way of thinking, when the body seems taxed by labor and the mind is overworked from strain, fatigue isn't strong enough for meaning you are dog-tired, more dead than alive, ready to drop, played out or worn to death! Few of us who do not feel this weariness and are not lapped of energy during the days of the night. A night of restful sleep passes off this backache and sore muscles. We arise to a fresh start and begin another day with a zest in our endeavor to do as much as lies within our power in the new, untouchable frontier of strain. For the man who has never been exhausted we have a sign of regret for he has not missed the grand feeling to be renewed and refreshed, to pursue one's work.

OF IMPORTANCE

A boon to womanhood is the new hose put on the market for last month. These stockings are made chemically from coal, water and air. The hope is to find a stocking that won't run and will last madame longer than the flimsy affairs she has to replace too frequently. The news of bottling milk in paper cartons to cut down on expense for housewife is welcome to almost everyone, but does not create the concern to Boone county women as does a no-run pair of stockings!

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for December 17

PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:34, 35-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—Incline your ear, and come unto me; hear, and your soul shall live.

Teaching by parable, a method so often used by our Lord Jesus Christ, has many advantages. A parable (which is a story relating events in common life to teach or illustrate spiritual truth) is useful in stimulating interest and attention, in making the truth clear, in fixing it in the hearer's memory, and in attracting for further instruction those who are interested even as it eliminates those who make no response. Jesus was the master of this art of teaching. Others have learned from Him.

The interpretation of the parables of Jesus has brought forth much difference of opinion. The important point to bear in mind is that the interpretation must be one consistent with other Scripture as well as with our Lord's own revelation of its meaning when given. We have His own interpretation of the parable of the Sower (Matt. 13:18-23), but He did not interpret the other parables of our lesson, leaving it for us to carefully seek their meaning and gladly receive their instruction.

Take Heed How You Hear (vv. 3-9).

This parable is rightly called the parable of the Sower for our Lord so named it (v. 18), but as we read it we see that the lesson it teaches relates primarily to the four kinds of hearers of the Word of God. There are some who hear and their hearts and minds have so long been the common road over which every worldly influence has passed, that it has become so hard the Word of God finds no lodgment, but is quickly carried away by the birds, which are the "cultures of worldliness" and wickedness (see v. 19). Ready if your heart is like that, ask God to break it up. Let us all shun those hardening influences which destroy our susceptibility to God's Word.

Others there are who hear and the seed takes root, but the soil is so shallow that it has only a quick growth which soon withers. These are those whose life is largely emotional, thrilling and new experience, but not ready to face trials and the responsibilities of life (v. 21). As long as the Christian life looks attractive such shallow folk want to be counted in, but when they learn that it involves sacrifice, they are gone. Shallow souls, pray God to give your life depth and real meaning and worth.

Others hear and receive the truth, but soon permit the cares of life to choke and destroy it (see v. 22). This picture modern life so aptly that one could dwell with profit on the vital lessons here taught. Thank God, seed of the seed brings forth a rich harvest! There is encouragement for every teacher and preacher of the Word of God. Notice (v. 8, 23) that if we should sow the seed in a field it would be good to bear only thirty or sixty.

II. Beware of the Power of Evil (vv. 31-33).
Just as the mustard plant was never intended to grow into a tree in which the birds would dwell, so Christianity was never intended to be a nominally Christianized world empire in which ungodly men, the dark birds of the evil one (v. 19), should find comfortable lodgment. Unfortunately, that is what much of professing Christianity has become. Let those of us who love the Lord beware that we are not misled by it.

The parable of the leaven teaches the same lesson. Always in the New Testament leaven stands for evil (see such passages as Matt. 23:16, 23; 22:14, 16; 1 Cor. 5:6-8; Gal. 5:9). It is any influence that weakens testimony, encourages hypocrisy, formalism or worldliness. Who can deny that this leaven has spread throughout the Church? The Evil One is powerful. Let us beware of his power and of his leaven.

III. Value Redemption Aright (vv. 44-46).

In interpreting this parable we observe that obviously the sinner had nothing to sell with which to buy salvation, even if it were to be bought, which we know it is not (Eph. 2:8). We do give up some things to follow Christ, but are they not the worthless and degrading things? On the other hand, He gave us His all, even to the shameful death of the cross. This He did for His own people, Israel, and what we are even more interested in, for the Church.

Let us value our redemption highly. We have been purchased with the unspeakable price, the blood of our Lord Jesus Christ. Let us then heed the admonition of the apostle Paul, "Ye are bought with a price, therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's" (1 Cor. 6:20).

Just Let Me Tell You A Few Facts About Walking, So You'll Realize Just How Much It Can Do For You.

N. TULCH
Foot Comfort Specialist at—
PEOPLE'S FOOT COMFORT
9th and Madison Covington

The normal heart, you know, beats about seventy-two times a minute and pumps about six ounces of blood with each beat.

Now, in fast walking, or at the rate of four miles an hour—which is how fast you should walk to do you some good—you'll find the normal heart will INCREASE its beat ten times to the minute, pumping six ounces of blood at each beat, gives sixty ounces per minute or 3600 an hour, which is 225 pounds. You can easily see that 225 ADDITIONAL pounds of blood pumped DAILY through your veins means just that much more life to your whole body.

There's no use of my telling you to get out and walk if you are having trouble with your feet, because I know you won't do it, BUT if I tell you how to get rid of those aching, painful feet, first—then there's nothing to keep you from walking every day and benefitting your health by this wonderful exercise.

It has also been found that millions suffer without knowing the reason why—those headaches, those leg pains, and even sleepless nights may be caused by the shoes you are wearing.

THOSE RINGS:
Those bathtub rings! Try making a small bag of turkish toweling with a draw-string at the top. Put inside all the odds and ends of bath soap and hang the bag on faucet or soap dish in the tub. Ask everyone in the family to rub the sides of the tub with this bag at the water line before beginning their bath. It will prevent a ring if your water is not too hard or the bath is not too dirty!

RAILROAD RECONSTRUCTED AT MIDWAY FEMALE SCHOOL

The Lexington and Ohio Railroad was chartered January 27, 1830. It was built of stone sills about fourteen inches thick and from two to eleven inches wide, some of which the writer has seen that were fifteen feet long. These sills were drilled by hand from the stone quarries in Central Kentucky, some of which were opened in making the cuts for the railroad. The sides of the stone sills were smoothed and the rails, strips of iron two and one-half inches wide and one-half inch thick, were attached to these sills by spikes driven into wooden plugs that had been placed eighteen inches apart and four inches deep into the stone. This road was built in this manner from Lexington to the hill above Frankfort down which an incline with stationary engine carried the cars. It was not until 1850 that the tunnel into Frankfort from Lexington was completed, and the road descended by a different route into Frankfort. Two years later (1852) the road was completed from Frankfort to Louisville via La Grange. Frequently the heads of the spikes would wear off and because of the weight of the cars a rail would curl causing what the train men called "snake heads". The actual rails were used in the reconstruction of a section of twenty-eight feet of this track on the campus of the Kentucky Female Orphan School at Midway. Many interested in historic things have visited this school especially to see the old railroad. The funds for the reconstruction of the railroad and the purchase of this historic marker were furnished by Mr. H. Bennett Farris, a Trustee of this school and former railroad man, of Richmond, Ky.

CAR OWNERS CAN NOW PURCHASE TIRES AT LOWEST COST IN 2 YEARS

American car owners may now purchase tires at the lowest prices in two years, according to George Marsh, manager of Goodrich Silvertown Store, Covington.

"Because of the traditional buying habits of tire purchasers, the winter months have long presented a major sales problem to the tire industry. Yet with the constantly increasing use of automobiles, trucks and buses during the winter, there is far less reason for concentration of tire buying in the spring and summer."

"Research has demonstrated that tire wear during the winter is less than during the hot months, so that tires purchased now can be relied upon to give maximum service."

"Inasmuch as prices of crude rubber and other costs entering into tire manufacture have recently shown very large increases, these new prices represent unusual values to the consuming public at this time," Mr. Marsh pointed out.

"We believe that recognition of this fact will give an impetus to tire sales, with resulting benefits to production schedules and employment, just as a change in the timing of the presentation of new automobile models to the American public several years ago contributed greatly to the well-being of the automobile industry," Mr. Marsh said.

TEN PIGS WEIGH TON AND QUARTER

When Carl Hutchison, farmer in Adair county, Kentucky, weighed a litter of 10 pigs he had entered in the State ton-litter contest, they balanced the scales at 2,481 pounds at the age of 5½ months. The pigs were three-fourths Hampshire and one-fourth Chester White blood. The principal feeds used were corn, wheat and skim-milk, with some hominy meal and mixed feed. They always had free access to good water and lespedeza-timothy pasture. The eight heaviest pigs alone exceeded the ton goal, and the litter was reported by County Agent R. B. Rankin as the best produced in the county to date.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

With a large number of materials for making clothing on the market this year, members of homemakers' clubs in Madison county are interested in "buy wisely" information. Many women attended lectures on buying piece goods.

Banks Hudson, Mercer county farmer, reports seeding 21 acres of bluegrass and lespedeza and red clover, 38 acres of bluegrass and lespedeza, 49 acres of alfalfa, 56 acres of bluegrass alone, 101 acres of bluegrass, red clover and lespedeza, and 20 acres of lespedeza on old bluegrass pastures.

Use of green manure crops, with liberal amounts of 20 percent superphosphate broadcast, and a small amount of complete fertilizer in the row, produced the best quality tobacco in Fleming county, according to County Agent, Orem LaMaster.

In visiting farms where some of the first lespedeza was sowed in Clark county, County Agent H. S. Long saw one farm where the stand was good after nine years. The seed used on this field in 1930 cost 50 cents a pound.

H. G. Wagers, Estill county, bought 10 ewes and a purebred ram two years ago, paying $7.50 each for the ewes and $30 for the ram. The first year, lambs and wool paid the cost of the flock, and this year he cleared $107.30.

McCracken county farmers are interested in the use of a cultipacker seeder. This machine is made by adding a grass seed attachment of a wheat drill to a conventional cultipacker, making it possible to do seeding and rolling in one operation.

BURLINGTON HOMEMAKERS

The December meeting of the Burlington Homemakers Club was held at the courthouse the 7th with nineteen members present and two visitors, Mrs. Maude Kelly and Mrs. Zelma Lee Akins. The day was spent making Xmas novelties.

A noon lunch was served. Back-savers for the kitchen will be the project for the January 4th meeting.

The club will entertain with a Xmas party on Wednesday evening, Dec. 20th at 7:30 p. m. at the courthouse for members and their friends. Everyone is to bring a ten-cent gift for Santa's pack, also some article of food or small gift for a gift basket.

Follow the Rules When Addressing Christmas Cards

How do you address a Christmas card to a widow? A divorcee? A business acquaintance? Here are some tips on cards:

Generally speaking, greetings fall into two classes, formal and informal. If you use printed or engraved cards, for formal, the title Miss, Mr., or Mrs. and the name should preferably appear above the greeting. For instance: "Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stanton wish you a Merry Christmas," rather than "A Merry Christmas from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stanton."

On informal cards, signed in ink, the husband's or wife's name should come first, although ordinarily the person signing would put his own name last. In general, the husband's name comes first. These can be signed "Bob and Betty," or "Bob and Betty Bentley," rather than "Mr. and Mrs. Bentley," depending on how well the acquaintance knows you.

No card should ever be sent without a Mr., Mrs. or Miss prefix. An unmarried woman is always addressed as "Miss." A married woman, whether her husband is alive or not, is addressed with "Mrs." prefixed to her husband's full name. Since a woman's maiden name is used only on legal papers or when she uses it professionally, a divorcee's maiden name may be used if it's been established by legal procedure after the divorce was granted.

Cards to a married couple should be addressed Mr. and Mrs., even though you may know only one of them. If it's a business acquaintance and you haven't met the recipient's wife, it's permissible to send the card in his name only. Business addresses are quite all right, though there's a bit more courtesy and more personal touch to find out the home address and send the card there.

A family in mourning may send and receive Christmas cards as usual unless the bereavement is very recent—within the last two or three weeks.

Joyous Christmas Was Frowned on By Early Settlers

The joy and singing now associated with Christmas was once forbidden by ultra-pious churchmen of Puritan England. Their disciples who founded New England carried the same repressions for many generations.

In the middle ages Christmas became the greatest of festivals, celebrated with fete, nativity plays and general jollity. Many of our rollicking carols date back to this gay period of yule rejoicing.

Such pomp and merriment marked the Christmas of Shakespeare's England, when a 12-day festive period was observed. Work was abandoned and young and old gave themselves over to merry-making.

The Puritans frowned upon the pleasures of the season, however, so in 1644 Parliament prohibited any festivities and ordered the day kept as a fast.

TOBACCO ACREAGE QUOTAS PROMISED

EARLY NEXT YEAR
Burley tobacco growers may expect their 1940 acreage quotas soon after the first of the year. It is announced from the State Office of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Preliminary work toward establishing individual farm allotments is now under way and it is said that all quotas will be out in January.

Burley growers' diversion payments next year will be 1 cent a pound; for dark tobacco growers, 1.2 cents.

Allotments for commercial wheat growers for next year have been increased, but for commercial corn growers there is a decrease of about 12 percent.

Next year's farm program puts added emphasis on conservation. In Kentucky, O. M. Farrington, state director, says particular stress is to be made in obtaining a sound balance between the spreading of limestone, the seedling of grasses and legumes.

A feature of the program next year entitles a farmer to earn $30 beyond the regular soil-building allowance, by setting forest trees. Black locust and other trees grow rapidly into fenceposts and other useful materials in this state. Seedlings may be had at low cost from the Division of Forestry at Frankfort.

You are always going to have plenty to eat when a man has a hand in preparing the lunch.

Too many toys confuse the child.

keep the children in the house, bring out one or more of the toys in this reserve supply. Or do it when you have special company of your own and want to be sure of peace and quiet. There are two reasons for this. First, children enjoy playing intensively with a few things than being "snowed under" with too many gifts. In the second place, some of the toys they receive at Christmas time may be too complicated for their age.

—Being Directions On How to Carve Christmas Turkey

Gather round ye masters of the Christmas dinner table. Uncle Sam will teach you a lesson:

The government has issued an official bulletin on the proper technique for carving the Christmas turkey.

The bulletin rules on such important problems as whether the father should stand or sit while doing the honors and the position of the turkey on the platter. All you have to do is read this, and carving the festive bird will be a lead-pipe cinch.

"The turkey rides on the platter back down," says the bureau of home economics. ("The first problem is father's: Should he stand or sit while carving?")

There are two schools of thought on this subject, and the government grants father his constitutional rights to do as he pleases. But it is suggested, after deliberation, that a short person had best stand and a tall person should sit for the most effective work. Are you short or tall?

The next problem, says the bulletin, is the point of attack. It is here that many a head of a house, the bureau believes, has lost the Christmas spirit through ignorance or awkwardness—or just plain stubbornness.

Only a few simple rules need be followed. The most important, of course, is to keep the bird on the platter, because it's rather difficult to work on the floor. Also, the bureau estimates, a bird on the platter is worth two on the tablecloth.

"First," the bureau said, "remove the leg from the body by grasping it in your left hand (but what if you're left handed?) and cutting straight down to the hip joint. Remove the wings and the other leg.

"Then place the fork squarely across the breastbone toward the end of the keel, to anchor the bird while you carve the breast in slices; using a slightly sawing motion."

If you don't like the shape of your turkey, or the distribution of dark and white meat, well—why not have your wife carve in the first place?

WHAT MRA MEANS TO AMERICA

Editor's Note: In view of general interest in Moral Re-Armament, roused by plans to have 100,000,000 people "listening to God" the week-end of December 1, 2, 3, this paper is presenting a series of 12 articles on this timely subject. Leaders of MRA will tell just what it is, how it works and what it means to you. This is the first.

By Dubois Morris, Jr.
(Newspaperman and columnist, New York and Washington, D. C.)
What is Moral Re-Armament and what can it mean to America at this time? With bombs bursting and machine guns rattling to east and west of us, what practical action does MRA suggest, and what evidence is there that will prove effective?

The program of Moral Re-Armament is to build in America a pattern for peace that every nation will want when hostilities cease. It is a program in which every man, woman and child can have a part. It is meeting with wide-spread response because it gives everyone something constructive he can do at once. And it gets the results everybody wants.

It was an American, Dr. Frank Buchman, who started MRA among the workers in the east end of London just over a year ago. Among the first to respond in this country were the steelworkers in a Pennsylvania plant.

In the four months since Moral Re-Armament was first launched in America at Madison Square Garden in New York on May 14, millions have heard about the four MRA standards—absolute honesty, unselfishness, love and purity. Radio and newspaper networks have carried the news to countless homes. And the thousands now "listening to God" for direction were the forerunner of 100 million who listened in the week-end of Dec. 1, 2 and 3, according to the present MRA program.

National Leaders Aid

From New York the forces of Moral Re-Armament moved to Washington. There, on the first anniversary of the launching of MRA, cabinet members, ranking senators and congressmen, including the majority and minority leaders of both houses, sponsored a national meeting held in Constitution Hall, June 4. Messages were received from President Roosevelt, Herbert Hoover, General Pershing and other national leaders.

In Minneapolis labor and civic leaders gave MRA fullhearted support. In California the night of July 19, more than 30,000 people crowded into the Hollywood Bowl for the first public gathering on the Pacific coast, and 10,000 were turned away. The meeting marked the opening of the second world assembly for Moral Re-Armament, which met for 10 days on the Monterey Peninsula and held its closing sessions on Treasure Island in San Francisco bay. Two thousand representatives of 30 nations at their own expense or thru the sacrificial giving of men and women in their own country, came an aggregate of over 5,000,000 miles to take part.

These activities of Moral Re-Armament have focused the attention of the world's statesmen on America—during the past two months nine premiers and representatives of 21 foreign parliaments have sent messages of support and encouragement. Thirty-five governors and the mayors of leading American cities have also united to endorse the work.

Fight for New America

"Moral Re-Armament — the fight for a new America, strong, clean, united—should fire the hearts of all red-blooded Americans, and stir their wills to action," said Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd in a recent statement.

Thruout the Pacific Coast MRA is waging this fight. Husband and wife have been reunited in the shadow of the divorce courts. Parents and children have found new understanding. Workers and employers have proved that honest work is the cure for industrial conflict. Political leaders have discovered that there is something they can unite on above party division. Drifting youth and unemployed have found in MRA a job that has given them a new direction and a new morale.

These men and women are giving America a new spirit, a new patriotism—a new pattern of thinking and living. Because they are hate-free in their own lives, they will remain calm, constructive and level-headed in the midst of world turmoil. They will be the force that stabilizes business in the midst of rocketing markets, because they are propaganda-proof and rumor-proof. They will give us the moral fiber to stand up thru the prosperity of a war-boom, should such come. They can keep us out of war, provided we enlist in the eternal battle against selfishness and greed.

How to End War

On Aug. 27, Dr. Frank Buchman, in a broadcast to the world in five languages from San Francisco, which was reprinted three days later in every London newspaper, said: "We have war because we have never yet paid the price of peace—the price of facing with God where we and our nation have been wrong, and how we and our nation, as God directs, can put wrong right. . . . We must point to the new era, the new type of personality, the new home, the new industry, the new types of government that, by the force of its constructive program, will outlaw war and industrial unrest."

That is Moral Re-Armament. Thru MRA American can make her greatest contribution to the world.

Next week: MRA in International Affairs.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Averaging 400 pounds of butterfat and 7,384 pounds of milk, a herd owned by T. A. Rouse, Grant county, has been designated an American Jersey Cattle Club red star herd. The best cow produced 8,619 pounds of milk and 500 pounds of fat in 309 days.

Turkeys running in an alfalfa field have done better than turkeys fed in semi-confinement, for J. R. Jolly & Sons, Breckinridge county, Kentucky. The green alfalfa plus the insects eaten cheapened the cost of raising the birds.

Records kept on eight Johnson county flocks showed an average production of 7 pounds of wool per ewe, and an average of $3 per ewe from the sale of lambs. On November 1, wool and lambs had paid all expenses and an average of $1 a ewe more.

Mrs. W. L. Kessler, Metcalfe county, made a profit of $219 from the sale of eggs from a flock of 183 hens, in the year which ended October 31. She also received $78 from the sale of chickens during the year.

John Holt, Ballard county, re-

LITTER FEEDING OF

HENS SOME BETTER

Tests in feeding hens from hoppers and by scattering the feed in the litter, conducted at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, slightly favored litter-feeding. Hipper-fed hens consume more grain but less mash, and a little more grain and mash per dozen eggs. It took approximately 5 pounds of feed for Leghorns per dozen eggs and 6 pounds for Barred Plymouth Rocks and Rhode Island Reds, where production ranged from 162 to 192 eggs per hen per year. Lower egg production would require more feed per dozen. Where hoppers are used it is important that there be plenty of space in order that timid hens may not be kept away from the feed, says the Station's report. Some poultrymen believe feeding in the litter helps by requiring the hens to exercise.

We may use the European hotel plan in the U. S. but we never have thought much of the European debt plan.

MILLION DOLLARS TO KENTUCKY 4-H CLUB BEEF CALF FEEDERS

A summary of 4-H club beef cattle feeding, furnished by M. S. Garside of the State College of Agriculture, shows that this work has brought a million dollars to Kentucky farm boys and girls in 18 years.

In that time, 11,002 calves fattened by 4-H club members have been exhibited at annual shows at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville. In addition, several hundred calves have been fed but not exhibited. Nearly $50,000 in cash prizes have been awarded to 4-H club members at the shows.

Returns from fat cattle exhibited by club members, together with the cash prizes, totaled $94,424.83. Adding money received for cattle not exhibited would bring the total to more than a million dollars, Mr. Garside said.

At this year's show, members of 4-H and Utopia clubs in 42 counties exhibited 991 head of fat calves, and sold them for $86,751.55. The club members also received $3,636.50 in cash prizes. More than 100 head of club calves were not exhibited, but sold in Louisville or on other markets.

This year, 868 head of 4-H club calves averaged $10.30 a hundred pounds, and 123 head of Utopia club calves averaged $9.93 a hundred.

AMONG THE COUNTY AGENTS

Mack Hopson and S. D. Broadbent, Trigg county farmers, sowed 200 and 175 acres, respectively, to Italian rye grass.

Many Martin county farmers sowed mixtures of crimson clover, vetch and Italian rye grass.

Credit for the purchase of seed, made possible by the Farm Bureau, helped Carroll county farmers earn soil-building payments.

Thirteen trucks equipped with spreaders helped Montgomery county farmers use 2,000 tons of marl and 3,000 tons of limestone in one month.

Talks on buying hosiery attracted many women to meetings of homemakers' clubs in Boyd county.

Members of Negro homemakers' clubs in Christian county reported canning 7,414 quarts of fruits and vegetables.

Blish Boggs, Harlan county, transplanted eight acres of locust seedlings from a bed started in June.

Exceptionally fine corn exhibits were made at a school fair in Cumberland county.

Three hundred pounds of bait were used in a rat killing campaign in Bracken county.

J. J. Auxler of Johnson county installed a water pressure system in his house at a cost of $225. Eighty percent of Hickman county farmers trying terracing are pleased with results.

Hitler's Toys Outsold By Chamberlain Dolls

Neville Chamberlain-with-an-umbrella, the "appeasement" prime minister who claims to have kept Europe out of war last year, has become such a popular toy with British youngsters that the German toymakers, whose peace he "preserved," are griping.

The Reich's doll manufacturers claim their exports to London have collapsed because Mr. Chamberlain-with-an-umbrella is the No. 1 favorite toy on the British Isles. Many other "men of destiny" have been made into dolls this year.

It is safer to have a woman sitting on the back seat driving, than on the front seat hugging the driver.

It is sad when a woman finds she is too old to marry a young man for love, and not young enough to marry an old man for money.

MACHINERY COST WARRANTS STUDY

Following a survey of profits in five Kentucky counties, the farm economics department of the State College of Agriculture reported, in part: "Labor, power and equipment expense represents a large proportion of the total farm expenses and should be given careful consideration by all farmers. In too many instances these costs are cutting into heavily into profits. Good care of equipment, such as painting, keeping in repair, oiling, and keeping under cover as much as possible, cannot be stressed too strongly."

"The place of equipment on farms is a big factor in profits. Before buying a piece of equipment the purchaser should consider whether it will pay for itself in one way or another. In most cases, expensive machinery cannot be justified on small farms."

SAYS FEEDING WOULD SAVE VALUABLE TREES

Thousands of fine trees die every year from just plain starvation, declares Prof. N. R. Elliott, of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Prof. Elliott has written for free distribution of a circular called, "Feeding Shade Trees."

Leaves are raked up, the grass clipped and removed, and trees thereby deprived of all food. The natural result is death from starvation. Prof. Elliott's remedy is to work well-rotted manure into the soil under the trees in the fall—anytime now. Or, in late February or March, work in high-grade fertilizer.

Instances were cited by Prof. Elliott where feeding had restored trees to vigor and beauty, after their owners were ready to chop them down because they apparently were dying.

ERLANGER YOUTH INJURED
William Jerauld, 21, of Erlanger, suffered a right leg fracture in an automobile accident on Dixie Highway, near Florence, Sunday. He was taken to Booth Hospital, Covington for treatment.

YOUR STAR

Creeds of men have been assailed, homes of men have been destroyed, fear, hate and greed have been rampant, suffering endured, at other Christmas-tides. These hardships are old but this day is new with each year. Whatever creed you may profess, whatever home you may inhabit, whatever loss you have suffered, you come to this, your new Christmas. It is not a thing to disappear or to be lost through the power of any living being. Your Yule-tide you own and no man can take it from you. The spirit is inside of oneself and that self will not be conquered. There is no command or tyrant, now or ever, who can rid this heart of the glory of God in the light that comes from the Christmas star.

The many nations who have heretofore celebrated this day for its real meaning, who have cried goodwill and kindness, may today be blinded by smoke and unable to see the star. If those great in world affairs, if those little in world events, could vision its glory as it continues to shine down on this earth, would not its sparkle, strength and wisdom, guide them now as it did at the birth? Those were the wisest of men who followed in the wake of that star which led to glorious young life, to a spiritual existence powerful over life and free over death. The light is today just as bright as it leads to the ultimate glory, the love of Christ for his children and the love of man for man.

How much springs from the Christmas star, what good will and faith it reflects to those who see its glow! There is not a man whose heart has not helped to reflect its radiance at some time in his life. Can he cast out the beam if he would?

As we say our yuletide greetings we send a prayer to our fellowmen. The homes in Boone County are receiving our heartfelt recognition of the joyful season, the families share with our dear ones in the peace and the spirit of Christmas while the star of Bethlehem encompasses you and I. May the love of each for the other shine as to overcome all clouds as we give our greeting of "Merry Christmas."

ALLOTMENTS SET TUESDAY

BY A. A. A. COMMITTEE—REDUCTION OF 10 PERCENT ON TOBACCO ALLOTMENTS FOR 1940.

Boone County A. A. A. tobacco allottees completed preliminary adjustments on the 1940 acreage allotments on Tuesday of this week. The allotments will be submitted to the State office for review on about the 21st. Growers will be notified of their allotments soon after the first of the year.

The county last year was allotted 2,366 acres under the Agricultural Conservation Program. Farmers grew 2,450 acres or 84 acres more than the total allotment. The 1940 allotments which will be effective under the 1940 A. A. A. marketing quota, will be approximately 10 percent below the total allotted acres for 1939 under the Agricultural Conservation Program.

The general rules for allotment adjustment works out that the grower who did not fully use his allotment last year will receive slightly greater than a 10 percent adjustment, and those who fully used their allotments may be slightly less than 10 percent. Calculations are based on the 1939 allotment more than on acres grown.

Committees elected by growers the past year to adjust allotments are:

"For Over Fifty Years"

FREE—AND SAFE, TOO

Merry Christmas, and a Happy New Year!

Americans have good reason to put an added ring of sincerity in the familiar old Yuletide greeting this year. We have peace. Therefore, we are still a free people—free to go where we please, free to say what we please, free to manage our government through the representatives of our own free choice.

Of all the major nations in the world, we alone have these things. Let us not underestimate the grave domestic problems which confront us in increasing numbers, some of which in themselves will threaten our liberties if we fail to correct them. But so long as we remain free to think, speak and act as sovereign citizens, we will find the right way out of our home-made difficulties.

We shall retain our liberties and freedom so long as we rigidly follow the way of peace. In the year to come we will be tempted many times to tread the path of war. We will be told that it is our duty to save Europe, save Asia, save the whole world! But if we keep firmly in mind that our first duty is to save America, we will not be tempted by the invitations to war and the surrender of our most cherished rights—freedom and liberty.

We have war enough on the home front. Particularly at this season of the year let us remember the tragic and shameful accident casualty lists of street and war.

That we shall make free America also safe—for those who walk and safe for those who ride.

So let the glad tidings ring out, let it be shouted over and over through the length and breadth of our land, and in the joyous Yuletide season let us pause to whisper a prayer that the blessings of freedom and peace which we cherish and shall preserve in America, may yet become the heritage of all people everywhere.

Yes, a very Merry Christmas, and a joyous Happy New Year—and a safer America for all.

If you want to make a man angry, tell him that his wife is a better driver than he is.

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 1:18-25; 18:1-4; 19:13-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—A little child shall lead them.—Isaiah 11:3.

The children's holiday! Yes, Christmas is the children's day of days, and it is also the day for those who have been "converted and become as little children" (Matt. 18:3). It is quite proper that it should be so, for Christmas really means nothing very significant except as we gather at Bethlehem's manger and there have seen the Christ-child. Those who come on the morrow to do homage to Him in the spirit of childlike faith will truly keep Christmas. In that spirit the writer of these notes wishes for you who read these lines just that kind of a holy day of joy and gladness.

Let us then go first of all to Bethlehem, and there having seen the One who "became flesh and dwelt among us" as a little child, we shall be ready to go on and learn from Him what a blessed example, responsibility, and opportunity there is in the childhood which we see all around us.

I. The Child—Jesus Our Saviour (Matt. 1:18-25).

The virgin mother Mary "brought forth her firstborn son" "called his name Jesus"—the one who should "save his people from their sins" (vv. 21, 25). In order that He might be the Saviour, He had to be both God and man. This could only be true as God sent His own only-begotten Son into the world by giving to Him a human mother in whom He as the eternal Son of God was "conceived by the Holy Ghost" (as we express it in the creed) and became the Son of Man.

For anyone who believes that God has all power and all wisdom to do what He wills and as He wills, and who further believes that Christ was pre-existent as the Son of God before His incarnation, there is no difficulty in believing in the virgin birth. In fact, no other manner of incarnation would have been possible. It necessarily follows that the one who denies the virgin birth of Christ thereby declares that He does not believe in the God of the Scriptures and in Jesus Christ His Son our Lord.

II. The Child—Our Example (18:1-4).

The disciples had been having a discussion about who was to be the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. This was not because they desired their brothers' advancement, for each one wanted to be the greatest (Luke 9:46).

Jesus frankly told them that they needed a real change of heart, a conversion. True greatness is worldly power, but a childlike humility. Such an idea was absolutely revolutionary in the day of Jesus, and in fact sounds unbelievable to the worldly man today. But it is nonetheless true that the great man or woman is the one who knows and recognizes himself to be utterly dependent on God in every moment, every circumstance, every trial, and in every opportunity of life. We need to learn of our children.

III. The Child—Our Responsibility (18:5, 6).

These awful, solemn words should be considered with great care. What a terrible judgment awaits those who cause little ones to stumble by reason of their false teaching, their failure to bring God's Word to bear upon their lives, improper discipline in the home, or the influence of a bad example. There are probably preachers, teachers in the Sunday School, grandparents, uncles, aunts, mothers, fathers, yes, even friends of little children who need to reread these verses and then cry out to God in repentance before it is too late.

IV. The Child—Our Opportunity (19:13-15).

Jesus knew the real value of a child and His loving heart reached out to invite the children to come unto Him in love, in obedience, and in trust. When they came, He never failed to bless them. The glorious thing is that we are privileged to thus bring little children to Him. Someone may say, "Jesus is no longer on earth, I cannot take my child to Him." Jesus is not here in the flesh, but He is here ever present with His children. You can bring your child to Him for the coming which He has in mind in these verses is not in any physical sense but rather spiritual. The parents who teach their little ones about the birth of Christ on this Christmas day have brought them to Him. Every word of instruction, every encouragement to pray, every example of devotion to Christ which the child may follow is the true bringing of that child to Him.

Will you do it this Christmas—in the home, in the Sunday School, in the church, anywhere? If you do, there will be blessing beyond your ability to contain it and you will have A Blessed Christmas!

Experience isn't such a good teacher if you have to spend all your time on the same lesson.

FRIENDS AND FOES OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:54-14:14; 15:21-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.—John 15:14.

Inventory time has come, and it seems that our lesson for today, although it does come in the middle of our study of the Gospel of Matthew, seems too sort of a pause to consider what has been the result of that which Jesus had said and done thus far in our study. The answer we find is that He had both friends and foes, both love and hatred. His foes apparently outnumbered His friends, and the hatred was evidently fierce and the love none too warm. So Jesus was defeated? No, far from it. As we know, He won the victory over His enemies.

The situation is not different today. Those who follow Jesus and love Him truly are quite evidently in the minority and all too often it seems that hatred for the cause of Christ has the upper hand. Are we defeated? No, far from it. We are on the lips of thousands because He won the victory again. We are on the winning side.

I. Dishonored Because of Jealousy (13:54-58).

One would have supposed that the people of the little, almost unknown town of Nazareth would have been thrilled at the return of its native son whose fame had also spread its name abroad and whose name was on the lips of thousands because He went about doing good.

They were astonished, but they were not ready to accept Him. They could not deny the fact either of His person or His power, but they could and did permit their personal pride and jealousy to lead them to deny Him. "This story teaches us the utterable folly of refusing to accept fact because it is astonishing, yet there are thousands of people standing in that position today concerning Jesus Christ. It is utterly unscientific, not to say irreligious. Here is an astonishing thing. They say we cannot understand how this man hath this wisdom. Has He the wisdom? Why, yes, we cannot escape it. Then in the name of God and common honesty obey the injunction of His Bible, or sin will be charged against you." (G. Campbell Morgan).

II. Hated Because of Sin (14:1-4).

The pride of heart which causes many to hold themselves too good to follow the lowly Nazarene is sin. There is a sin that which even the world recognizes as sin which separates men from Christ. D. L. Moody is said to have written on the margin of his Bible, "This book is not for sinners, or sin will be charged against you." That is rather a surprising statement.

Herod's sin in sin, had been rebuked by John and had silenced his accuser by the simple expedient of imprisonment and ultimately by beheading him. But one does not thus put away sin, and when this man heard of Jesus, he at once assumed that John had risen from the dead to plague him still. So Herod also took his place with the enemies of our Lord.

If a man shows his opposition to Christ, whether it be by indifference, or by jealousy, or in outright hatred, be sure there is sin in that man's life. Those who love righteousness love the righteous Lord.

III. Accepted Because of Service (15:23-31).

"The Son of man came not to be ministered unto but to minister," even to the giving of "this life" as ransom for many" (Matt. 20:28). We have so overemphasized and misused the word service that one almost hesitates to speak it in connection with the name of the Lord Jesus. Yet it is it that summarizes His earthly life and ministry. He served the needy with His teaching and preaching, with His provision for their daily needs, with His healing touch, and we read that they wondered and glorified God (v. 31).

We said above that the majority of men appear to reject Christ, but that does not mean that He has no friends. "The communion of saints" is made up of a great and almost numberless host, including in its ranks the finest and most distinguished men and women of all ages who gladly stand by side with the humblest of believers to be counted for the Lord Jesus.

As a means of encouraging men and women everywhere to follow Christ as they find Him in His Word, the writer of these notes will send without charge a folder, "The Why and How of Bible Reading," including a Bible-reading calendar for the entire year. Use the name and address at the head of this column and if possible enclose a stamped addressed envelope or a three-cent stamp.

TOBACCO STRIPPED
BY ELECTRIC LIGHT

The use of electric lights in preparing tobacco for market was tested during a stripping demonstration on the farm of W. T. Forsee & Son, Owen county. At first the tobacco was stripped by daylight, and then the skylights were covered and electric lights turned on.

Farmers present thought stripping could be done as well, if not better, by electric light. With lights, stripping can be done as needed. Cost of lighting stripping rooms is said to be small.

TOBACCO STRIPPED
BY ELECTRIC LIGHT

The use of electric lights in preparing tobacco for market was tested during a stripping demonstration on the farm of W. T. Forsee & Son, Owen county. At first the tobacco was stripped by daylight, and then the skylights were covered and electric lights turned on.

Farmers present thought stripping could be done as well, if not better, by electric light. With lights, stripping can be done as needed. Cost of lighting stripping rooms is said to be small.

2 1/2% OF FARM DOLLAR IS SPENT FOR FERTILIZER

CHICAGO—Only 2 1/2 cents out of every dollar of farm cash income received each year is spent for fertilizer, according to a survey made by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Small as this amount may seem, it represents one of the most profitable investments a farmer can make, returning him a better than three-to-one dividend," says a bulletin issued by the committee.

"Purchases of fertilizer represent an outlay of only $33 per year in the United States every year. Yet records on the use of fertilizer on farms throughout the Middle West show that every dollar spent for fertilizer results in an average increased value of crops amounting to about three and a half dollars."

"Farmers spend less annually for fertilizer than for wages for hired help, feed for their stock, farm implements, gasoline or taxes. Yet the price of fertilizer is lower than practically any commodity the farmer buys."

COST OF GROWING CROPS REDUCED BY SOIL KNOWLEDGE

Science Learns More About Chemistry of Land.

CHICAGO—Restoring "sick" soils to fertility is a science that is increasing the yield of farm crops per acre and lowering the cost of production, according to a report made by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"A century ago, man knew little more about the chemical composition of the soil and its relation to plant growth than was known in the time of Moses," says the report.

Study Soil Structure.

"Today knowledge of the soil is becoming a more exact science. Soil is no longer looked upon as a mass of mineral and organic matter that combines in some mysterious manner with rain and sunshine to produce the food we eat. It is regarded as a distinct body which has a form and composition of its own."

"The soil might also be likened to a warehouse in which are stored plant food and water available to growing crops. Plants draw on this supply of nutrients and water."

"If the supply of plant food is depleted or insufficient, the crops are underfed and the farmer harvests a poor and unprofitable yield."

Rebuild Fertility.

"Here is where science's knowledge of the soil aids the farmer to improve his land and rebuild its fertility. It is possible to test a given soil in a few minutes and learn a great deal about what its fertility needs may be."

"Not only in soil testing, but in the entire field of fertilizer use, progress is being constantly made. Farm machinery manufacturers are providing better machines for applying fertilizer. Soil scientists of universities and government departments, county agents and teachers are giving farmers up-to-date information on the best types of fertilizers to use. Experts in the laboratories of fertilizer manufacturers, through constant study and tests, are improving their product."

"Farmers generally recognize that the yield per acre of crops is the most important factor influencing the cost of production. Higher yields mean lower production costs. Thus they are becoming increasingly aware that the use of fertilizers is the most profitable means of increasing their crop yields per acre."

FILL FIRST
A priming coat should be used first when painting new wood. This fills the pores, otherwise the wood absorbs the oil from paint and will leave the upper coat with dry dull spots. Use plenty of linseed oil to fill the pores. It is often wise to use a second coat to give the last coat a smooth ground.

HISTORY—Mrs. G. E. M. suffered headaches and neckaches. Her neck ached so intensely at the base of the skull she could hardly see. Days at a time she could not get out of bed because of the severity of the pains. She read one of our adds, telling of the good work we were doing, and decided to see what we were doing, decided to see what we could do for her. After a very short time wearing surgical shoes, pain in the head and neck lessened till finally it disappeared entirely and she is well and happy. It is now possible for her to do her own work even when it is necessary for her to climb stepladders. Surgical shoes seemingly worked miracles for her.

COMMENT—Strain on ligaments and tendons naturally has a weakening effect upon muscles. Continued neglect of these conditions may be the cause of your aches and pains in the neck and back, and you have been unable to get relief, come in and let us see what we can do for you.

If your ankles are weak and you are constantly rolling them, surgical shoes are definitely the answer to your problem.—Adv.

Entertain during the holidays with a crazy party. Write the invitations backwards and insist upon outlandish costumes to be worn. Give a prize for the "craziest." Have your refreshments equally crazy from caviar through baked beans, despite the groans of your guests. Use the craziest kind of table decoration, mixing celery, flowers, weeds, etc. There isn't much more fun than pulling taffy, especially when adults do it like they were children! Whatever you may do that would be wrong otherwise, is right for a crazy party.

DECORATING HINTS

If you are using a lace cloth on your Xmas table, try the effect of red oilcloth as an under-covering, hanging huge red oilcloth bows from the chandelier (back to back for the effect). Scatter holly here and there and place a red candle at each end of the table. . . . Dip sycamore balls and pine cones in aluminum paint and use on a table mirror with leaves silvered in the same manner. . . . Make a center wreath of your evergreens, using cranberries on fine wire as the holly. Place a candle in the center of the wreath, or a candelabra if you own one. . . . Red candied apples add a festive note to mark places at any Christmas table.

MRA And International Affairs

By H. K. Twitchell

(New York and London, who has worked in Europe for the last 15 years.)

Not long ago two European statesmen were discussing Moral Re-Armament.

The spirit of friendliness of this glad season reminds us of your good will during the past year. To each of you we wish a very Merry Christmas!

W. E. TAIT

OPTOMETRIST
5 East 8th St. Covington

One recalled a diplomatic negotiation with the representative of another country concerning a dispute over fishing rights. "We met in an atmosphere of suspicion," he said. "We each kept back all facts favorable to the other side, demanded twice as much as we expected to get, argued for several hours, and parted without a solution, hating each other."

"This year," he continued, "we met again. Both had since come into touch with Moral Re-Armament, so we conducted our negotiations on this basis. Each considered the rights of the other nation. We put our facts on the table. We asked for just what we felt we had a right to receive. We reached a solution in 20 minutes, and we parted friends."

Moral Re-Armament gives the foundation of a lasting peace, where every nation begins to base its policy, foreign and domestic, on honesty and justice. In many countries today there has come a new spirit. It is a spirit that recognizes that no nation has a clean slate in its history. Every nation has used force at some time. Every nation has its period of history which it would prefer to have its own historians write about. Almost every nation has seized territory from others and then employed high-sounding reasons to explain its possession.

Need vs. Greed
The clash of arms is only a new development in the war that has been going on for years—the war of trade, the war of words, the war of possession. These wars are rooted in selfishness. There is enough in the world for every nation's need, but not enough for every nation's greed. Moral Re-Armament is a world war against selfishness. Amid the strife of the war of arms, millions are redefining themselves as never before to fight this battle for peace thru Moral Re-Armament.

Speaking before a distinguished assembly several hundred statesmen at Geneva less than a year ago, the Hon. Carl J. Hambro, president of the Norwegian parliament, introduced the leaders of MRA. "These men," he said, "have succeeded when we have failed. They have created a fellowship above nationality and political doctrine. They have created that constructive peace which we have sought for in vain for years. Here where we have not known how to transform politics, they have known how to transform lives, and to teach men a new way of living."

Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary, has declared that MRA is "the only sure hope for peace and prosperity in a disturbed world."

Similar messages have been received from Secretary of State Cordell Hull and George Bonnet, foreign minister of France.

Chinese Leaders Support
Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek cabled to the world assembly for Moral Re-Armament in California in August of this year.

"We respond whole-heartedly to your stirring call. Accept this expression of our unqualified support. The movement for Moral Re-Armament may, we believe, eventually override the influence of power politics by harnessing the innate goodness and goodwill of every nation and thinking individual."

From Japan to the same world assembly came Takasumi Mitsui, younger brother of the Japanese industrialist, whose family employs over a million men in Japan. Speaking in Seattle, Mr. Mitsui said: "The real cause of war lies in the hearts of men, and we must learn to make men different if there is to be peace between the nations. Moral Re-Armament on a national world-wide scale is our only hope, and no nation can afford to wait. It is the only hope for the future of the Far East."

Competent observers have remarked upon the fact that in each country where the spirit of Moral Re-Armament has been growing, it lays the concrete foundations upon which bridges can be built when hostilities cease.

The power of an "honest apology" in relations between nations was well illustrated by the action of a Norwegian editor, who had used his pen to stir up bitterness and antagonism in his country against Denmark over the question of Greenland fishing rights. After the moral Re-Armament he went to Copenhagen and publicly apologized in the press and over the radio to the Danish nation. Thru such bridge building, MRA has brought a new spirit between the two countries.

Answers Race Wars

Moral Re-Armament is answering the war between races. Recently in Rangoon there was a parade of one racial group. It usually ended in riot and bloodshed. This time the parade carried the slogan—"Burmese Road to Freedom—Absolute Unselfishness." Wars of centuries are being healed as Karens, Burmese, Hindus, Mohammedans, English and Indians are learning to sink their differences in this common war against greed and selfishness, which has created to destroy them all.

Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and King Leopold of the Belgians, who had publicly supported Moral Re-Armament for their nations, have called upon 100,000,000 people of Europe's nations to make this their national policy. Behind these leaders stand armies of men and women mobilized for Moral Re-Armament who are ready to live in a new way that their countries may demonstrate a pattern for the world.

Not only leaders of states, but citizens also in their millions are working night and day to create that hate-free, fear-free, greed-free world that every man desires and every man can help to build. Determined minorities in communities and nations affirm that God has a plan and that statesmanship must find that plan. And determined minorities time and again in the centuries of the past have turned the trends of men's minds into new channels, and lightened up the future with hope.

In his recent world broadcast from San Francisco, Dr. Frank Buchman said, "We have all wanted peace. We have sought it in pacts, in leagues, in alliances, in changes of systems, in economic and disarmament conferences, and we have sought in vain. We have wanted peace, but we never yet paid the price of peace—the price of facing with God where we and our nation have been wrong, and how we and our nation, as God directs, can put it wrong right."

"A nation's surest defense is the love and gratitude of her neighbors. The people of the nations will support to the utmost those statesmen who shall seek in this spirit to avert catastrophe and build that peace without bitterness which all men desire."

W. M. U. HOLDS MEETING

The W. M. U. of the Union Baptist Church met for their regular monthly meeting in the home of Mrs. Kirtley McWethy.

The morning session was opened by singing "I Love to Tell the Story" followed by prayer by Mrs. Lora Mullin. After several items of business had been discussed and cared for, a Ladies' Aid was organized. We were then dismissed for lunch and social hour, by Mrs. Myrtle Marshall.

At 1:30 p. m. we were again called together by our president, Mrs. Austin Geschwind for our program session, the topic for the month was "My Responsibility for The Great Commission."

The devotional, "God's Gift of Love" was very interesting and beautifully brought to us by Mrs.

Christmas makes us happy for a lot of reasons. It is particularly so because it gives us an opportunity to greet our friends again and wish them the joys of the holiday season.

Kentucky's Golden Crop is Harvested

. . . and the markets have begun to pour gold back into the pockets of the planters who have toiled in the early Spring with their plant beds, worked in the hot Summer sun with their plants, and harvested in the early days of Autumn to get ready for the tobacco markets. Much toil, many hours of labor have gone into the production of Kentucky's major crop, tobacco. Many Christmases will be gay and more abundant because of the golden leaf that goes into cigarettes and pipes to bring pleasure to the world.

We bring you here a portrayal of the major tobacco growing section of the nation—Kentucky, with its bluegrass meadows that are planted to bring you bright burley cigarette tobacco, and its rolling hills of the Pennsylvanian that bring you dark fired, the cigar, chewing, and snuff tobacco that is used wherever civilization has progressed to add to the comforts and luxuries of living.

We shall portray to you in this section the procedure of planting, raising, and marketing this crop, but we would also like for you to think of the pleasure it brings to the consumers—and to the planters who, in productive toil, gain much revenue for a happy existence.

The Editor of your paper is giving you this Rotogravure Section in the hope that it will bring enjoyment and be of convenience to you in making your purchases.

Your local merchant is the backbone of your community and deserves your trade. In many cases, he is selling the merchandise that is advertised in this section. However, if you are unable to obtain your wants in your own community, we earnestly urge that you patronize the advertisers of this Section, and we sincerely hope that when you do you will mention the Rotogravure Section of your local paper to the merchant, as it is through his advertising this is made possible.

Sincerely,

The Editor.

Burley Production Exceeds Consumption For More Than Two Decades, Report Shows

For 25 years production of burley tobacco has exceeded consumption by about 8 per cent, on the average, per year, according to the 1940 Kentucky Agricultural Outlook recently issued by the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky.

This continued accumulation has been possible, the Outlook states, because the increased use of burley tobacco in the past has made it necessary for manufacturers to carry larger stocks every year to meet the anticipated increases in demand. The normal carry-over of burley tobacco has increased from less than 300 million pounds in 1912 to about 700 million pounds today, but "the need of holding increasingly larger stocks," the Outlook holds, "may be about over."

Statistics covering more than two decades of burley production history are cited by the Outlook in support of its conclusions.

"From 1918 to 1920 production exceeded consumption each year by an average of 14 per cent and the 1920 crop sold for an average of 13.5 cents per pound. From 1922 to 1926, production exceeded consumption by an average of 24 per cent per year. Prices in 1926 averaged 13 cents per pound. Again, from 1929 to 1933, production exceeded consumption by an average of 30 per cent and prices in 1933 were 10.5 cents per pound. During the past three years production has exceeded use by an average of 15 per cent per year. If over-production continues, lower prices are in store."

No hope for further expansion of the burley market is seen on international horizons. The report continues: "Although cigarette consumption expanded considerably during the World War, a similar expansion from present high levels of consumption cannot be expected as a result of the current European conflict."

Instead, a new possibility of competition for the domestic market has developed, as a result of the war, in the flue-cured belt.

"The 1939 crop of flue-cured tobacco is estimated to be more than 200 million pounds larger than annual disappearance. The uncertainty of foreign markets for even the normal supply of flue-cured tobacco, plus the excess production, all or part of which is available for domestic use, raises the question of its possible influence upon the price of burley. Prices of these two types appear to be related but not sufficiently so to suggest much direct substitution of one for the other. To the extent that flue-cured may be used in place of burley, however, large supplies on the Eastern markets have a depressive influence on the price of burley. It is not a favorable time to hold burley prices high above those of flue-cured and thus encourage manufacturers to use the cheaper tobacco. On the other hand, excess production of burley, coupled with that for flue-cured, might affect the prices of both types severely."

Yellowstone Builds 10,000-Barrel Warehouse

"Judging the future by the past seems to make this addition necessary," said J. Walker Dant, secretary of Taylor and Williams Distilleries, with reference to the new warehouse in course of construction at Yellowstone Gardens, Louisville, Kentucky.

The new structure is to be "iron clad" type, with a capacity of 10,000 barrels. Contractors have the concrete foundation in place and forms for the superstructure are well under way.

"Early this year," continued Mr. Dant, "following a general demand from our jobbing connections, we started to supply 4-year-old Yellowstone in 90 proof. The demand for this item has increased to such proportions without, apparently, influencing volume on the 100-proof bottled in bond, that we are at present planning to increase our bottling facilities also by adding an additional line for free bottling exclusively."

State's Total Tobacco Crop Is Over 313 Million Pounds

Kentucky's total production of all types of tobacco in 1939 is 313,646,000 pounds, according to the November crop report issued by the Kentucky office of the United States Agricultural Marketing Service.

This is about 7.3 per cent more than the 292,175,000-pound crop in 1938 but is about 2.4 per cent less than the state's average annual production of 321,370,000 pounds during the years 1928-37, inclusive.

Total crops of types produced wholly or partly within Kentucky and therefore of direct interest to Kentucky growers are estimated as follows (by type areas, regardless of state boundaries): burley—350,669,000 pounds compared with 338,789,000 pounds last year and the 1928-37 average of 315,689,000 pounds; Green River (air cured from both Owensboro and Henderson districts)—15,300,000 compared with 14,790,000 last year and the 1928-37 average of 21,288,000; one-sucker—18,927,000 compared with 15,815,000 last year and the 1928-37 average of 20,225,000; Henderson fired "stemming"—1,830,000 compared with 1,750,000 last year and the 1928-37 average of 5,013,000; Hopkinville-Harkville-Springfield dark fired—54,132,000 compared with 48,130,000 last year and the 1928-37 average of 81,721,000; and the Paducah-Mayfield dark fired type—22,194,000 compared with 21,960,000 last year and the 1928-37 average of 32,118,000 pounds.

The entire crop in the United States in 1939 is estimated at 1,659,409,000 pounds for all types. The crop in 1938 was 1,578,534,000 pounds and the 1928-37 average annual production was 1,360,400,000 pounds.

Heads "Cheer-Up" Campaign

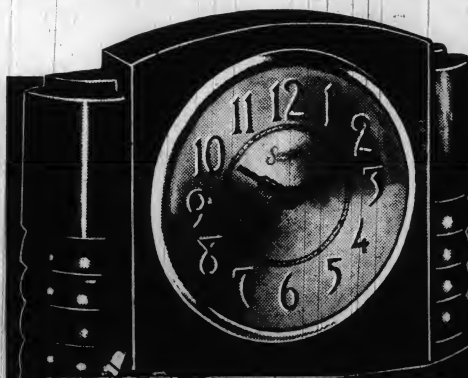

JOHN F. OERTEL, JR., President, Oertel Brewing Company

As president of the famous Oertel Brewing Company of Louisville, Kentucky, John F. Oertel, Jr., is heading that company's campaign to spread happiness and good cheer.

The theme of the campaign is, "Don't be a gloomygum. Cheer up! Get more fun out of life!"

That's mighty good advice, too, for a gloomygum doesn't have many friends—and he doesn't have any fun. So, the famous brewers of Oertel's '92 Beer are saying, "Keep refreshed—and keep cheerful—with Oertel's '92." All forms of advertising are being used to remind people to "Cheer Up—Get more fun out of life!" The campaign is one of the biggest of its kind ever conducted—and already a lot of people have expressed their gratitude to the Oertel Brewing Company for its good-humored reminders to keep cheerful.
